Challenge Looms for Gov't On National Poverty Issue

Bitter Debate Faces Grits Over Reforms

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — For years, enlightened parliamentarians have been criticizing the House of Commons as an institution run on 19th-century rules, inadequate to the task of reacting quickly to the urgencies of a 20th century society during a time of national and international ferment.

Scant days after he took office, Pierre Trudeau set his experts to the task of revising these rules. The reform of Parliament is to be his highest priority for the parliamentary session which opens here next week.

The proposed rules changes, which have been discussed between Liberal House Leader Donald MacDonald and Conservative House Leader Jed Baldwin are so drastic that they have already created a controversy—and promise to become the subject of the first bitter confrontation between the Trudeau government and the opposition.

Speed Business

Although neither side has so far been willing to reveal officially what the argument is about, apparently the proposed rules changes—if carried through—would revolutionize the parliamentary system. They would expedite government business to a degree which could make Parliament a model of efficiency. In the process, they could also deprive the opposition—and even backbenchers on the government side—of effectiveness in applying the checks and balances which are a valued tradition in the parliamentary system.

Once in effect, the new rules would transform our parliamentary system into something closer to a cabinet or even prime ministerial form of government.

The government's secret proposals consist of four main elements:

- The imposition of a limit of two days on debates during the second-reading stage of all bills unless the House orders otherwise. Second reading is the stage of legislation when the principle of any new law is debated and there has been up to now no limit on this important stage in parliamentary proceedings.

Under the outlined new arrangements, the opposition would have to request extra days for really major bills such as the current Onmibus Bill to amend the Criminal Code. Also, it's not clear how much time would be saved because opposition members, frustrated by the limits imposed on second reading, might prolong third-reading debates. There would be, as well, a tendency to use the full two days for second reading even on the minor bills that don't warrant that much debate.

- The number of days spent debating departmental estimates is to be cut arbitrarily to 15 per session, with all opposition parties allowed to make only six motions of non-confidence.

Some Progress Indicated

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Progress is being made in negotiations between the Liberals and opposition parties in considering proposed changes in the rules of Parliament, it was learned today.

The House leaders—Liberal, Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Party—met Wednesday and considered the government's package rule changes plan.

The Creditiste House leader was also invited, but did not attend.

The meeting has met some of the objections of the Conservatives and NDP. The fact that representatives are now meeting together has overcome the protest by Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg NDP member, who said details of the government proposal were not being made known to the opposition and that the opposition was not being consulted.

That complaint has been met by government House leader Donald MacDonald with the inter-party meetings.

Conservative House leader Jed Baldwin this week surprised Parliament Hill by shedding his normal calm and condemning the Liberals' proposed rule changes as a deliberate attempt to establish "a puppet parliament" and was also indignant that the government was dealing separately with the opposition House leaders.

His blast has at least achieved the result of having joint meetings.

Off-Duty Officers In Panther Attack

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay confirmed today that off-duty policemen were involved in an attack Wednesday by 200 white men on about a dozen Black Panthers and white sympathizers in the Brooklyn criminal court building.

Lindsay said he had been assured by Police Commissioner Howard Leary that "immediate and vigorous action" will be taken against any police officer who violated laws or police regulations.

The mayor described the courthouse incident as "shocking."

"There can be no safety, no law, no order and no justice," Lindsay said at a city hall news conference, "unless we are absolutely sure that this kind of ugly incident does not happen again in this city."

The clash took place Wednesday in a sixth-floor corridor outside a packed courtroom where three Black Panthers had a hearing on charges of beating three policemen Aug. 20. Three persons including a white girl were injured.

Witnesses said the group of white men, who had been unable to get into the courtroom, slowly converged on the smaller group and then suddenly rushed them.

Blackjacks were seen swinging down through the air during the melee which was broken up by uniformed officers assigned to the building. No arrests were made.

David Brothers, leader of the Brooklyn Panthers, and Thomas McCreary, a member of the militant group, charged that their attackers were members of the Law Enforcement Group of New York, a militant group of police officers.

WALLACE BACKERS

Several of the attackers wore the presidential campaign button of George C. Wallace, former Alabama governor.

Mayor Lindsay ordered Police Commissioner Howard R. Leary to have a complete report on the incident.

In the hearing, Judge George Rader turned down a request for reduction of bail for the defendants and ordered the assault charges referred to the grand jury.

The three defendants are George Correa, 22, held in $20,000 bail; Daryl Bines, 17, $10,000 and John Martinez, 19, $2,500.

CLIFFORD

Anti-Missile System Gets Green Light

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defence Secretary Clark Clifford, declaring the United States must negotiate with the Soviet Union from a position of strength, today ordered work on the Sentinel anti-missile system pressed forward.

Clifford exempted the Sentinel from Congress-ordered spending cuts.

His action came several days after it was learned that defence department officials were discussing possibility of deferring start of the Sentinel for some months, in part, because China is nearly a year late in testing its first long-range ballistic missile.

Speaking to the National Press Club, Clifford also defended pushing ahead with tests of advanced Minuteman and Poseidon missiles incorporating multiple warheads.

He noted the concern expressed by some critics that development of the anti-missile system—which is currently designed to deal mostly with the Chinese threat—and development of the multiple warheads would cause the Soviet Union to react with a big stepup in its own weapons and would harm the prospect of U.S.-Soviet arms-control talks.

Clifford said he does not share these fears. He said the United States is pushing the new weapons developments "on the basis that a position of substantial strength is essential and is the best position from which we can negotiate agreements that may make the threat of nuclear war increasingly remote."

The $5 billion Sentinel system, while aimed at China, may grow into a $45 billion project against Soviet missiles, in the view of some critics.

Clifford voiced the hope that "at an appropriate time" arms control talks can take place between the United States and the Soviet Union.

It was evident that Clifford feels this is not an appropriate time because of the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia and an apparent return by the Soviet Union to hard-line policies in Central Europe.

Clifford said the events in Czechoslovakia "have clearly demonstrated that a significant American military presence in Western Europe is needed."

Thus, he came down hard against further reduction in U.S. forces in Europe, as had been strongly urged by some in Congress before the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Clifford called on North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries to "review these events from the standpoint of the effect upon our common security."

This appeared to be a call for them to meet their troop commitments to the alliance.

The cost of maintaining some 300,000 U.S. troops in Western Europe, Clifford said, is dwarfed "when one compares it with the enormous cost of American lives and treasure expended in a general war or to the consequences if Americans were to be isolated in a hostile world."

Soviets Delay Flights

PRAGUE (AP) — Soviet commanders today delayed scheduled resumption of domestic flights in Czechoslovakia amid new signs that the public is unyielding in its stand against the occupation.

The state-run Czechoslovak airline CSA had been promised by local Soviet authorities that flights between Prague and the Slovak capital of Bratislava could be resumed shortly after dawn today, but by mid-morning no plane had left.

Airline officials explained the Soviets had suddenly rescinded their permit. They added it was hoped now the first plane would leave sometime later this week.

Bratislava as well as 13 district towns in western Slovakia were reported today to be occupied still by Soviet troops who also gave no indication of moving out of Prague.

Prace, the newspaper of the 5,300,000-strong Trade Union Federation, also said the Soviet local commander in Bratislava has retained his headquarters in the castle, a symbol of Slovak pride.

In a dispatch from Moravia, the newspaper reported that residents of the Ostrava industrial region have prepared a byelection with the announced aim of voting Drahomir Kolder, a former member of the Communist party presidium who is accused of collaboration with the Soviets, out of his National Assembly seat.

The vote will be held sometime next month.

The editorial offices of four out of seven Prague dailies were still under Soviet guard this morning after the Prace editors had been able to return to their building Wednesday.

Soviet occupation also continued to force suspension of most sports activities.

B.C. FERRY RUNS AGROUND

POWELL RIVER (CP) — The Queen of Powell River, a British Columbia government ferry, ran aground today on a sandbar near the ferry slip at Saltery Bay.

Damage to the small ferry was believed slight. There were no injuries.

The ferry was on a 10-mile run between Earls Cove and Saltery Bay when the grounding occurred. Saltery Bay is about 10 miles southeast of Powell River.

INDUSTRIAL TRIBUNAL PROPOSED FOR ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP) — An industrial tribunal, supreme in almost all matters of labor relations and labor-management affairs, has been recommended to the Ontario government by royal commissioner Ivan C. Rand, former justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, who studied labor disputes in the province for two years.

Mr. Rand makes 56 recommendations, all influenced by formation of the proposed tribunal. However, they could be implemented without the tribunal if it is rejected by the Ontario government.

Economic Council Highlights

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of the Economic Council of Canada's fifth annual review issued today:

Poverty affects millions of Canadians, has become a national disgrace and must be wiped out by comprehensive measures.

Family allowances and other welfare legislation should be reviewed and studies made of a guaranteed minimum annual income.

Basis now established for resumed growth in economic output of about five per cent a year.

Persistent price increases remain a serious concern.

Canadian agriculture is falling behind competitors in the technology of crop and livestock yields.

Gap between farm and non-farm incomes will increase unless more productivity is achieved in farming techniques.

Greatly expanded research is needed in universities and industry, with emphasis on developing practical results.

Research in social sciences is totalling inadequate.

Regional development programs such as the Agricultural and Rural Development Act fall far short of their aims.

SURGEONS at Houston, Tex., Methodist Hospital performed their 12th heart transplant operation today and the patient, James Elbert Singleton, 47, (above) was reported in satisfactory condition. The heart donor was Paul C. Mason, 17, of Long Beach, Calif.

'Disgrace,' Says Economic Report

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada says millions of Canadians live in poverty, "a disgrace" that must be wiped out by a great national offensive.

In language that looks unmistakeably like a challenge to the Trudeau government, the council's fifth annual review published today deplores "entrapment and hopelessness" reaching into every corner of the country.

By its most conservative definition, one in five non-farm families lacks a decent, minimum standard of living. The council's standard for low-income Canadians: More than 70 per cent of income goes to buy the simplest necessities of food, shelter and clothing.

If Canadian society "aspires to be a just society," it must make the elimination of serious poverty a major national goal, says the council, a body of experts established by Parliament to advise government on the economy.

Canada suffered from more poverty than it could tolerate, more than its economy could afford, and far more than existing measures could cope with.

Ruling out sentimental gestures, the council calls for "compassionate realism" in attacking the problem.

Special Senate Inquiry Urged

Starting immediately, existing anti-poverty policies must be co-ordinated and exploited to their limit. It urges pilot research projects into urban poverty and the launching of a special inquiry by the Senate.

In the long-term, the council suggests a complete evaluation and reappraisal of all government and private policies bearing on poverty. Nothing must escape questioning.

The council asks: What is the purpose, in 1968 circumstances, of family allowances?

A negative income tax-paid by government to people of limited income—and minimum income guarantees should be examined and a minimum standard of living defined.

The 65,000-word review is shorter than most of its predecessors but pungent. In other forays, the independent body of economists and experts from major economic fields draws these conclusions:

—National growth-promoting policies are not consciously designed to help slow-growth regions most.

—The structure and value of regional development programs, such as the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act and the Agricultural and Rural Development Act, deserve questioning.

—Still more productivity gains in agriculture will be necessary to prevent a widening of the income gap suffered by farmers.

—Canada is rapidly losing ground to its competitors in the technology of high crop and livestock yields.

—There is a danger that policy-makers preoccupied with research or "invention," will forget the follow-through process of "innovation" that puts discoveries to work.

—Canada needs much more industrial and university research and a coherent strategy to blend all of society's scientific, technological and innovative capabilities.

All Governments Must Co-operate

The council says the co-operation of all governments is vital in an anti-poverty crusade. It uses the term "war on poverty" without apology, suggesting that some planning and evaluation techniques it will need can be borrowed from the military.

Poverty, says the review, is disguised and passes largely unnoticed, "it does not, for example, invariably go about in rags." It is inarticulate; the poor often lack the education and organization to make themselves heard.

Poverty is said to be widespread—as much as half of it existing outside the Atlantic provinces and eastern Quebec, the areas of highest incidence.

Poverty is hard to define. It is not just low income; simple statistics "cannot capture the sour atmosphere of poor health and bad housing—the accumulated defeat, alienation and despair which often so tragically are inherited by the next and succeeding generations."

The review nevertheless offers a statistical guide.

If low-income families are defined as those using 70 per cent or more of their incomes for food, clothing and shelter, then in 1965 one of every five non-farm families fell into this class. They had little money left over for such things as drugs, medical care, education, recreation, savings and so on.

On this basis, low-income families would include single persons earning less than $1,500, families of two earning less than $2,500, families of three, four and five or more earning less than $3,000, $3,500 and $4,000 respectively.

In 1961 the total number of low-income families by this definition was about 4,200,000. The

Marriage Ran Gauntlet Of Strike, Czech Crisis

MONTREAL (CP) — This summer's mail strike and the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia turned the romance of a young Montreal management consultant and a former Expo hostess into a comedy of errors which finally wound up back in Montreal where it all started.

David Binmore and Ingrid Seidlerova met at an Expo party and when she flew back home after finishing her job as hostess at the Czech pavilion, the two continued to write to each other.

David proposed in one of his letters and Ingrid sent back an affirmative reply which he later confirmed by telephone.

They were married June 15 in a little Czech town called Karlstejn Castle.

After a brief honeymoon, the Binmores spent days trying to arrange travel papers for Ingrid.

These were stalled by shaded areas on her chest x-ray—either the result of faulty film or the first indications of tuberculosis—and David was forced to return to Montreal alone.

His return coincided with the beginning of the Canadian postal strike. He tried to phone several times, but each time his wife was away from home.

RUSSIANS MOVE IN

The came the news of the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia.

After almost two months of silence, David received a telegram saying his wife was somewhere in Sweden.

Last Monday, David flew to Stockholm and went to the Czech tourist office where Ingrid had said she knew an official.

"I was sitting there minding my own business when my wife walked in through the back door of the office," David said.

It was later discovered Ingrid could have entered Canada in July, but the communications failure prevented them from knowing this.

David brought his wife back to Canada on an extended visitor's permit.

In the meantime, there is the matter of securing the travel papers from the Czech government.

But with the aid of Czech representatives here, the Binmores hope the problem will be nothing more than a formality.

Four Bodies Found

WATSON LAKE, Y.T. (CP) RCMP searchers today found the bodies of all four persons who died when their light plane crashed Monday in rugged mountain terrain 160 miles northeast of here. Names of the dead men, three of them employees of a mining company and the fourth the 51-year-old pilot, were being withheld until relatives are notified.

. . . ECONOMIC COUNCIL

situation has improved in the 1960s, but total population is also higher.

The council describes this low-income definition as "conservative."

By raising its poverty line, to assume straitened circumstances if 60 per cent or more of income is spent on food, clothing and shelter, the poverty percentage would go to 41 per cent, based on the 1961 non-farm population.

The review traces the incidence of poverty by education, area and occupation, confirming familiar facts about the identity of the poor.

It deals specifically with Indians, Eskimos and Metis, quoting these statistics to illustrate a "brutal story" of their living conditions:

—The average life expectancy of Indian women in Canada is 25 years.

—The infant mortality rate among Eskimos is 293 per 1,000 live births, or 10 times the rate for the population as a whole.

Indians and Eskimos are isolated from the ordinary provisions of public policy and left to be "citizens minus," says the council. The Metis were regarded as neither Indian nor white, and had been largely excluded from both societies.

Even from its own limited inquiry into existing social legislation, the council finds "that both the coverage and efficiency of many parts of the structure leave much to be desired." The structure has never been systematically evaluated.

Family allowances and other long-estabished programs may continue to serve highly useful purposes "but these purposes should surely be re-examined in the light of the many important economic and social changes that have occurred over the last generation."

The special planning secretariat, nerve centre of the Pearson government's war on poverty axed in last fall's austerity wave, should be revised or replaced in effective form, says the council. It would co-ordinate policies.

Poor Suffer Unnecessarily

The Canada Assistance Plan, a federal-provincial umbrella for those in need, must be exploited fully. The poor now suffered unnecessarily because the provinces were not reporting to Ottawa on operation of the plan.

The council said its examination of research in Canada confirms the urgency of an earlier plea for greater scientific effort by universities and industry.

In particular, the government should help them establish research into social problems, in the fields of health, education pollution control and the social sciences.

The council discovered that only 800 companies spent money on research and development in 1965, and fewer than 20 companies performed half the work done in industry.

In agriculture, the council makes sobering comparisons with American achievements.

Output per farmer had grown faster in the U.S. because American agriculture employs 30 per cent more machinery input and twice as much technology in crop and livestock yields.

Canada must make strides in these fields and move toward bigger farms, fewer farmers, bigger markets and better market organization.

All aspects of grain production and marketing must be examined.

Continuing its concern with the deeply-entrenched gaps between regions of Canada, the council warns that federal remedies can easily be frustrated.

It holds little hope that credit policies and national taxation and spending policies can be effectively tailored to regional needs, although it allows that some careful experimenting might be worthwhile.

Can other national policies be adjusted to help, for example the slow-growth Atlantic provinces?

Would Increase Income Gap

Lower tariffs would mean cheaper consumer goods, but the advantage to Ontario industry in increased sales and efficiency might be even greater, increasing the income gap.

Much more care in transportation policies might assist have-not regions, especially if they emphasize transport systems within regions. Traditionally, east-west inter-regional movements had been assisted by Ottawa, but they had increased the primacy of central Canada instead of levelling up other areas.

Crowsnest Pass rates for hauling grain had slowed the pace of adjustment of Canadian agriculture. Freight subventions for Maritimes coal had served to "prolong the life of a declining industry at a high national cost relative to the benefits involved."

Discussing recent development programs, the council hazards a guess that many of the industries set up under the federal government's Area Development Agency would have been established in any case without $370,000,000 in federal incentives.

Assessing the economy's performance in the last year, the council notes that price increases continue to be rapid, widely distributed and persistent, "a matter of serious concern to us."

However, it expresses optimism about the prospects for an early return to economic expansion.

The economy should return to a more rapid growth rate, in line with the five-per-cent improvement in potential output envisaged by last year's annual review.

This would be a little lower than during the 1961-66 period, but higher than in the 1967 adjustment, when real growth was only 2.8 per cent.

NATO Rejects Charge Levelled by Russians

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — NATO sources today rejected as unfounded Soviet charges that the alliance prepared a military-political operation against Czechoslovakia before the Soviet invasion last month.

They said the accusation in the Communist party newspaper Pravda today was intended for Soviet and world Communist opinion as a justification of Soviet actions.

Commentator Yury Zhukov said NATO plans for its own reform in the year of "bridge-building" between East and West had been shown to be nothing but a mask.

Zhukov claimed the West German government and industrialists financed "counter-revolutionaries" in Czechoslovakia.

At the same time, he charged, leading West German Army officers visited Prague "taking advantage of the lack of vigilance" by Czechoslovakia to make contact with "opposition elements."

"Thus under cover of talk about the 'reconstruction' of NATO and its adaption to 'new tasks' in the era of the idyllic building of bridges between East and West, a massive military-political operation with far-reaching aims was being prepared," Zhukov said.

. . . NEWMAN

This means that the spending details of all 26 government departments as well as dozens of federal agencies will have to be considered and approved at an average pace of at least two departments per day.

In past parliamentary sessions supply debates have taken up as much as 75 days, and never less than 25 days. (The British Parliament, which has a similar system, allows 29 days for estimates and unlimited non-confidence motions.)

'Unduly Harsh'

While it's truse that supply motions have been all too often exploited and turned into time-wasters by the opposition, the 15-day limit seems unduly harsh, unless accompanying provisions are made for the detailed study of government spending by parliamentary committees.

● Question period is to be moved to the morning and cut in both length and scope. According to Liberal sources, the government House leader would rise each Monday to indicate which ministers would be available for questioning that week. This would help ministers trying to plan busy schedules, but it would also have the effect of limiting the areas in which the opposition could demand clarification of government policies or bring up emergency matters of urgent national concern.

● The complicated procedural method of presenting budgets would be revamped so that the many steps now necessary before fiscal resolutions can be tabled would be eliminated. This is a much needed improvement, not expected to meet much opposition.

Personalities

It's becoming obvious even now—a full week before the new Parliament meets—that one of the main deterrents to reaching a smooth intra-party agreement on these and other reforms will be the abrasive personality of Donald MacDonald, the Toronto lawyer who's the MP for Rosedale and president of the Privy Council.

MacDonald was hand-picked by the prime minister for the tricky assignment of conducting the government's parliamentary program, but the fact that his opposite number, Baldwin, the Conservative House leader who has always been an ardent advocate of parliamentary reform, is already in disagreement with MacDonald is a bad sign.

"I accept the fact that the government has to be strong, mobile and able to move quickly and firmly to meet the complex economic and social problems of the country," says Baldwin.

Endanger System

"But you also need a strong opposition to preserve the necessary checks and balances. These new rules, if they represent the trend of Liberal thinking, endanger the whole basis of our parliamentary system."

Baldwin and many other MPs feel too tight a rule structure—such as the one proposed—could destroy the basic give and take of parliamentary debate and in a way, seriously affect the rules' effectiveness since they obviously challenge agile determined MPs to find ways around them.

There has always been conflict between the desire to make any representative assembly more efficient and the need to preserve its open democratic character. It now looks as though this touch issue will be the subject of the first great debate of the Trudeau years.

Pressure Play Nixon's Goal

CHICAGO (CP) — Republican presidential candidate Richard Nixon said Wednesday night the United States should exert economic and diplomatic pressure on Russia to win greater freedom for the "captive people" of Czechoslovakia, Poland and other East European nations.

Speaking on television in a paid political broadcast that opened his campaign in the Middle West, the former vice-president declared that if elected president Nov. 5 he would:

1. Make the U.S. foreign aid program selective and conditional.

2. Withhold all aid from Arab states threatening peace in the Middle East, and maintain the balance of power in Israel's favor.

Chicago gave Nixon a tumultuous, thundering reception as this motorcade passed through the Loop, centre of the downtown section, to his hotel.

The Chicago Sun-Times estimated the crowds lining the route at 400,000. The Chicago Tribune quoted Police Capt. James Riordan as estimating it at 25.

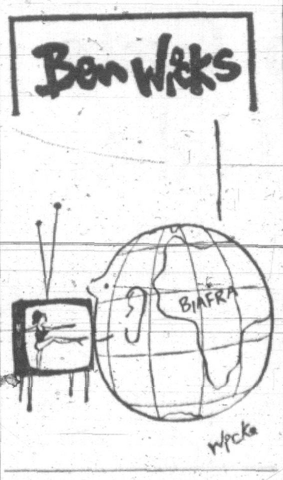
On foreign aid, Nixon said he did not believe in "sending money around the world to perpetuate institutions that ought to be changed."

He said much of the U.S. aid to India failed and too much aid to Latin America went into "enterprises and systems that ought to be changed."

In India, he said the aid should be given on "a case by case basis . . . to those enterprises we believe will be successful and believe will add to the total production of that country and will not subtract from it."

He said the U.S. was "in too many countries," adding: "We should zero in on those countries where it would be in the interests of the United States to see to it that those countries are strong economically.

"Certainly I would withhold aid from any country which directly or indirectly was providing aid and assistance to any enemy of the United States."



Air Strip Row Delays Biafra Food Supplies

LAGOS (AP) — A dispute over which airstrips to use threatened today to delay the Red Cross airlift of food to starving Biafrans as Nigerian federal troops seized more territory from the rebels.

The Nigerian government in Lagos agreed Tuesday to allow the Red Cross to fly food and medicine by day for a 10-day period to a Biafran airstrip near Uli Ethihiala. But sources in Lagos said the Biafrans want the food landed at an airstrip near Okigwe.

The federalists said neutralization of the Okigwe airstrip would block their troops from advancing on Umuahia, the headquarters of the Biafran chief of state, Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu. The Nigerian government claimed that the Biafrans want to keep the strip at Uli Ethihiala clear for planes bringing arms by night.

6 MILLION HOMELESS IN FLOODS

CALCUTTA (CP) — About 1,500,000 persons have been driven from their homes in floods that have swept more than 10,000 square miles of Bihar state, in eastern India, first official estimates here said today. Two persons are reported to have drowned.

Unofficial reports put the number of homeless at 6,000,000 and the death toll at 25.

Many cattle have been lost and much crop land damaged, and political parties say that Bihar, which had severe drought for the last two years, faces a new food crisis because of the floods.

Official reports from Rajasthan state said 69 persons died in other floods.

A few hundred miles away thousands of villagers face famine because of a water shortage due to the failure of the monsoon over the great Indian desert.

U.K. Labor Hands Gov't Sharp Rebuff

By JOHN LeBLANC

BLACKPOOL, England (CP)—The 100th annual conference of the 9,000,000-member Trades Union Congress today voted a stinging rebuff of the British Labor government by rejecting its wage-restraint program.

Then the TUC, historic progenitor of the Labor party, approved by the narrow margin of 34,000 votes out of 8,500,000 cast the congress' own policy of voluntary wage restraint in co-operation with the government. This policy had been approved in February with a majority of 500,000 votes.

The vote demanding that the government repeal legislation permitting it to curb wages by law was approved by 7,746,000 to 1,022,000 in the unit ballot. This was a majority of 6,724,000 against the government.

Under stringent legislation passed by Parliament this year, the government has the power to defer major wage increases for a year unless they are tightly linked to productivity. The unpopular measure is aimed at conserving resources for Britain's vital export drive.

The resolution against the government was sponsored by Frank Cousins, chairman of the Transport and General Workers' Union —Britain's largest— who quit as Prime Minister Wilson's technology minister in 1966 over policy differences.

The TUC voluntary curbs were approved by 4,266,000 to 4,232,000.

The votes came after six hours of hard-hitting debate in which some of Britain's top union leaders accused the Labor government of attempting to undo the hard-earned gains of 100 years of trade unionism.

The votes served as a warning to the government to expect tougher opposition to the government's efforts to hold wage raises to 3½ per cent in any 12-month period.

They also are expected to strengthen the determination of unions in the heavy-machinery industry to go ahead with a national strike called for Sept. 23.

On Wednesday, the TUC leadership narrowly steered off a resolution of wholesale condemnation of the government for "maintaining Tory economic policies"—including wage controls —but warned that the government will have to improve the gloomy unemployment picture if it wants worker co-operation.

Sidney Greene, Railway Union chief and head of the TUC's economic committee, said unemployment will reach almost 700,000 by next spring at its present rate of increase. This would be the highest since before the war. Jobless now total 514,000, or 2.2 per cent of the working force.

Air, Ground Attacks Blast Cong Forces

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese forces launched more air and ground assaults today to block Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops moving toward Saigon from the north and northwest.

But U.S. intelligence officers said the earliest the Communist could attack the capital is Sept. 15, and that any plans to attack may depend on their success in the outlying areas.

South Vietnamese rangers repulsed a force only 2½ miles southwest of Saigon Wednesday in the biggest outbreak of fighting near the capital since Communist troops battled their way into the city in May and June.

South Vietnamese headquarters said seven rangers and 31 Viet Cong were killed.

The attackers were believed part of a large reconnaissance force probing for weak points in Saigon's defences.

U.S. casualties surged again last week. The U.S. command said 408 U.S. troops were killed and another 2,513 were wounded.

TALKS RESUME IN MONTREAL SCHOOL CRISIS

MONTREAL (CP)— A special committee organized to solve the school-language problems of suburban St. Leonard was to resume meeting today after discussions collapsed Wednesday.

The talks are to be conducted against a background of picketing, boycotts, police-guarded registration and the occupation of a high school by about 80 French-speaking students protesting its transfer to English-speaking students.

U.S. Gov't Plans Controls On Flights at Busy Airports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major airlines say they expect U.S. government controls aimed at clearing the cluttered skies of New York, Chicago and Washington to become law by Nov. 1.

This was the airlines' resigned reaction Wednesday to the transportation department's listing of what would be the first-ever federal controls on air traffic.

But the pilots of small planes vowed a fight.

The regulations proposed by the transportation department would slash takeoffs and landings during peak hours at O'Hare Airport in Chicago, the world's busiest, by 82.

At New York's Kennedy International Airport peak traffic periods would see a drop by 48 takeoffs and landings an hour. Small planes would be barred from 5 to 8 p.m. daily.

Stuart Tipton, president of the Air Transport Association, representing the commercial airlines in the United States, didn't object to the proposals, although he said they should be considered only stopgap measures.

But the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, which counts 145,000 private pilots as members, said: "The AOPA intends to forcefully oppose this proposed rule making with every means at our command, while we continue to press for the fair and proper solutions to the air traffic management problems."

The Federal Aviation Administration plans a public hearing on the proposed limits Sept. 25.

The government warned the airlines last month to propose voluntary measures for trimming air congestion.

Air traffic controllers attracted attention to the problem by strictly enforcing safety clearances between planes, leading to delays of as long as five hours at busy East Coast airports.

The airlines came up with plans for a joint airline committee to act as a schedule co-ordinator and a scheme of sliding fare rates to encourage travel at slack periods.

The airlines meet with the Civil Aeronautics Board today to discuss the voluntary measures.

The transportation department proposals set an hourly limit of 80 takeoffs and landings at Kennedy, where as many as 128 ~~have been~~ recorded in a single hour.

Chicago's double-runway O'Hare has logged as many as 217, but would be restricted to 135.

At Washington National, just across the Potomac from the capital, the top limit would be 60 an hour. The same limit was proposed for La Guardia and Newark in the New York area.

Canada Gets Warning

VANCOUVER (CP) — There is a constant danger of a major mid-air collision involving flights over Canada, Vern Schwab, an Edmonton aviation law specialist, told the Canadian Bar Association convention Wednesday.

"Such a tragedy is likely to trigger a public outcry and public demand for drastic and immediate action," he said.

Mr. Schwab said the amount of air space in which planes can fly is becoming more crowded and in some parts of Canada there is not enough space left.

"Air traffic control measures will have to become more and more restrictive and each new measure will further diminish the right to free use of air space," he said.

He listed Toronto, Montreal, Windsor and Vancouver among areas of concern.

Alerting the Watch

CURRENT SOVIET ATTEMPTS to express astonishment at Western concern about a Czechoslovakian "domestic" incident are hardly convincing. Even without the emphasis which was placed on the Warsaw Pact throughout the brutal disciplining of its satellite, the Kremlin must have known that the effects of the military invasion would have marked effects on the West and particularly on NATO.

A few years of relative peace in Europe—broken mainly by alarms over Berlin—had engendered a state of quietude in NATO. The United States had returned more than 30,000 troops to this side of the Atlantic, France had withdrawn from close association with the NATO structure, Canada was about to consider a reduction in its European force under the agreement. There was, in fact, a definite trend toward cutting NATO back to a much smaller military presence, and perhaps concentrating more on long neglected other aspects—cultural and economic—of the alliance.

Into this situation the full-scale overnight invasion of Czechoslovakia by Russian tanks and troops, aided by forces from Poland, Bulgaria and Hungary and reserve activities in East Germany, burst like a bombshell. Europe was suddenly returned to the earlier days of the Cold War when the possibility of a Russian invasion was a prominent item in the West's defensive thinking. Moscow had demonstrated in very certain terms that when military action was in her own interests, then that military action would be taken. Domestic matter or not, a massive invasion had taken place and a whole nation had been subjugated within a matter of hours.

The reaction among NATO members has been immediate. Russia must have calculated such a result—must have known that plans for NATO reductions would be dropped and that increases in strength would almost inevitably follow. The situation was a clear demonstration that the need for Soviet action against its neighbor was deemed so urgent that the likely destruction of the recently amicable Western attitude carried little weight.

In any case, the Czechoslovakian disaster—perhaps not yet completed—along with possible action against Romania, has had the unfortunate effect of throwing the West back into an active defensive posture and forcing an alert of military forces when there were grounds for hoping a more peaceful era was in prospect. The bear has shown its claws, and the guards must go up.

A Binding Need

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT by raising mail rates has moved quickly to meet the cost of this summer's wage increase for the nation's postmen and place the service on a self-supporting basis. Prime Minister Trudeau said at the time that the public would have to pay the piper, and Postmaster General Kierans is now bringing home the economic facts of life.

Next, however, Mr. Trudeau must deal with the most pressing consequence of the postal strike: finding a way to ensure that it does not happen again. Presumably the government has recognized that legislation giving postmen the right to strike was a mistake, and is preparing alternative procedures. Public opinion was almost unanimous during the long and disruptive strike that such essential services as mail delivery must not be interrupted as the result of wage disputes. No country can afford disruption of its communication lifelines.

The problem is to provide a bargaining system that is fair to the government employee while at the same time protecting the rights of the public. Mr. Trudeau may be able to get some suggestions from the United States federal government which now is grappling with the same problem. Government workers there are required to renounce the right to strike when they take an oath of office. Nevertheless some militant members of the postal unions are promoting the idea of a strike with the object of challenging the no-strike clause in the courts.

In an attempt to avert this possibility the government in Washington is seeking improvements in the bargaining system which could break labor-management impasses. The Assistant Secretary of Labor, Mr. Thomas Donahue, recognizing this need, commented the other day: "If the right to strike is denied to public employees then the public employer has a responsibility to replace it with a procedure which insures fairness and finality and which makes collective bargaining meaningful. When an impasse is reached and the parties can't agree, there must be recourse to an outsider—to a neutral third party—who will provide a decision which will bind the parties."

The solution for Canada probably lies along these lines. In any case, the public will be looking to Mr. Trudeau during the forthcoming session of the new Parliament for some indication of how the government proposes to deal with the matter. Action must be taken before the next round of bargaining begins. Another strike in the postal service cannot be tolerated.

In Questionable Context

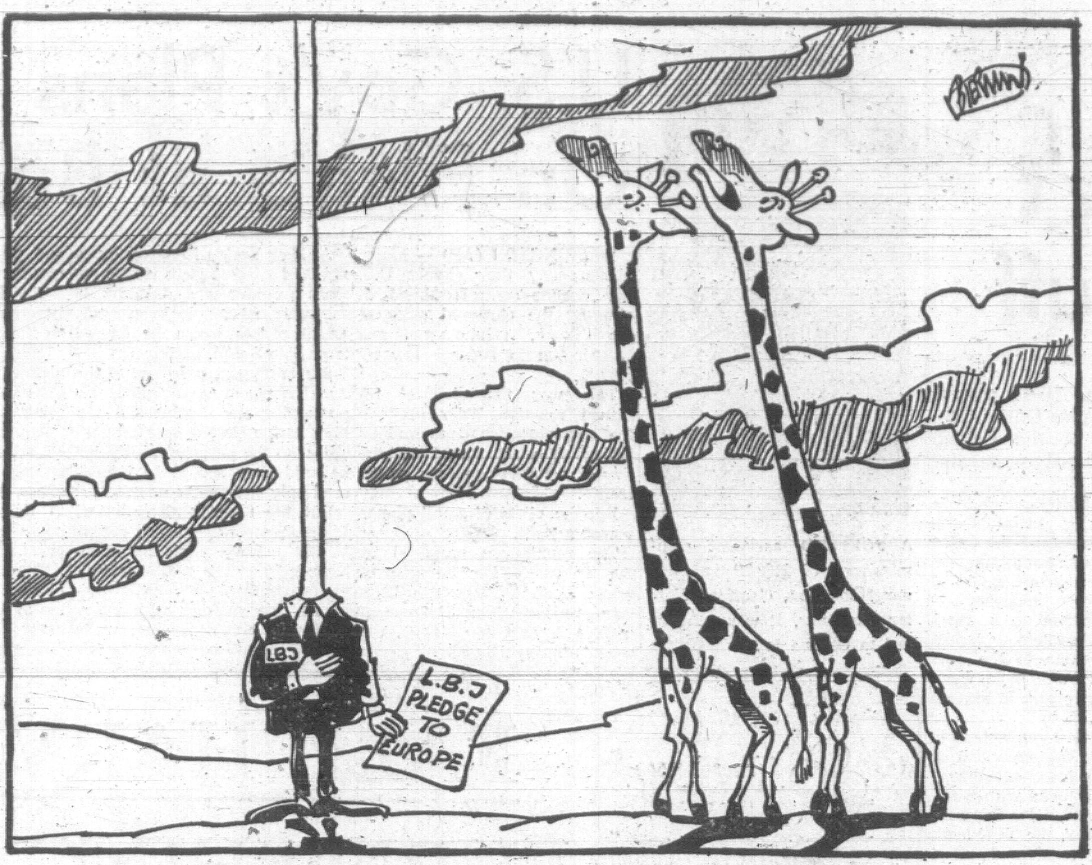
MR. T. C. DOUGLAS PLACED his plea for a just society in unusual context when he criticized Canadian values in the same speech in which he condemned Russian action in Czechoslovakia and American action in Vietnam.

"There is a double standard before the law," he said. "The same law applies to everyone, but some can pay fines, some can't; some can hire defence counsel, some cannot."

"We speak of the existence of equality," he added, "yet millions of our fellow citizens lack opportunities for training—good education, proper health care, decent housing."

These are familiar arguments from Mr. Douglas—and they have a basis of truth. But they gain nothing from the exaggerated, wild-swinging presentation which is Mr. Douglas' usual style. Canadian governments at all levels are pushing ahead with reforms in social, economic, educational and other fields as quickly as public opinion will support them.

Canada does not move quickly enough for Mr. Douglas, but he has not yet been able to persuade enough Canadians to let him take charge of the nation. And looking back — Saskatchewan under Mr. Douglas' administratoin for nearly two decades did not become a Mecca for all who love democracy.



"... Wow! ... Talk about sticking your neck out! ..."

Naturally Worthwhile

The British Columbia Nature Council in the July issue of its Newsletter, (editor, Mrs. Gladys Soulsby), has reminded its readers of situations meriting their concern; one of which has to do with the lack of organization of the naturalists, as described by Dr. M. T. Myres, Department of Biology, University of Calgary, and published in the January-February Canadian Audubon magazine. Mrs. Soulsby quotes his stressing "... an urgent need for a census of Canadian naturalists leading to a register of all Canadians interested in natural history, so that natural history news and information may be directed to them ..."

The British Columbia Nature Council in encouraging natural history groups to be federated in the Council in order to have a more effective voice in natural history matters. It is believed this is warranted by their increasing numbers and by the quality of their membership.

Mr. Myres has researched widely to give detailed analysis of the facts and figures he has assembled and printed in Canadian Audubon magazine. From his article and the recent Nature Council Newsletter there appears to be on the horizon a far-reaching organization of naturalists across Canada. This achievement may be furthered by backing the individual nature groups and supporting the Council.

Next Tuesday, the Victoria Natural History Society holds its first meeting for the winter season. Time, 8:00 p.m. Place, the Provincial Cafeteria in the Douglas Building.

On Thursday, September 19th, the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association will start its programme for the new season at 8:00 p.m. in the Provincial Cafeteria of the Douglas Building.

These two organizations belong to the British Columbia Nature Council. There are others on the Island and on the mainland. They are made up of all ages of people wishing to enjoy, learn, share and develop the mutual interest in one or more aspects of Nature. Worthwhile? Reflecting on the conditions in our troubled affluent society I think the answer is obvious. — Grace M. Bell, 742 St. Patrick St.

BY MAURICE WESTERN

Offers to Inform the Information Officers

THE task force set up to examine the information services of the federal government begins its work at an interesting time. There is widespread agreement that the severity of the information drought this summer exceeds anything experienced by the press gallery in the past decade. One fact is reasonably clear from the official announcement and subsequent comments of the task force chairman. Very little information about the inquiry into information is likely to reach the public. Mr. Fortier and his colleagues will make discreet approaches to interested parties within and without the government service and advise the ministers from within the sanctuary of the Privy Council.

Western

From certain of Mr. Trudeau's comments in the past, it would appear that the motivation for the study is a strong suspicion that the government is getting less than full value for the $7 million it spends on the salaries of some 300 persons designated as information officers. The mass of material moved in most seasons from the departments to the press gallery is quantitatively impressive. But this is not a very good test since the same thing could probably be said about the situation in Moscow.

Little Experience

What matters obviously is the quality of the product; whether we are getting the significant news in good time and in accurate form. From this standpoint, the composition of the task force perhaps leaves something to be desired. The three members and two special advisers are all admirable men but none apparently has had reporting experience as a member of the press gallery. This is evidently to be an exercise in self-examination with information personnel gazing thoughtfully, but reassuringly, on information personnel.

It seems to me that the oversight is of some importance because the government cannot be expected to be disinterested in its approach to news. In some cases, of course, information is properly refused; thus Mr. Trudeau has insisted rightly on the secrecy of cabinet discussions and has even declined to reveal whether or not a particular subject is on the cabinet agenda. Beyond this, however, ministers have a general interest — not necessarily corresponding to the public interest — in disclosing information at the time and in the form most advantageous to the government.

The Goal Is Vague

There have been lately some rather remarkable examples of secrecy in Ottawa; one of them the hush-hush meeting of education ministers. This may represent, in the words of Mr. Trudeau's release, "greater efficiency in the diffusion of official information;" certainly no one can accuse the government in this case of premature disclosure. If, however, it is a sample of the improvement of information services, which is the rather vague goal of the task force, it is to be hoped that zeal for improvement is a passing phenomenon in Ottawa.

Mr. Fortier and his colleagues, who disclaim any interest in news management, might do well at the outset to distinguish between the effort which goes into the manufacture of news releases and that which goes into the dissemination of news. It is probable that a high proportion of the Ottawa 400 rarely come in contact with the working press. Their labors on behalf of government go largely unrecognized because they are concentrated on the release. This may take 90 seconds to read but is generally so laden with technocratic phrases that the translation into news requires 30 minutes of questioning at a press conference.

At his meeting with correspondents on Friday Mr. Trudeau was queried about many subjects, both in the domestic and in the foreign field. In these circumstances, his announcement about the new parliamentary secretaries received little attention, although the final paragraph in his press release was a rather brilliant essay in obfuscation. It read:

"The role of parliamentary secretaries has been the object of some re-evaluation in the last few months. Their activities will reflect the results of this review."

A kindly critic might perhaps argue that this detracts little from the sum of human knowledge. But it does not appear to add much unless the inference is that the parliamentary secretaries are to function as secret agents, surfacing only occasionally so that we — and perhaps their ministers — may speculate about their roles in government.

Information officers are sometimes referred to protectively but inaccurately, as "news sources." They are not sources but reflectors and must naturally be on their guard lest they reflect too much. The source in most cases is the minister and, from the standpoint of public information, an accessible minister or qualified and unfettered official is more useful than a convoy of information officers wilth a bushel of carefully edited releases.

Mr. Fortier expects to make specific recommendations. They will not be public but the outcome will nevertheless be awaited with interest. It is doubtless to be expected that, as in the case of the parliamentary secretaries, the activities of the information officers "will reflect the results of this review."

Searching for a Place in U.S. Politics

HE was plainly a disconsolate, shaken young man. It is a jolting experience to lose at a convention, and when defeat comes in the first flush of political commitment, it is especially tough. He was one of the young who had enabled Eugene McCarthy to reach Chicago and whose attitude will bear on whether Hubert Humphrey reaches the White House. A leader in his class at Harvard with an inherited taste for politics, he is one of the young who stands now at difficult crossroads.

Bartlett

"It's going to be hard to support Humphrey," he groans. His reasoning is complicated, part emotion from the long struggle and part suspicion that Humphrey is only an amiable camouflage for Lyndon Johnson's policies. He doesn't dislike the vice-president, but he doesn't find in him what he seeks most urgently, a promise of "major surgery" in American political life.

Galling Experience

What are the cancers which call for this surgery? They are first the war and then the domestic blemishes — "the racism, the apathy, the loss of idealism, the TV dinners." The convention was a galling experience because it seemed to ratify all that is wrong.

Does Richard Nixon offer the promise of this surgery? He has been so busy in his assault on the Democratic establishment that he has had little time to ponder what a Republican administration will bring. But he speculates that this may be a time when it is better to create a mess and start fresh, to let the Democratic party go down the drain so that it can be reborn in a new spirit.

The young man finds himself in a political vacuum. He can simply ignore the campaign or he can join the "movement" of revolutionaries, the strange new breed of students who talk excitedly of spectacular blows against society. He sees these radicals for the nihilists they are and they do not attract him. To join the movement is to "drop out," a course which holds little promise for one who wants to make his idealism count.

Agitated Ciphers

The drop-outs pose no practical challenge for Humphrey. They are agitated ciphers, simple kids, brilliant exhibitionists, rebels with whatever causes lay at hand. They are grist for the sociologists' mill, but they offer nothing to a candidate because their political action is a process of spitting in the public's eye.

But thoughtful young dissenters like the Harvard boy will be a test of Humphrey because they are within his reach and he has an obligation as well as a need to reclaim their sympathies. McCarthy has stimulated these young and now Humphrey has a chance to bring them into the system.

The new generation poses a challenge to the two-party system because the young are not attracted by its labels. Dismayed 18 months ago by surveys showing that only 35 per cent of college students call themselves Democrats, the Democratic National Committee launched a campaign for campus support. It has produced little response.

Both parties have made a special reach for young sympathies in their platforms. Both endorsed the vote for 18-year-olds along with reform of the draft. Both invited the young to participate in shaping America and the Democrats went further in proposing a commission to make youth's influence felt.

But the problem is more in the young themselves than in the parties. They have to wrestle with their own impatience as well as with their diffidence. They have conjured up symbols like "Teddy is good — Hubert is bad" and, until they blend some greys into their black and white view of political life, they will find it hard to join the dialogue.

They learned with McCarthy that they can have an impact and they are going to have to work out the next step for themselves. It is important that they decide to apply their reform instincts to the two-party system instead of ignoring it.

Better Value In Television

Toronto Daily Star

CBC spending took an extra-large jump last year, because of Centennial programming, raising the corporation's net operating cost to the taxpayer to nearly $146 million.

There has been some public grumbling about this — and there should be — but care should be taken to see that the criticism hits the right target.

In The Star's opinion, the point is not that $146 million a year is too much to pay for a national broadcasting service. That's only 1.3 per cent of the federal budget last year and less than a quarter of 1 per cent of the value of our national production in goods and services.

A really satisfactory service might cost us a good deal more, considering the unavoidably high prices of both equipment and talent in broadcasting, especially on the television side.

But Canadians would be justifiably reluctant to hand over a lot more funds to the CBC unless they could be assured of better value for their money than it is giving them now.

CBC radio still maintains high standards compared to most private broadcasting. CBC television is a different story.

It slavishly follows the pattern of American commercial television, snipping and breaking programs to get the advertising plugs in, and filling the prime evening hours with the same sort of junky light enteraiment that can be seen on the commercial networks.

The CBC recovers less than a quarter of its total costs from advertising revenues — a proportion which may be too high, at that. But why should the public shell out the rest for television that so nearly duplicates commercial TV in type and quality?

Looking Back

From the Times, Sept. 5, 1908.

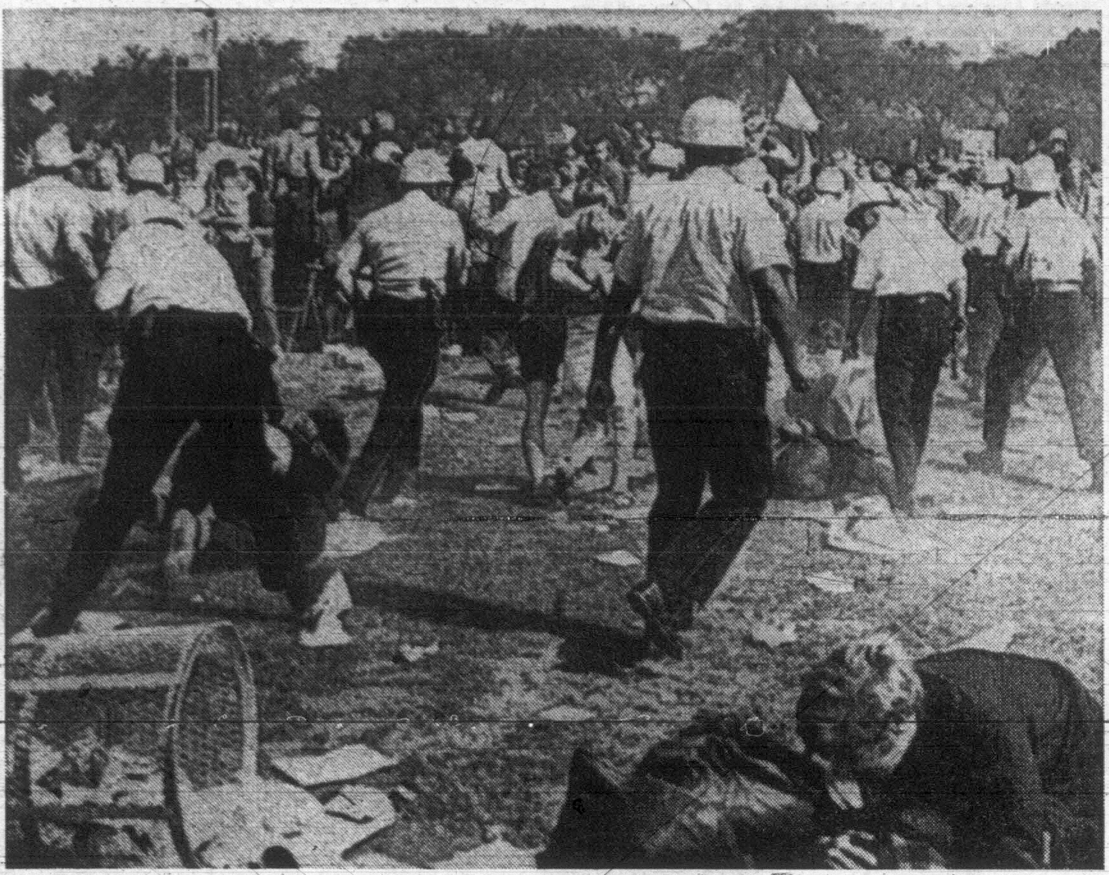
There have been great celebrations on the Indian reserves during the past week where upwards of 1,000 Indians have been gathered, from the most part from the Fraser River and Rivers Inlet fishing grounds.

They have been attending a potlatch given by Jacob Chipps, awarded the Royal Humane Society Medal for efforts to save his daughter from drowning. The West Coast Indian has distributed $1,000 in cash and goods among his friends.

Kids and Cops: Why They Don't Get Along Anymore

By NICHOLAS VON HOFFMAN

CHICAGO—It was a grand party, the likes of which the town hasn't had since Bath House John and Hinky Dink were the aldermen of the old first ward and the only way you could campaign down there was with a loudspeaker strapped on top of an armored car.



CHICAGO POLICEMEN seemed to many observers to be unnecessarily enthusiastic about their work last week in dispersing gatherings of youthful demonstrators during Democratic national convention. Antagonism between the two groups amounts to "cultural class warfare" says Nicholas von Hoffman, who reported the Chicago conflict for the Washington Post.

It was a great, head-bashing frolic that Big Bill Thompson, Chicago's brawling mayor of the Harding era, would have enjoyed, the skull-splitting politics of Richard Daley's youth.

By the end of the week here, however, there were few people who were willing to put the four days of rioting policemen and battling young people in any sort of perspective. On every side there was unspeakable rage.

Daley was bellowing about hippies, newsmen, assassins and communists. The cops were wiping the blood off their night sticks and looking around for anybody else who wanted a crack on the noggin. The calmest of the liberals were telling the joke about the Jewish delegate who said to a co-religionist, "Whatever you do, if they tell you to take a shower, don't!"

Other Cities Too

The accusations of communism and fascism make what happened on the streets of Chicago exceedingly difficult to understand. It makes it appear to be a unique grudge fight between Mayor Daley and the McCarthyites, the news media, the hippies and the free-floating, radical left.

In fact what some people are now calling "the Chicago police riot," isn't unique. Many cities have had them. The most bloody have been the Century Plaza fray in Los Angeles last spring, the Oakland battles of the fall, and the melees in Grand Central Station, Washington Park and Whitehall Street in New York City.

Historically, the police have always been used for political and social control but in the past they have done their work with almost unanimous support from the middle and upper classes. Now this is not so. Among the thousands who stood across the street from the Conrad Hilton Hotel in the world's first political be-in were some of the richest people in America.

The children of the rich and the suburban well-to-do make up most of the amorphous cultural entity that is called the New Left.

The character of the demonstrators thus goes a long way in explaining the furor over what the police have done. They are not blacks or factory workers fighting in obscure parts of the city, but the sons and daughters of influential people battling downtown.

Furthermore, they do battle, usually in a non-violent fashion, but sometimes not, if they have the cops on anything like equal terms. These are rough kids from the suburbs brought up on plenty of orange juice, in superb physical shape. Anybody who thinks they're a bunch of cowardly draft-dodgers will change their minds after they've had an encounter with them like the bleeding Chicago cop who took a tremendous left hook on the jaw and was heard mumbling, "Christ, if they could get those bastards in the army, they'd end the war in six weeks."

Despite the number of beatings and clubbings, the police action has been relatively moderate though more conspicuous than when the fighting goes on in the ghettoes. No one was killed, which is not to say it won't happen in the future as new clashes between youth and police occur.

Arson Attempted

Several attempts were made to burn buildings during the spring Columbia revolts and there were unconfirmed but believable reports that some of the crazies under police siege in Lincoln Park last week were armed. Increasingly, American youth is coming to hate cops for a variety of reasons that are as much cultural as they are political.

Kids like to hang on street corners and on the sidewalks of suburban shopping centres; the police are suspicious of any gathering of people, but particularly of the young, who are strong and unpredictable. Kids often dress and wear their hair in ways that lower middle class policemen consider immoral.

All week long City-Wide Three, the Chicago police emergency radio band, referred to the demonstrators as hippies: "A group of 500 hippies are marching north on State Street apparently without leaders. Their destination is not yet known . . . a band of 75 to 100 hippies are moving south on the 300 block of Dearborn Street, etc., etc."

Kids smoked pot everywhere all the time. They were smoking it as they stood across the street from the Hilton listening to everybody from Sen. McCarthy and John Kenneth Galbraith to Allen Ginsberg, Dick Gregory and Phil Ochs.

Kids hate cops for taking their pot away and arresting them, just as they hate them for enforcing curfews, constantly frisking them and catching them up in a judicial system which does not provide them with a trial by a jury of their peers.

Felt Cheated

The police are often called on to enforce youth's disenfranchisement from ordinary political processes. When Mayor Daley would not give them a parade permit or tickets to the convention, it was the men in baby blue helmets who had to back up these decisions on kids angered out of their heads at having tried to work "within the system" but who felt they had been cheated out of their primary victories by those they like to call "dirty old men."

The mayor and his police department see it differently. They are lower middleclass Irish with a strong streak of puritanism who find the language and sexual behavior of upperclass kids from the better universities unforgiveable. In times past, the Chicago police have protected Negro demonstrators singing "We Shall Overcome" from white mobs although they didn't like to do it. But the taunts and chants of the kids were simply too much.

At one point several thousand of them in front of the Hilton began chanting, ". . . you, LBJ, . . . you, LBJ." Time and again you could run up against young people singing out even stronger obscenities. At one point City-Wide Three sent the following message: "Two cars in the vicinity of International Ampitheatre are passing obscene literature, a leaflet of a pig in a police officer's uniform. Pick them up."

Harpers and Atlantic Monthly now regularly print some of the more vivid four letter words of the English language; they have come into increasing use in ordinary conversation among the youth of the upper classes (this is part of their love affair with the language and culture of the black ghetto), but for the Irish and Polish, such behavior is more immoral, more indecent, more infuriating than the Viet Cong flags that were waved in the faces of the police. And Daley is the chief ethnarch of Chicago, a prototype of the lower middle class.

Goes to Church

Not that these groups don't use such language. Daley shouted up to Abraham Ribicoff while the Connecticut senator was blasting him from the podium. But Daley does not use obscenity on a microphone. Here is a man who has a daughter a nun, goes to church regularly and probably has lace antimacassars on the living room furniture.

Mayor Baited

He was fighting cultural class warfare, responding to public obscenity. Some of his opponents knew he would, betted they could bait him into overkill by flashing those words in front of him and his police. So Abby Hoffman, one of the chief yippies and top sociopolitical needlers, walked around with an obscenity painted on his forehead. He was arrested and said that he was beaten at the stationhouse.

It is the cultural content of what the kids were doing that explains the exact character of much of the police behavior. "They're killing the best kids in America!" Mary McGrory, the much-loved columnist of the Washington Star, wept when she saw the bloody heads of the McCarthy kids whom the police had sapped in their hotel rooms. They were not killing them, they were punishing them. You could look at much of what happened as mass spanking, administered unhappily by men whose rage was savage and almost sadistic.

Police Revolt

So far municipal officials who've tried to keep the police somewhat in check have not fared very well. Lindsay in New York is regarded as hippie by his own police department who are in open revolt. Here in Chicago, the police commissioner was rebuked for leniency by the mayor during the April Martin Luther King riots. As a consequence the man was so badly undercut he was in no position to restrain his subordinates during convention week.

Sometimes police have been able to keep their cool in the face of the radical young. San Francisco and the Monterey Peninsula have seen vast gatherings of young people where only a few policemen were present and there were no disorders.

On these occasions the police have usually been guided by urbane, well educated officials with a sense of humor who know how to improvise when faced with new kinds of situations. The chief ethnarch of Chicago is not known to have a sense of humor; not even his friends claim he is well read. And he has a record of being absolutely helpless when caught up in situations that are outside his experience of tribal, traditional politics.

The police are hardly better-suited by background to deal with the shaggy, mind-blowing political agitators who have come to the fore in the late '60s. These real police bear no resemblance to the splendid chaps one sees cavorting around capturing crooks on TV.

Stick Together

They are an ingrown order of men who tend to stick together on duty and off; their occupation makes them slightly paranoid for they habitually see man at his worst; since much of their work is putting people in cages they make other people nervous, even people who know some individuals richly deserve to be put in cages.

In the depression police work offered security, a relatively good wage and often a means of social advancement. Now this is no longer so except for blacks and other impoverished minority groups.

Most whites will not be a policeman for any amount of money with the result that police departments may have to recruit men who should be in some other line of work. (It is interesting to note that there were very few complaints of brutality made against black policemen.)

Shoot Over Gap

People are leaving town guessing how young people are going to react to what has happened. They are saying there will be disillusionment, that they will ultimately swing to Humphrey or Humphrey to them, that the fourth party is now in business, that the radicals are reaping up bushels of new, horribly angry recruits for a wholesale autumn campus onslaught.

All or none or some of the guesses may be correct, but what is unarguable is that there will be more shooting across the generation gap.

'Atmosphere Thick With Fear and Mistrust'

By DAN MORGAN

PRAGUE — This has become Franz Kafka's city again.

The intellectuals, writers and journalists who spearheaded the revolution in humane communism, now aborted, have been driven out of the fading late summer sunshine back into the underground half light of fleeing meetings and false identities.

Their institutions, and with them their fragile network of communications, have been quickly smashed.

The ones who have not fled or been arrested are in disorganized retreat; frightened for their physical safety, they have gone into hiding. The atmosphere of the city is again thick with fear and mistrust, as it was in January before the fall of Stalinist Antonin Novotny.

Editors of the major blacked-out newspapers decided to continue publishing clandestinely after hearing the conditions for resuming normal operations. When Russian unit officers allowed them into their barred offices again, they found chaos. Some reported vodka bottles and excrement on the floors.

When they asked under what terms they could resume printing, the Russian officers said that "selected" editors could receive Soviet passes to enter and leave and that 30 to 50 Soviet troops would be stationed in each of the buildings with sentries in the halls.

This, they were told, was "to protect the legitimate journalists in their work from being attacked or interfered with by counter-revolutionaries."

Though Premier Oldrich Cernik has told journalists that he would try to persuade the Soviets to let Czechoslovak police and army units do this job until the withdrawal of a uniformed presence could be sanctioned, the general view is that free journalism is dead in Czechoslovakia for the foreseeable future.

* * *

As life begins to return to normal, the true situation is dawning on the liberals. The editors of Literany Lysti, the radical weekly which was the catalyst of the reform process and a thorn in Moscow's side since March, have vowed never to print under controls again. All are said to be hunted.

So far only two hastily composed one-page skeleton editions have been smuggled downtown. The paper's brilliant editor, A. J. Liehm, is said to be in Paris and other of its writers are hiding in country towns.

The fate of Prof. Eduard Goldstuecker, chairman of the writers' union, and intellectual emeritus of the freedom movement, is uncertain, as is that of writer Pavel Kohut, drafter of a recent appeal for firmness by the Czechoslovak leadership, and Martin Vaculik, author of the "2,000 words" manifesto, which the orthodox country took as a Luther-like challenge to Communist dogmatism.

The mood of demoralization and fear in a city which two weeks ago enjoyed full freedom of speech is almost unbelievable. Journalists have suddenly become invisible, not answering their phones, never going home, and refusing contacts with westerners they met in downtown hotels in July.

Soviet agents, identifiable by the loaf of fresh baked bread many carry under their arms, have been spotted all over, which makes contact with the underground more difficult. One journalist asked a friend to put him in touch with acquaintances in the intellectual world. He was told "not one of them will see you anymore."

Meetings must be arranged on street corners or in taxis.

One member of the club of engaged nonparty persons (Kan) which wanted to establish a constructive opposition to the Communists — but with their consent — has now unscrewed the nameplate from his apartment door.

This has all happened so quickly that some journalists and others still cannot believe it. Few expected it.

Only three weeks ago, a broadcaster from Radio Prague said "we have all the trumps in our hands and we feel secure." Today he is in Vienna, trying to decide whether to return to his country.

Household Bugs Easy to Control

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL

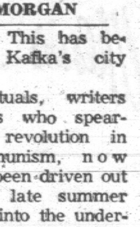
Director, Provincial Museum

Dear Dr. Carl: Now that letters are moving again, would like to say that I was interested in your recent article in the Victoria Times, referring to the sowbug, etc.

I noticed that you made no reference to these creatures in houses, together with earwigs, the occasional ant, clicking beetle and my special horror, the wolf spider . . .

Another article on the control of such things would be of great interest to other home owners or residents besides myself, as the age of the house seems to make no difference. — M.W.

Most of these creatures normally inhabit the out-of-doors; the environment inside a house is definitely not to their liking. If they are found here they have come in by accident or through unusual circumstances.



Carl

For example sowbugs and their relatives may be carried into a home on firewood or any other material that is slightly damp. In the dry atmosphere of a house they die quite rapidly. If they are consistently present, as our correspondent implies above, I would suspect that the building involved has some serious construction fault that allows moisture to accumulate and persist.

If this is so, more serious trouble than caused by sowbugs is in store as consistent dampness encourages termites and rot. Removing the source of water and careful inspection of wood and other materials before being carried indoors will prevent sowbugs from becoming a pest.

The situation is somewhat the same with earwigs. While a few of the more venturesome ones may come into a house of their own accord, most of these unwelcome visitors are brought in accidently on flowers from the garden or from washing left on the line overnight.

Earwigs are nocturnal in habit; by day they hide in vegetation, particularly deep-bodied blooms or plants with leaves fitting tightly around the stem. They also secrete themselves in cracks in containers left in contact with the ground or in blankets, clothing, rugs, tents or other similar objects left outdoors for a day or two. Consequently all such materials should be inspected and given a good shake before being moved indoors if it is desired to keep earwigs out of the house.

However, earwigs in the house can be eliminated fairly easily. It is no trick to evict them by sweeping them up in a dustpan or by brushing them directly out of the door or window.

A slower method but equally effective is to place domestic-type insect spray or powder in areas where these pests are seen or where they are most likely to walk. Such insecticides will kill earwigs and any other insect including ants and click beetles that make contact with them but it may take a day or two to complete the job.

In the meantime any residue will deal with the next lot as they arrive and yet it is harmless to people or pets if applied as directed.

Spiders present a different problem. They are much more likely to invade a house and while they are relatively harmless they are usually not welcome because of the webs they spin or because most people just don't like their looks.

Spiders are able to enter buildings through the narrowest crack beneath doors or around windows; it is practically impossible to keep them out. However, it is relatively easy to deal with the web-spinning varieties; persistent removal of the web by broom, vacuum or duster will soon eliminate the spinner.

●

Ordinary insecticide is usually not effective since it is designed for insects, not spiders, but extra heavy doses will discourage them if not kill them.

Wolf spiders, the "special horror" of many people, are almost impossible to control. Houses are not usually tightly enough constructed to keep them out and as these creatures are constantly on the prowl, usually males in search of mates, there is no telling when and where they will turn up.

Some consolation may be found in the fact that wolf spiders build no messy web and they will probably leave the house at the first opportunity provided they don't fall into the bath from which they cannot escape.

JOHNSON POPULARITY HITS RECORD LOW

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—President Johnson's popularity among Americans has hit a record low, the Gallup poll says.

A survey shows that only 35 per cent of those questioned approved of the way the president is performing his job, the poll said Wednesday. Some 52 per cent disapproved.

Johnson's previous low in popularity was 36 per cent last March, just before he said he was limiting bombing of North Vietnam and would not seek re-election.

New Funds Ease School Backlog

The provincial cabinet Wednesday allocated $850,000 in borrowed funds to two local school boards to help catch up on construction backlog.

They were among 13 school districts sharing in a $5.2 million 20-year bond issue at 6.6 per cent released by the provincial government to cover projects approved in past years by ratepayers.

The order allows Greater Victoria school board to borrow $300,000 for completion of Blanshard Elementary and Shoreline Junior Secondary schools.

It also permits Greater Victoria board to borrow another $300,000 to pay for 13 portable classrooms obtained for this week's school openings and permanent additions to Reynolds Secondary and Victoria West Elementary schools.

Sooke school board was allocated a $250,000 borrowing which will be used to complete payment for the new Edward Milne Secondary School, a new four-room Rocky Point elementary school and a four-room addition to Happy Valley Elementary School.

Stabbed to Death

EDMONTON (CP) — A 35-year-old man, Larry William Van Olne of Vancouver, was stabbed to death Tuesday night in the washroom of a downtown hotel in the city's fifth murder this year, the second in two weeks.

STANDING amid some of his choice chrysanthemums is A. H. (Andy) Anderson, 904 Island Road. He will be displaying some of them at the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society's annual show in the Centennial United Church Hall. "Andy" has been a member of the society for 22 years and an exhibitor for 20 years, and many times has won the Grand Aggregate Trophy. The show will be open Friday from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. The blooms will be auctioned off at the end of the show.

New Flu Virus Raises Fears

By STUART AUEKBACH
The Washington Post

A new strain of flu now spreading through Hong Kong and Singapore may cause an unexpected epidemic in the U.S. this winter, a committee of experts said in Atlanta Wednesday.

The new flu bug is traveling around the world with the speed of a jet plane. It may be carried to the U.S. by servicemen stationed in the Far East.

Two months ago, the U.S. public health service advisory committee on immunization practices predicted that the U.S. would be relatively free from flu this year because of an epidemic last year that hit all but four states.

In a meeting at the national communicable disease centre in Atlanta, the experts reversed themselves as a result of July's epidemic in Hong Kong.

Dr. David J. Sencer, director of the disease centre, said in an interview that the new strain is a distant relation to the flu virus prevalent last winter.

LIMITED PROTECTION

He said flu injections for last winter's strain and antibodies built up by victims of last year's epidemic will offer only "limited protection" against the new virus.

The advisory committee recommended injections with a newly-formulated vaccine that will act only against the new virus.

Sencer said the experts do not predict an epidemic as serious as the one that spread around the world in 1957. But, he said, the epidemic could be as bad as last year's.

Union Backs Conciliation Board Raise

VANCOUVER (CP)—Officials of the Teamsters Union and Laborers Union fanned out through British Columbia Wednesday to advise about 10,000 members to accept pay increases of 83 cents an hour over two years.

The wage proposals are contained in unanimous conciliation board reports, which also recommend a shorter work week for construction laborers and drivers in B.C.

Involved are three locals of the Laborers and the Building Material, Construction and Fuel Truck Drivers' local of the Teamsters.

Employers have not yet stated whether they will accept the conciliation board recommendations.

The laborers' rate is currently $3.24 an hour for a 40-hour week. Drivers' base rate is $3.40.

The 37½ - hour work week would be instituted two weeks from the date of contract signing.

Before the Magistrate

One quick blow to a youth's jaw, causing a double fracture, resulted in a conviction of assault causing bodily harm for another youth Wednesday.

Magistrate William Ostler found John Newton, 18, of 2164 Ferndale, guilty of assaulting Elwood Thomas, also 18, and a friend of the accused. Newton, who had pleaded not guilty at an earlier hearing, was represented by lawyer Ken Murphy. He will be sentenced Sept. 10.

Sgt. George Davison of Saanich police said he interviewed Newton June 28 concerning an assault upon Thomas early June 23. He detailed to the court a statement given by Newton at that time in which he admitted striking Thomas after an argument outside his (Newton's) house.

Following testimony of Saanich detective Frank Briers, who read the statement, the magistrate complimented Sgt. Davidson on his "remarkably good performance" in giving the contents of the statement from his memory "almost word for word."

Thomas told the court he had a loud and obscene argument with the accused over a car and also admitted inviting Newton to hit him about "four or five times." He said that he started the swearing and that once he laid his hand on Newton's shoulder.

Newton said he and Thomas "were quite good friends" and that he didn't want to fight him. He said he was "fed up" and ready to fight at the end of the argument. He admitted in court to hitting Thomas.

Following Newton's conviction Magistrate Ostler said both the accused, Newton and their friends (who also testified) all appeared to be quite decent people. He said he regretted to see them in court on this matter.

Newton and Thomas shook hands at the conclusion of the trial.

Island Distribution Centre was fined $200 following a guilty plea to a contravention of the Income Tax Act.

Court was told the company failed to remit $131.40 to the Receiver General of Canada during May. The money represented deductions from employees.

A 19-year-old youth who pleaded guilty to assaulting a 15-year-old girl in a downtown restaurant will be sentenced Sept. 11.

Court was told Kenneth Wayne Howard hit the girl several times while she was sitting at the counter of the Majorette Restaurant, 1313 Douglas, Aug. 8. When she fell to the floor he started dragging her by the hair and later pushed her against a machine.

The girl was not injured by the assault. She told the court she had dated the accused before but had stopped seeing him about a week before the incident.

A pre-sentence report is being prepared.

Rodney Fredericks, 3028 Jutland, was fined $350 when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte told the court Fredericks was observed by police driving on Craigflower Road in an erratic manner Aug. 18 for one quarter of a mile.

Fredericks' licence was also suspended.

Fined for careless driving were Alexander Hutchison, 2550 Arbutus, hit trees on Arbutus Road Sunday, $40; John Reti, 368 Burnside, hit parked car on Bay Street July 27, $35; John Demacedo, 1460 Oxford, accident at Esquimalt and Catherine July 19, $40; Choong Woon Yuen, 1411 Government, accident on Oak Bay Avenue Aug. 12, $35.

The trial of a 20-year-old youth charged with possession of marijuana will continue Sept. 10.

John C. Pendray, 3071 Larkdowne, earlier pleaded not guilty and is represented by lawyer Robert Price.

Tuesday court was told Pendray and a female acquaintance were observed by police in the playground area of Beacon Hill Park shortly after midnight July 25.

Russia Is Sensitive To Own Image: Sharp

By STEPHEN SCOTT

UNITED NATIONS (CP). — External Affairs Minister Sharp of Canada was on firm ground when he said Wednesday that Russia is sensitive to world reaction to her invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Since the invasion by Soviet and other Warsaw pact troops two weeks ago Russia has fought to prevent that reaction from becoming a United Nations condemnation.

The fight has included attacks on Canada, more particularly George Ignatieff, her ambassador to the UN.

The latest attack came Wednesday in the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda. It said discussions now are taking place in the Canadian UN mission among Western allies that "resemble the conduct of plotters working out another gamble."

DEBATE A THREAT

It is apparent that the Soviet Union regards council debate on the invasion a serious threat to the pacification of the Czechoslovak people. One indication of this is the new censorship laws imposed in Czechoslovakia which forbid playing up of actions of the council.

The Western powers won a minor victory when a majority of the council voted for a resolution condemning the invasion. The Soviet Union vetoed that resolution but it could not hide the vote of 10-2 in favor with three abstentions. India and Algeria, two of the abstainers, said they did not condone the invasion.

The resolution was sponsored by the same eight countries, including the Western Big Three and Canada, that supported Ignatieff's follow-up resolution calling on Secretary-General U Thant to seek to ensure the safety of Czechoslovak reformist leaders thought to be imprisoned by the invading forces.

That matter was dropped when the Czechoslovak-Russian agreement on troop withdrawal was announced in Moscow, along with information that it was negotiated with reformists from Prague.

CROWDS CHEER SOLO VOYAGE

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (Reuters) — Cheering crowds and a civic reception greeted Viennese-born yatchsman Wolf Hausner, 27, when he arrived here today to end a 22,5000-mile solo voyage from Australia in a home-made catamaran.

Harbor entrance piers were packed as Hausner sailed to an anchorage in his plywood craft to meet designer Erick Manners who sold him plans for the boat for £40 five years ago. He began his voyage in May last year.

Campaign Started at UBC To Save Telescope Project

VANCOUVER (CP) — A campaign headed by Dr. Vladimir Okulitch, dean of science at the University of British Columbia, has been started to save the Queen Elizabeth telescope project and keep astronomy alive in Canada.

Last month the federal government announced the $18,000,000 development already started on Mount Kobau near Osoyoos, in the Okanagan, will be cancelled because of its cost.

The 157-inch reflecting telescope would have been one of the most powerful instruments of its kind in the world.

"I will do everything I can to keep the project alive," Dr. Okulitch said Wednesday. "Otherwise, future Canadian astronomers will have to train and work outside the country.

"It will be the death of astronomy as a growing science in Canada."

He said he will ask Ottawa to delay the sale of the $1,100,000 fused silica mirror, already made in its rough form and ready for final polishing, until all chances of reviving the project are dead.

Grinding and polishing the mirror blank was to have been done at UBC where the giant piece of equipment now is being stored.

Dr. Okulitch suggested the telescope be made a joint project of all Canadian universities.

"If this idea is not accepted, perhaps we can finance the project through public subscription," he said. "Already some $4,500,000 has been spent on it."

Tories Seek Details Of Grit Allegations

WHITEHORSE, Y. T. (CP) — Erik Nielsen, Conservative MP for the Yukon, said Wednesday the Yukon Progressive Conservative Association has filed a request for details of alleged irregularities in the June 25 Federal election.

The action follows a petition by the Yukon Liberal Association asking that election results in the Yukon be declared void. The petition contained 99 alleged irregularities.

Tuesday, Mr. Nielsen termed the action "nonsense," and added Wednesday that he probably would remain in the Yukon until the action is considered by Mr. Justice John Parker of the Yukon Territorial Court.

Nielsen won re-election June 25 by defeating Liberal candidate Chris Findlay by 62 votes. The Liberal Association petition alleges that 99 persons were a party to irregular or illegal voting.

The Conservative Association's counter action seeks an order requiring the Liberal Association to provide a written account of all particulars of all circumstances in the petition.

Mr. Nielsen said that he will also apply for a court order that if the Liberal Association does not deliver the written information, the entire petition be struck out and proceedings be discontinued.

City Bishop Has Audience With Queen

The Queen asked for Bishop De Roo.

The Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria was an observer at the recent Lambeth Conference in London, England, and was invited to a garden party at Buckingham Palace with Anglican bishops from all over the world.

"I was just getting a cup of tea when an official came over and said the Queen wished to see me," Bishop De Roo said.

"We had a very pleasant chat and I was much impressed by her knowledge of church matters and particularly the ecumenical movement."

At 44, Bishop De Roo was the youngest delegate at the conference while Anglican Archbishop Harold Sexton—80 last May—was the eldest and most senior bishop attending.

"The Queen talked with me of her last visit to Victoria in 1959," the archbishop said. "She is as charming as ever and hoped to return here before too long."

Training Resumed

The 2289-5th Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery Cadet Corps will resume training at the Bay Street Armories Friday at 7:30 p.m. Boys aged 13-18 wishing to join the corps should attend at that time.

PILOT DOUSES ENGINE FIRE

VANCOUVER (CP)—A B.C. Airlines twin-engined amphibious aircraft with nine persons aboard landed safely at Vancouver International Airport Wednesday when an engine caught fire shortly after take-off.

Capt. Jack Malischewski, pilot of the Grumman Mallard, triggered a fire extinguishing device and settled the plane back on the runway. Damage was light and there were no injuries.

The plane was bound for Ocean Falls.

'B.C. Medicare Unacceptable In Ontario'

TORONTO (CP) — British Columbia's version of medical care insurance would be "unacceptable to doctors in Ontario," the general secretary of the Ontario Medical Association said today.

Dr. Glenn Sawyer said in an interview that B.C. doctors who do not belong to the provincial scheme are harassed by regulations and red tape.

British Columbia and Saskatchewan entered the federal medical care plan July 1—the only two provinces to enter on the starting date.

Dr. Sawyer said a B.C. doctor who does not belong to the plan must have a signed agreement before he treats a patient insured under the plan.

The agreement between the doctor and patients must specify "the amount the charge will exceed the schedule of costs prescribed by the commission," he said.

MUST TELL PERSON

"Before the doctor who has opted out may render service to an insured person he must notify the insured person in writing."

Dr. Sawyer said that this rule could impede treatment in an emergency situation.

"The diabolical aspect of this is that the patient will not be reimbursed unless these conditions are met.

"Those who wrote the B.C. regulations have made it quite plain they don't want any doctors dealing directly with their patients."

He said it will only be a matter of time "until all provinces are forced to accept the federal proposals."

The "worrisome part of it is that legislation enacted in one province has a habit of being repeated, almost word for word by other provincial lawmakers," said Dr. Sawyer.

Employment Experiment To Expand

A student summer employment office successfully launched this summer will be continued in the adult employment field, George Bevis said today.

The manager of Victoria's Canada Manpower office said the office will be used to concentrate records of all men willing to accept temporary or casual work so a faster, more effective service can be given both employers and workers.

"In addition to improving the facilities in the casual worker field," he said, "the system will assist in reducing the volume of traffic in the main Canada Manpower Centre, and allow the larger bulk of our business to be conducted on an appointment basis, thereby reducing the client's time in the office."

Mr. Bevis will lead a team of about 10 researchers who will begin shortly to interview local businessmen. From the confidential information they gather will come the CMC's latest economic survey, designed to show future employment prospects locally.

Free School Registration

Friday is registration day for students interested in attending Victoria's newly organized free school.

Those interested should register at Apartment 2, 646 Hillside at 7:30 p.m., Mrs. Joan Schwartz, one of the organizers, said today.

The informal high school plans on opening this month with about 30 students and three teachers. Site has not yet been decided.

Bricklayers Contractors Reconciled

Victoria's confusing and precedent-setting bricklayers' strike has finally ended, with employers Wednesday agreeing to union demands for full retroactive pay.

The reotroactive pay issue was the only bone of contention in the month-long dispute between 12 members of Bricklayers, Masons, and Plasters International Union and three masonry contractors.

Workers were back on the job this morning at the three construction sites affected, said Harry Ormiston, one of the contractors.

The settlement is identical with the union's province-wide agreement calling for a 77-cent per hour wage hike over two years. Journeymen currently earn $4 per hour.

The contractors agreed to make the increase fully retroactive to April 1, the day the last contract expired, rather than the 50 per cent retroactive pay they had offered.

The strike, which began Aug. 5, saw a construction company obtain an ex-parte injunction against the struck contractors, who had put pickets around an Esquimalt apartment construction site.

The struck contractors were protesting the fact that some of the striking bricklayers were working for other companies which had already signed the agreement.

Mr. Ormiston, chairman of the masonry section of the B.C. Amalgamated Construction Association, said the contractors had appealed the injunction and a decision was expected shortly.

Laing May Rescue Signal Hill Homes

Federal Public Works Minister Arthur Laing is considering the possibility of saving two old brick garrison buildings on Signal Hill.

The buildings, which formerly housed the Maritime Museum, are due to be dismantled this week. But the new owners, B. and D. Demolition, say they will delay the operation as long as possible.

Victoria MP David Groos asked Public Works Minister Laing if the buildings could be saved.

"I knew Mr. Laing would have a natural interest in this matter," Mr. Groos said, "because as former minister of northern affiars he was responsible for the National Historic Sites and Monuments Board.

"Mr. Laing was instrumental in saving both Emily Carr House and Craigflower Manor."

Mr. Groos said he has also written to the minister handling the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation.

WANT SUGGESTION

"Unfortunately no group or individual has come forward with a practical suggestion for saving these buildings," Mr. Groos said.

"We need all the support we can get from everyone interested in preserving them."

Donald I. Lewis of B. and D. Demolition has said he will sell the buildings to any group interested in saving them. But they would have to remove the entire buildings and clean up the property.

Mr. Lewis said he has orders for almost every part of the buildings including the bricks.

"I have customers waiting and my business cannot afford to hold them off too long."

Air Lifts Helps Sick Mariners

Two merchant seamen are in hospital with appendicitis today after being airlifted from their ships in Vancouver Island waters.

A Canadian Forces helicopter removed a 19-year-old Kenji Nakamura from the 3,602 ton Aso Maru about 30 miles off the northern tip of Vancouver Island Wednesday afternoon.

He was flown to Shaughnessy Hospital in Vancouver where he is listed today in satisfactory condition.

In another incident on the same day a B.C. Airlines plane flew Norwegian seaman Svein Sund to hospital in Campbell River.

Mr. Sund, who also underwent surgery Wednesday night, was flown from the Norweigan ship, Finse, in Gold River.

Launching Ceremony To Be Held

An 880-ton, 110-foot fisheries protection vessel will be christened at 3 p.m. Saturday at Yarrows Shipyard at Esquimalt.

The name chosen for the vessel — "Tanu" — is a tribute to the early British Columbian Indian village of Tanu on the east coast of the Queen Charlotte Islands, destroyed by small pox before the turn of the century. Present at Saturday's ceremony will be Mrs. Ken Harley of Skidegate B.C., lone surviving descendant of Tanu, a village famed for its artisans and carvers.

The ship will be named with the traditional champagne christening by Mrs. Jack Davis, wife of the minister of fisheries.

Obscenity Law Easing Urged

By DON MacLACHLAN

VANCOUVER (CP) — A section of the Canadian Bar Association has called for relaxed obscenity laws and suggested control of obscenity affecting minors be left to the Juvenile Delinquents Act.

Delegates asked Wednesday that obscenity be redefined in the sense of being a "nuisance." They were told current law can hold that anything "offensive and shocking" comes under the heading of obscenity.

Under the resolution, public displays or advertising of obscene publications and pictures would be banned if this interfered with the rights of those who objected to the material.

Excepted would be "just exceptions" such as displays of art and theatrical performances.

A resolution seeking these changes was approved by 12 votes to seven at a civil liberties section of the CBA. If approved by a resolutions committee, it could go before all 2,300 delegates here.

At another of several simultaneous sessions, delegates passed a ressuuion asking that a magistrate be given power to discharge a "guilty" man in extenuating circumstances.

At present, a judge can't do this even if he feels the ends of justice wouldn't be served by a conviction. Again, this resolution went to the main resolutions committee for inspection.

MUST AVOID TROUBLE

The delegates asked that if a man is given such a discharge, meaning he has no criminal record, he stay out of trouble for a year or face conviction on the original charge as well as any new one.

Another resolution asked that a man be allowed to retain his licence pending the final decision on an appeal of an impaired driving conviction.

Earlier, a Quebec committee of the association protested that the proposed new Juvenile Delinquency Act would remove the requirement that a charge be proved "beyond reasonable doubt."

Under the draft bill, still under federal study, a young offender could be convicted on a "preponderance of evidence." That standard now applies in civil cases but not in criminal cases.

At the debate on obscenity, delegates differed sharply over whether obscene or violent books, movies, comics and shows can spark "anti-social behavior in those who indulge in them.

Dr. Bennet Wong, a Vancouver psychiatrist, said he didn't think so; these things might cause excitement but wouldn't push a person over the "threshhold" required for a criminal act.

Another discussion group passed a resolution opposing any change in the Canadian system requiring unanimous jury verdicts. Majority verdicts are accepted in Great Britain.

J. C. McRuer, former chief justice of Ontario Supreme Court, said it's a "wholesome thing" to be able to tell a man when he's convicted that 12 jurors agreed on his guilt.

'COMMON SENSE MUST PREVAIL'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's director of pollution control said Wednesday common sense and experience must prevail when dealing with pollution.

C. J. Keenan told a Canadian Bar Association panel discussion on pollution that the hardest thing about the problem is to define exactly what it is.

"A great deal of common sense must prevail in this matter. And experience must be recognized and used."

Mr. Keenan said he believed that pollution control legislation in B.C. was workable and contains "a great deal of common sense."

Duncan W. Shaw, a Vancouver lawyer and member of the CBA's air law committee, said that 133,000,000 tons of pollution are put into the air in the U.S. every year and this is greater than the weight of the annual U.S. steel production.

He said exhaust-burning devices now on all new automobiles must be maintained or else their efficiency decreases rapidly.

"I suggest that the provincial governments pass legislation that these devices be checked periodically."

Attorney-General Sterling R. Lyon of Manitoba said: "There is no greater challenge to people today than the battle against pollution."

"We in Canada are aware of the challenge," said Mr. Lyon.

He said the number of waste products is diminishing each year, but one that still has not be eliminated is the slash left after a logging operation.

"Industry has not yet found a use for this," he said.

Quebec Challenge Termed 'Grotesque'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Toronto law professor said Wednesday it's "grotesque" to have Quebec, or any other province, challenging federal control over major aspects of Canada's international relations.

Gerald L. Morris of the University of Toronto said it's important to put an end to the contention a province should be able to conclude binding international agreements on a range of subjects.

At the same time, he told the Canadian Bar Association's annual convention, discussions in this area could become "even more snarled" if the United Nations conference on treaty law passes draft articles.

The draft articles, to be considered again next spring, say every state can conclude treaties and adds a paragraph which has been cited by those who support Quebec's position.

It reads: "Members of a federal union may possess capacity to conclude treaties if such capacity is admitted by the federal constitution and within the limits there laid down."

Prof. Morris said the "every state" article does not define "state."

Police Hold 50 Suspects

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Police are holding 50 suspects for questioning in a hunt for Arabs who set off three dynamite blasts in Tel Aviv's central bus depot Wednesday, killing an elderly man and injuring more than 50 persons.

Eight Arabs were injured in rioting by frenzied Jewish youths who set on any Arab they met in a wave of revenge for the explosions.

Police Chief Yaacov Kaner said his men reseued 100 Arabs in the area of the bus depot.

Bugging Control Supported

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice Minister Turner said Wednesday he'd prefer new judges to have courtroom experience and said he's considering programs of "continuing education" for new judges.

At a news conference, he also spelled out "concepts" for control of electronic eavesdropping and said a review of the new Divorce Act probably will have to be made in a year.

Mr. Turner, an observer at the Canadian Bar Association convention, reviewed his position on several issues which have come up at the convention, including eavesdropping.

"I am in sympathy with the basis of the resolution of the Canadian Bar Association that says electroinc eavesdropping ought to be prohibited subject to statutory exceptions."

Mr. Turner made it clear that in none of his comments was he indicating proposed legislation. But he felt he should be answerable for "legal wiretapping and bugging."

Mr. Turner also touched on these points:

- He foresees eventual establishment of a "national legal reform institute, a permanent law reform institute" to carry out research into the law "and that sort of thing."
- The government should discourage appointments of judges to royal commissions, particularly contentious ones where "putting the judge into the bearpit may destroy his reputation for impartiality."
- He formally rejected approaches to accept the leadership of the British Columbia Liberal party, saying: "My role is in Ottawa . . . that's final."

Gas Expansion Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro announced Wednesday it will spend more than $2,500,000 on renewal and expansion of its metropolitan Vancouver gas system this year. Natural gas customers now total 133,300, up 27,000 in the last five years.

Fired Priest Cheered As He Leaves Rectory

By WILLIAM R. MacKaye
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Rev. T. Joseph O'Donoghue bade farewell to his parishioners Wednesday night to the strains of "we shall overcome."

Standing on the steps of St. Francis de Sales rectory in the recially mixed parish, the balding, mild priest told the 450 persons assembled on the lawn that he intended to comply with Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle's deadline for leaving the rectory and brushed aside their cries of "No!"

He added that he prayed the time would come soon when the views of "other bishops and cardinals throughout the world will also be acceptable within the archdiocese of Washington."

Cardinal O'Boyle dismissed Father O'Donoghue as an assistant in the parish last Saturday, charging among other things that the priest had combined a public reading of his Aug. 4 pastoral letter on the Pope's encyclical with selections from "various other documents, including a statement subscribed to by some who disagree with the Holy Father."

According to Father O'Donoghue, what he appended to the Cardinal's pastoral letter were excerpts from statements by Bernard Cardinal Alfrink of The Netherlands, Julius Cardinal Doepfner of Germany and a large group of theologians, mostly American, suggesting that the Pope's encyclical does not suspend the right of married couples to decide conscientiously that they may practise contraception.

Both Father O'Donoghue and the Rev. John E. Corrigan, chairman of the Washington Priests Association who spoke first, asserted that the dispute between the Cardinal and the 51 priests who signed a public "statement of conscience" last month was not over the authority of Cardinal O'Boyle and the Pope.

Rather, they said, they were challenging Cardinal O'Boyle's implicit position that the papal condemnation of artificial contraception suspends the right of married couples to disagree conscientiously with the Pope's moral teaching.

The issue, declared Father Corrigan, "is the right of every Catholic to a responsible conscience." His statement evoked cheers from the crowd.

CHURCH PACKED

Parishioners and others packed the church for a special mass for peace and unity co-celebrated by the Rev. William Tepe, the pastor, and the Rev. James Kennedy, the sole remaining assistant. At communion time, lay people held back until Father O'Donoghue received communion first.

At the the conslusion of the mass Clarence Cooper, chairman of the parish council, read excerpts from the council's letter to the cardinal protesting Father O'Donoghue's dismissal and declaring that the priest's action was "fully and without reservation to be commended."

Then, led by an acolyte carrying a cross, the group moved in a body to the rectory to hear Father O'Donoghue's parting words and to sing "we shall overcome" and "for he's a jolly good fellow."

Father O'Donoghue said he had accepted an invitation to live for the time being in the home of a parishioner.

CHICAGO (AP) — Most grain and soybeans futures deliveries moved within relatively narrow price ranges on the Board of Trade. Trade was mixed and moved at a rather good pace.

Early sales of wheat futures were generally attributed to a Canadian government estimate that the spring wheat crop would be some 57,000,000 bushels higher this year than in 1967. The trade here viewed this as a potentially strong competition for foreign grain markets.

Later, when a report from Manitoba indicated that rain and standing water in fields caused some drop damage that could reduce that province's estimate, there followed some buying that strengthened wheat prices near the close.

Corn futures came under some early hedging pressure but recovered under aggressive local and export buying.

New crop soybeans and soybean meal closed on a firm tone but the September deliveries of the two commodities lost ground.

Wage Increases Average 8.2%

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage settlements in Canadian industry during the second quarter of this year provided an average increase of 8.2 per cent a year in basic rates, a labor department survey reported Wednesday.

This compared with average increases of 7.4 per cent a year in settlements negotiated during the first quarter and 9.2 per cent in the second quarter of 1967.

The quarterly survey was based on 71 contracts covering 86,000 workers outside the construction industry.

During the 12 months ended in June, the average hourly base rate covered by labor contracts rose by 15.6 cents or 7.2 per cent. This average results from a study of 527 contracts involving 1,075,500 industrial workers.

The survey report cautioned that averages are based on the hourly rate for unskilled or semi-skilled groups and do not necessarily represent the average wage increases of all workers in industry.

During the second quarter 43 wage settlements in the manufacturing industry showed average increase of 7.5 per cent for each year involved. In 28 settlements outside the manufacturing sector the average was 9.6 per cent.

Bumper Prairie Crop Expected

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics Wednesday predicted a bumper prairie wheat crop with a good break on the weather.

Both harvesting and ripening of the above-average prairie grain crops have been delayed by wet weather, the federal agency reported.

The bureau forecast a 649,600,000-bushel all-Canada crop, 10 per cent above last year, providing warm dry weather returns to the prairie grain belt. The projected figure is 20 per cent above the average crop in the 1957-66 period.

Spring wheat crop estimate on the prairies is 628,000,000 bushels, nine per cent higher than last year's actual 547,000,000.

All other provinces report increases in estimates of spring wheat over last year. Ontario's estimated winter wheat crop at 15,265,000 bushels is only slightly below last year's 15,480,000.

ESTIMATES CLIMB

Production estimates of all other grains except rapeseed exceed the 1967 figures. All are based on reports from field correspondents as of Aug. 15.

All-Canada estimates of crop production, with last year's figures and the 10-year average following, are:

—wheat 649,600,000—592,900,000—540,400,000;

—oats for grain 356,200,000—200,000,000—374,900,000;

—barley 323,000,000—248,700,000—205,100,000;

—rye 13,300,000 — 12,000,000—11,500,000;

—flaxseed 18,200,000—9,400,000—20,400,000.

—rapeseed 18,600,000—24,700,000—11,800,000.

If the forecasts are correct it could stand as the third largest wheat crop in recent years. It will be short of the 1966 record of 827,338,000 bushels and the 1963 crop of 723,500,000, but it may exceed 1965's 649,412,000 bushels.

The near-record forecast comes at a time when export sales are down, grain shipments are stalled by a grainhandlers strike at the Lakehead and storage facilities are jammed with the second-largest year-end carryover in recent history.

Emminger Theory Given Support

By HOBART ROWEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — A proposal to guarantee South Africa a "floor" price of $35 an ounce for newly-mined gold has wide support among almost all European central banks, it was learned Wednesday.

At the same time, the porposal — initiated by Dr. Otmar Emminger of the West German Bundesbank, or central bank — came under sharp attack by an influential American congressman.

Rep. Henry Reuss (D-Wisc.) told the Washington Post in an interview that Emminger's plan, designed to promote relative stability in gold prices, "is really a step backward."

Reuss, who heads an important congressional committee on international financial problems, said that a floor price would be a "signal to speculators that they have a sure, one-way speculation."

But it was apparent that there is a growing consensus for some compromise along the lines suggested by Emminger among the Europeans, the British, the Bank for International Settlements, and within the International Monetary Fund itself.

●

"If the international monetary system is to be anchored to a $35 price for gold," said one observer, "it must work both ways."

Some officials said the IMF annual meetings, which begin in Washington Sept. 30, will provide a convenient framework for settling the issue.

Reuss said the March 17 agreement of the gold pool nations in Washington was designed to remove the "one-way speculation" and to create the prospect that gold prices might move down as well as up.

"We wanted to let speculators know that they no longer had a floor," Reuss said.

Reuss will begin hearings Monday on the South African gold problem, and other related matters that are coming up at the IMF meeting.

In place of Emminger's proposal, under which gold producers would be assured of selling at $35 to the IMF if free market prices dipped below that level, Reuss has his own plan:

—He would ask all 107 member nations of the IMF to abide by the March agreement not to buy or sell gold except to each other.

—He would have the IMF develop a "gold conversion account," into which member nations could sell their existing gold reserves if the price should drop. This would protect all gold-holders, including the South Africans, from a sudden drop in the price of gold.

●

It would not, however, take care of newly-mined supplies. Under Emminger's plan, producers benefiting by the official floor would have to agree to channel new gold to the free market in an orderly way.

The U.S. has feared that any compromise, such as that proposed by Emminger, would put a new and unwelcome emphasis on gold. "It would tend to re-monetize gold, instead of de-monetizing," said one expert.

But there are some indications that the U.S. is now thinking carefully about some device like Emminger proposed, if a floor could help assure continuance of the present two-price system.

U.S. Car Sales Set 4th Straight Record

By ROBERT W. IRVIN

DETROIT (WP) — The auto industry sold 635,101 cars in August, the fourth straight month of record sales.

The performance topped the old record of 610,000 cars sold in August, 1965, and was far above the 517,235 cars sold in the same month last year.

General Motors dealers sold 337,910 cars, up 26.8 per cent from the 266,461 sold last August and narrowly topping the old record of 337,722 cars sold in August, 1965.

Ford Motor Co. dealers delivered 166,380 cars, 9 per cent increase over the 152,380 cars sold in the same month last year.

Chrysler Corp. sold 112,546 cars, up 35 per cent from the 83,590 sold in August, 1967.

American Motors retailed 18,265 cars, a 27 per cent increase over the 14,354 cars sold a year ago.

NEAR PERIOD RECORD

The reports by the four companies brought sales for the year to 5,713,164 cars, almost 600,000 above the 5,123,223 sold in the first eight months last year. The total means the industry has almost caught up with the 5,898,084 cars it sold in the January-August period of record 1965.

Gill Interprovincial

Gill Interprovincial Lines Ltd. reports a net profit for the six months ended June 30 of $202,049, or 40 cents a share.

This compares with $266,850 or 57.7 cents in the first six months of 1967.

President Harold Freeman, in an interim report to shareholders, said the number of outstanding shares had increased to 504,793 from 462,610 in the first half of 1967.

Gross revenue in the six-month period was $5.6 million, up from $4.4 million in the corresponding period of last year.

U.K. Has Stock Fever

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Both speculators and brokers are having a field day as share fever races through the London Stock Exchange where fresh peaks are scaled almost daily.

The glow of quick profits fills the financial pages of the daily press. In the space of months many shares have tripled and quadrupled. Many brokers have been run off their feet filling an avalance of orders.

"It is the biggest market since 1959," said an exchange official Wednesday.

"The reason is simple. There is a shortage of shares. Holders are simply not selling."

But one broker suggested there is more behind the roaring trade than the lack of sellers.

NO FAITH IN POLICIES

"Many persons simply do not have faith in the government's policies," he said. "They are worried about the currency and its value and there is a feeling that international authorities have failed to achieve currency stability."

Whatever the reason, there is an undercurrent of unease and disquiet beneath the aura of vigor and prosperity which the ballooning stock market suggests.

On foreign exchanges the British pound still is weak. Official gold reserves have declined and the balance of payments problem remains unsolved.

A number of authoritative organizations have suggested the government must soon impose import restrictions.

Sauve Appointment

Consolidated Bathurst Ltd. announced the appointment of Maurice Sauve, former Liberal forestry minister, as vice-president of the company.

Mr. Sauve, 44, was elected Liberal MP for Iles de la Madeleine in 1962 and was appointed forestry minister in Mr. Pearson's cabinet in 1964.

He was defeated in Ste. Hyacinthe riding in the June 25 federal elections this year.

U.K. Reserves Drop

Britain's gold and convertible currency reserves fell $67.2 million (U.S.) in August to $2.66 billion the British treasury said Wednesday. In July, the reserves rose $50.4 million.

Mr. Rodger said the application is under study.

Canadians, Japanese in Uranium Deal

TOKYO (Reuters) — Canadian and Japanese firms have reached broad agreement on joint development of uranium reserves in Canada and the United States, Japanese power industry sources said today.

The Denison Mines Ltd. of Canada and a group of nine Japanese electric power companies shortly will sign a contract for the project, the sources said.

They said each party would invest $700,000 U.S. annually to prospect mines in Colorado and acquire mining rights in British Columbia.

The two sides will set up a joint refinery to condense uranium ore into "yellow cake." The production is to be equally shared during the joint exploration except the first 10,000 tons to be taken by the Japanese, the source said.

The prospecting period will be no longer than six years and the prospecting work will be undertaken chiefly by Denison, the sources said.

Canada Car Target

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japan's Nissan Motor Co. announced today will start marketing its Datsun 100 four-seater sedans in Canada starting next month.

Nissan said this would prepare the ground for its small cars to break into the United States market next year.

It will ship 200 to 300 cars a month to Canada to be distributed by the Nissan Automobile Co. Canada, Nissan's wholly-owned subsidiary in Vancouver.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Another Japanese car, the Mazda, was introduced to the Canadian market today.

It is the product of Toyo Kogyo Co. Ltd. of Hiroshima, which has formed a wholly-owned subsidiary, Mazda Motors of Canada Ltd., with headquarters in Vancouver.

The basic five-passenger sedan has a displacement of 1,500 cubic centimetres, a horsepower rating of 82 and sells in Vancouver for $2,295.

Pulp Mill Closes Again

Canadian Forest Products Ltd. Howe Sound division will shut down its Port Mellon kraft pulp mill for two weeks starting Sept. 30.

The company said weak markets and an oversupply of pulp in the world are responsible for the closure, the second for Port Mellon this year. The earlier shutdown was during one week of February.

Start Was Fast But Shamrocks' Ending Fizzled

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The National Lacrosse Association started interestingly enough. The doors opened May 8, 1968, amid optimism and promises of a great revival.

The overall tone was sweetened by the fact Victoria Shamrocks defeated Portland Adanacs, 11-9.

The doors closed, for Shamrocks' supporters, on the evening of Sept. 4, 1968.

This time, the tone was shamefully tame, hushed and sombre.

Portland Adanacs made it so by waltzing over the Memorial Arena floor for a 10-5 victory.

Besides being tame, it was disappointing. The fans, a paid count of 1,412, knew there was no likelihood of Shamrocks improving on a cellar finish. Some came because they're honorable fans, others thought the Irish might emerge in a spoiling mood and wreck Portland's hopes of a first-place finish.

The customers were jobbed and coach Dave Unwin was jilted by those he commands.

Too many players were content with going through the motions. The activity painfully reminded Unwin of season-long ineptness and frustrations.

"This has to be one of the greatest letdowns I've ever had," he said after Wednesday's match. "After that great year last season, I really expected to see the team perform well."

Officially, the Shamrocks have one more go before they can call it a season — Friday night in Vancouver.

But for Victoria supporters, the letdown was completed Wednesday. The scoreboard told part of the story, the standings tell the rest.

The reasons are many.

Jobs Worked to Sad Road Record

Injuries played a part. So did job situations. Several players played in only a very few road games, as emphasized by a sad road record — three wins and 14 ouches.

Also there was the mediocre performances of regulars who were expected to stand tall consistently.

Last year, Shamrocks placed five players in the top 20 scorers.

This year, only one — Ranjit Dillon — is close. With 112 points, Dillon stands fifth in the individual scoring parade.

There are exactly 40 names between Dillon's and the next Victoria scorer — the much-improved Don McNeill.

Rival teams concentrated on only Dillon, and effectively bottled Victoria's mediocre offence. Mediocre, that is, if the poorest scoring record in the league (326 goals in 37 games) can be considered as such.

After Friday, the Shamrocks will have time enough to think of their 1968 failure.

Coach Gord Gimple and the Adanacs, are still thinking of something else — first place. Their victory Wednesday pushed Portland two points ahead of Vancouver in the run for the all-important bye into the divisional final.

Vancouver and Portland have played 36 games.

Three goals in the first three minutes at the start of the third period clinched the vital points for Adanacs. Portland held a 6-4 lead heading into the final period, but Shamrocks still appeared a threat.

But Victoria wasn't in the picture after Alec Carey, Bill Bradley and Mike Gates scored within a span of one minute and 29 seconds. That made it 9-4, and beyond doubt.

TIANT GETS HELP

McNally Uses His Own Steam

By The Associated Press

The Cleveland Indians bullpen gave Louis Tiant a lift to the front door of the 20 Game Winners. Club but Baltimore Orioles' Dave McNally got three under his own power.

Four Cleveland relievers combined to preserve Tiant's 19th victory Wednesday night as the Indians subdued California Angels 9-5 after blowing a seven-run lead.

McNally nailed his 19th triumph with a fourth inning home run as the Orioles trimmed New York Yankees 6-3.

YAZ BLOWS HOT

Carl Yastrzemski grabbed the American League batting lead with a four-hit spree in Boston Red Sox' 10-12 romp over Minnesota Twins; Willie Horton's tie-breaking single in the eighth inning sparked first place Detroit Tigers to a 4-2 victory over Oakland Athletics and Chicago White Sox blanked Washington Senators 3-0 in 14 innings.

In the National League, Pete Rose walloped out his second run in as many days Wednesday night, sparking Cincinnati into an 8-3 win over St. Louis Cardinals that ended a six-game losing streak for the Reds.

Other National League action saw Los Angeles shut out Philadelphia Phillies 3-0, and Chicago Cubs split a doubleheader with San Francisco, winning 7-6 before losing 5-4.

Tiant, 19-9, stopped the Angels on one hit until the sixth, when Roger Repoz' two-run homer touched off a four-run rally that drove him from the mound. Sonny Siebert, Rob Gardner and Horacio Pina all came out of the bullpen before the inning was over and Vicente Romo got the last two outs after Pina faltered in the ninth, preserving Tiant's first victory since Aug. 10.

Joe Azcue drove in four Cleveland runs with a pair of singles and Vern Fuller collected three hits and scored three runs.

SMACKS THIRD HOMER

McNally, who has reeled off 11 straight victories since the All-Star break for a 19-8 mark, smacked his third homer of the season after the Yankees had closed the gap to 4-3 on consecutive homers by Bill Robinson and Andy Kosco in the top of the fourth.

Elrod Hendricks, who singled home one of three Baltimore runs in the second, doubled and scored an insurance marker in the sixth.

Yastrzemski boosted his batting average to .291 by swatting three singles and his 18th homer in the Red Sox victory.

Horton bounced a single off the glove of Oakland reliever Jack Aker in the eighth, snapping a 2-2 tie, and Aker forced across another run with a bases-loaded walk as the Tigers maintained their eight-game bulge over second place Baltimore.

GENE MAUCH
. . . bon jour, Expos!

Montreal Gets Coach, Christening

MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal's fledgling entry in the national baseball league today hired ex-Philadelphia Philly Gene Mauch as manager and named itself the "Expos."

President John McHale, also said the club had accepted orders for 1,767 season tickets from fans who do not yet know where they will sit or what the tickets will cost.

"It's a tremendous response," McHale enthused.

Mauch was fired earlier this season by the Philadelphia Phillies, with whom he spent eight years but came close to winning the pennant only once — in 1964, when they lost on the final day of the season to the St. Louis Cardinals.

GAMBRELL TRADED

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Lions have obtained pass receiver Billy Gambrell from St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for a future National Football League draft choice.

Gaels Lost Coach But Not the Game

NEW WESTMINSTER — Oshawa coach Jim Bishop blew his cool but his Green Gaels didn't Wednesday night as they spanked New Westminster 13-7 to take the opening game of the Minto Cup Canadian Junior A Lacrosse final.

Bishop, also the coach of the professional Detroit Olympics, was ejected from the game in the first quarter after an argument with referee Paul Morneau.

But his absence failed to rattle the slick Oshawa club, seeking their sixth straight Canadian title, although the struggling Salmonbellies pulled within one goal, at 8-7, going into the final quarter.

Then the Gaels simply outgunned their opponents, scoring five unanswered goals in the final 15 minutes to crush all hopes of an upset.

Second game in the best-of-seven series will be played Friday with the third scheduled Saturday and the fourth Monday.

Playing before 2,150 fans, Oshawa dominated the game with slick passing, grabbing most of the face-offs and gobbling up most of the loose balls.

Phil Clayton and Jim Higgs were the big guns for Oshawa. Each pumped in two goals and Clayton added four assists while Higgs set up three other scores.

Chuck Li and Joe Krasnaj also scored twice. Fred Greenwood, Don Stinson, Charlie Marlowe, Peter Vipond and John Clayton rounded out the Oshawa scoring.

Al Lewthwaite, Ray Bennie, Alan Tasker, Tracey Wright, Mickey Lynch, Ed Goss and Steve d'Easum shared New Westminster scoring.

New Westminster coach Art Burrow attributed the loss to first-game jitters, saying some of his top goal-getters failed to produce.

He said he may try a few line-up changes for Friday's game and noted his club held high-scoring Ross Jones to a mere three shots on the net and blanked him in the goal-getting column.

Jones potted 101 goals for Oshawa in regular-season play.

Pre-Olympic Track Meet In Victoria

By STEVE HUME

Victoria will host the Canadian Olympic team at a track and field meet at Centennial Stadium Sept. 28.

Ron Bowker, spokesman from the Victoria Track and Field Association, this morning confirmed that the Canadian team will stop off in Victoria for a tune-up meet before moving into high-altitude training sessions at Flagstaff, Ariz.

The team is scheduled to remain in Arizona for a week to 10 days for acclimatization before moving on to 7,800-foot-high Mexico City for the Olympic Games.

MOST ON HAND

Only a few members of the team—long-distance runners who will head for the Arizona training site Sept. 14—will not be available for the Victoria meet.

"About five distance runners will be heading for Flagstaff for high-altitude training before the meet here, but we're probably going to fly the milers back to Victoria for competition," Bowker said.

"That's one of the glamor events and we'd like them here."

Meet organizers also are attempting to line up other Olympic teams to compete against the Canadian squad, but it's still in the negotiation stage, Bowker said.

"We've sent cables to various foreign teams and are waiting for some firm commitments," he said.

POSSIBLES

West German and Japanese Olympic teams are presently conducting high-altitude training at Flagstaff, said Bowker.

He said the Olympic team's decision to go along with Victoria Association suggestions that a training meet be held here came as a bit of a surprise.

"We were thinking they ought to get a pre-Olympic meet in before going to Mexico City, and the West Coast was the logical place to stop on their way to Flagstaff," Bowker said.

"And we were thinking along the lines of the Olympic Preview meet they held in Vancouver in 1964 before leaving for Tokyo, but we really only expected to get the Western athletes from the team."

"With help from the B.C. Association, it was decided to send the whole team here, with the exception of the distance runners."

Negotiations with foreign teams should be completed soon, Bowker said.

Spirit Like Garter

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—The fabled fighting spirit of Pancho Gonzales is holding up in the U.S. open tennis championships, but what about those 40-year-old legs?

"Muscles don't respond the way they used to," the Los Angeles warrior said today as he contemplated his quarter-final match with Tom Okker of The Netherlands.

"A man my age can play two and perhaps three tough matches but then the legs start getting wobbly. I'm very tired."

Gonzales experienced his greatest hour in 19 years Wednesday when he upset second-seeded Tony Roche of Australia 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

This made the seven-time king of the pros the sentimental favorite of the galleries but the realists are backing Australian Ken Rosewall.

Rosewall had a tough battle with Ron Homberg of Highland Falls, N.Y., before winning 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 8-6.

Rosewall meets the winner of the unfinished match between left-handed Nicola Pilic of Yugoslavia, and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., halted by darkness with Pilic leading 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, 8-8.

TEST CUP ACES

The only two quarter finals, both today, test America's Davis Cup aces, both amateurs.

Arthur Ashe plays Cliff Drysdale, the South African who upset favored Rod Laver.

His team-mate, Clark Graebner of New York, faces Australian John Newcombe, winner of both the U.S. and Wimbledon titles in 1967.

Ashe, Graebner and Okker are the lone remaining amateurs stacked now against five pros shooting for the $14,000 first prize. Okker, as a registered player, also has applied to go after the big purse, permissible under relaxed tennis rules.

Two British girls—the veteran Ann Haydon Jones now a pro, and hard-serving Virginia Wade—clash in the women's semi-finals.

The other women's semi-final is scheduled Friday between top-seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., winner over Maryna Godwin of South Africa 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, and Maria Bueno of Brazil, who upset U.S. amateur champion Margaret Smith Court of Australia 7-5, 2-6, 6-3.

The women's final is scheduled Saturday, the men's final Sunday.

EVEN PROFESSIONALS CAN LEARN . . . . . . FROM SOVIET SUCCESSES IN HOCKEY

Anatoli's Advice (It's Free) Worth Heeding

WINNIPEG (CP) — When coach Anatoli Tarasov of the Russian national team says Canadian professional hockey "moguls" could learn from the Russians, it's no idle boast.

His old rival, coach Jackie McLeod of Canada's national team, agreed with him.

"I think we could adopt a few techniques the Russians use," McLeod said in an interview between practice sessions at his rookie camp that has drawn 58 young hopefuls.

For one thing, he said, "the Russians spend more time on fundamentals than we or the pros do."

"We've got six kids (at the rookie camp) that still can't skate backwards."

McLeod was commenting on a story carried in a recent edition of The Soviet Union Today, a monthly magazine published by the Soviet embassy.

The story quoted Tarasov as foreseeing a time when amateur hockey will be supplying professional hockey with ideas.

The Russian coach also suggested an exchange between the two countries of school hockey teams which would benefit Canadian youngsters in learning new tactics.

McLeod agrees on that point, too.

"I think both countries would benefit from it," he said.

The Canadian nationals already have partially adopted a page from the Russian style book which calls for a left-handed shooter to play right wing and vice-versa, enabling him to get a better shot away when cutting in front of the goal.

"Billy MacMillan tried it last year and so did Gerry Pinder," said McLeod. "But it's a hard thing to pick up, especially in your own end zone when taking a pass."

McLeod said he is amazed that the National Hockey League teams don't use two-coach system used by the Russians.

"One coach can miss a lot while he's talking to a player in the box."

But possibly the biggest difference is conditioning and McLeod can see no way that gap will be bridged.

"I wouldn't think Canada or the United States will ever attain the peak of conditioning of the Russians or Czechs because our society doesn't allow it," he said.

Where hockey is played six or seven months in Canada, the Russians go at it for 11 months or more and are under stringent discipline all the time.

"There's just no way we can train our boys the way they do. Last year our boys were in better shape than the previous year, but we were still behind the Russians."

While McLeod thinks minor hockey coaches are doing a good service and in many cases a good job, he said a lot of players still don't properly learn the fundamentals, another glaring difference between North American and European hockey players.

"The CAHA really had something going when they held coaches clinics, then the fitness council cut off its grant," he said.

"If the NHL was smart they'd pick up the slack and finance the clinics. It's to their benefit."

Toros Boost Hopes

By The Associated Press

The Pacific Division title of the North American Soccer League will be determined Saturday night but all the firstplace Oakland Clippers can do about it is sit back and watch.

The Clippers wound up the regular season at San Diego Wednesday night by playing a 3-3 tie with second-place Toros. The deadlock enabled Oakland to remain eight points ahead of San Diego.

The Toros have one game left at home, with third-place Los Angeles Saturday. San Diego could win the championship by scoring at least three goals and beating the Wolves.

A pair of Oakland goals were nullified because of penalties Wednesday night in the final 15 minutes.

KNOTS THE SCORE

After the Toros had opened the scoring, the Clippers tied it. San Diego went in front 3-2 midway through the first half before Oakland's Ademar Saccone tied it with 65:48 gone.

In other games, New York took Atlanta 3-1, Kansas City edged Los Angeles 2-1, Cleveland nipped Chicago 2-1 and Houston blanked St. Louis 2-0.

Warren Archibald and Mickey Ash scored for New York in the first 12 minutes, and the Generals held on for their victory over Atlanta. Luis Mas scored the other New York goal, and Phil Woosnam scored for Atlanta.

Kansas City gained its victory over Los Angeles with second-half goals by Ernie Winchester and Mladen Vrankovic.

Cleveland also used a pair of second-half goals—by Enrique Mateos and Hank Liotart—to beat Chicago. John Kowalik scored for Chicago in the first half.

Houston's margin of victory over St. Louis came on a first-half goal by Jimmy Benedek and a second-half tally by Kresten Bjerre.

BRUNDAGE AND BUDDIES PASS RESPONSIBILITIES

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, has told competing nations that the group will not take responsibility for dope and sex tests at the Mexico Olympic games.

In a circular to national Olympic committees, Brundage said:

"This is a technical matter that must be handled by the international federations and the national Olympic committees, which have the obligation to comply with Olympic regulations in co-operation with the organizing committee Mexico."

But Brundage said the ICS's medical commission is ready to give advice and guidance if asked. This commission recently recommended stringent dope tests on the first six finishers in selected events plus other random spot checks. It also outlined a simple sex test for women competitors.

Elbow Infection Sidelines Dhillon

OSHAWA — Charn Dhillon, a 24-year-old forward picked up from Victoria, was the only player missing Wednesday night when Nanaimo Luckies were presented with gold tie clips by the town of Whitby, Ont.

The stocky player was in bed with a high temperature and coach Al Fearon of the B.C. team said he didn't think Dhillon would be ready for the second game of the Mann Cup senior lacrosse championship against Brooklin Redmen tonight.

"Charn was cut on the elbow during the western final against Port Coquitlam and it became infected," Fearon said at the civic dinner.

"He went to the doctor Wednesday and had the elbow drained, but the fever just didn't seem to break."

Dhillon scored 30 goals during the regular season for Victoria and his absence will leave a big hole in Nanaimo's attack.

The Luckies, behind 1-0 in the best of seven series, may also be without forward Al Matson, who pulled a hamstring muscle in Tuesday nigh's opener, won by Brooklin, 9-6.

WILL SHIFT VETERAN

Fearon will dress rookie Steve Bishop and shift veteran defenceman Larry Clarkson to the forward line in an effort to contain the hard-running Redmen who beat the Luckies repeatedly with the fast break. Doug White will make his first appearance of the series for Nanaimo on defence.

"We did too much walking back out there in the first game," said the 29-year-old coach.

"Brooklin has a fast team that picks up a lot of loose balls. "They got four goals in a hurry because we didn't hustle back fast enough."

Meanwhile, Brooklin playing coach Don Craggs was looking for more leg work from his forwards.

"We had three guys who were really running—one forward on each line was getting in on the fast breaks," Craggs said

The 36-year-old coach also was worried about forward Ron Sutton who plays with braces on both knees because of cartilage problems. He said import Dave Grist of Mississauga or veteran Charlie Grandy may dress to give Sutton a rest.

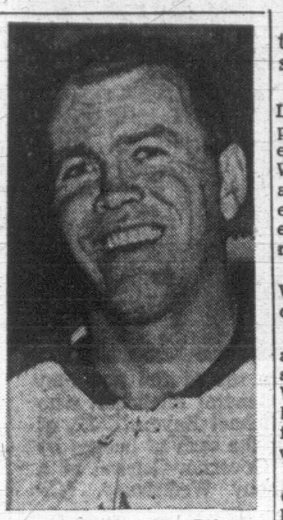
Injury, 'Peg's Tenacity Give Cause for Alarm



ACQUIRED by San Diego Gulls of Western Hockey League is former Victoria player Bruce Carmichael (above). With Vancouver Canucks last season, Carmichael went to San Diego in exchange for veteran Len Haley. Wayne Smith and Jack Stanfield also will be new faces at Gulls' training camp opening in Victoria later in this month. Both have been assigned to San Diego by Chicago Black Hawks of National League.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders got two scares Wednesday night.

In a Canadian Football League game they were supposed to win with ease, the Riders just managed to get past Winnipeg Blue Bombers 24-17 and rise to the top of the Eastern Conference. They now have eight points, two more than Toronto Argonauts.

The Bombers remain in the Western Conference cellar with one win in six games.

A second cause for Ottawa alarm were complaints of a sore shoulder by Russ Jackson. Without their all-star quarterback, the Riders' hopes for conference and national honors would dim considerably.

But Jackson and team officials indicated they do not believe the injury to be a serious one.

HURT IN FOURTH

Jackson said he suffered the mishap in the fourth quarter.

Coach Frank Clair said Ottawa concentrated on ground plays in the final period to relieve Jackson of throwing.

Jackson completed 12 of 22 passes for 174 yards during the game, two of them short touchdown pitches to fullback Bo Scott and end Margene Adkins. He also ran seven yards himself for a third Ottawa score.

Don Sutherin completed Ottawa scoring with a 40-yard field goal and three converts.

Walt Chadwick, a new fullback acquired by the Bombers, scored on a three-yard run. Dave Raimey got the other major with a nine-yard scoot and Pierre Guindon picked up the other Winnipeg points on a 17-yard field goal and two converts.

RUSHING PAYS OFF

In a drastic departure from most Ottawa games, the Riders picked up more yards rushing than through the air. Led by Scott, returning after a leg injury, they got 181 yards. Scott accounted for 100 of them.

After a poor start in the first quarter when they failed to pick up one first down, the Bombers came to life in the second. Down 17-0 after the first 15 minutes, they whittled the Ottawa lead to 17-10 at half time.

They also dominated opening minutes of the third quarter and were within four yards of tying the game. But fullback Walt Chadwick couldn't pick up the needed yardage in three cracks at the Ottawa line.

The Riders, whose attack had sputtered to a standstill after their explosive first quarter, seemed to take heart from the goal line stand. They promptly moved 109 yards in 11 plays for their final touchdown which proved decisive.

Rookie quarterback John Schneider, one of the stars for the Bombers, completed 13 of 27 passes for 193 yards.

Sadlers Returning Saturday

LONGVIEW, Wash., — Wilf Sadler got up for the first time Wednesday and toured the hospital in a wheelchair.

The well-known Victoria sports executive and his wife are recovering from injuries suffered in a car accident three weeks ago while returning to Victoria from the Babe Ruth World Series. Their daughter, Fran, also injured, was released from hospital shortly after the mishap.

The Sadlers are expected to be transferred to Victoria by ambulance this Saturday. Victoria umpire Gordie Perkins, who visited the Sadlers Wednesday, said both Mr. and Mrs. Sadler are "in excellent spirits."

Brown, Wilson Capture Pairs

Pairings from the host Canadian Pacific Railway club nailed down two out of three events in the final of the Yarrow Cup lawn bowling competition.

Fred Brown and G. N. Wilson defeated Percy Middleton and Daryl Prezeau of Lake Hill for the "A" flight title while CPR mates Bob Husband and John Graham won the "C" flight final over Beacon Hill's Hector Tapp and Danny Millar.

The Burnside father-and-son combination of John and Gran Clegg were winners of the "B" division, downing A. Plowman and J. Potts of the host club for the honor.

The event was the last inter-club match of the lawn bowling season.

Chicago Police Charged With Sanctioned Mayhem

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Chicago's police have been tried and convicted of brutality in many major United States news, radio and television outlets for their performance last week during the Democratic national convention.

"Sanctioned mayhem," says Time magazine. "With billy clubs, tear gas and Mace, the blue-helmeted, blue-shirted cops violated the civil rights of countless innocent citizens and contravened every accepted code of professional police discipline."

Newsweek magazine says: "Mayor Richard Daley's beefy cops . . . went on a sustained rampage unprecedented outside the most unreconstructed boondocks of Dixie."

But that is not the way many people apparently see it—Americans swinging to the right and concerned that law and order be maintained at any price.

They blame demonstrators perhaps 10,000 strong, led by hardened professionals intent on provoking confrontations with police to protest the Vietnam war.

The public, by virtue of some opinion polls, letters to newspaper editors and by expressions over radio shows, are unsympathetic to the news media, even angry.

"I stood up and cheered when a TV reporter was knocked down on the convention floor," one woman told a radio interviewer.

Perhaps 75 per cent of Americans feel the police did right and the news media did them wrong. Newsweek and the New York Times mention this percentage based on early opinion polls.

Bias by the news media is central to Mayor Daley's angry insistence the press motivated the demonstrations and then slandered his 12,000-man force.

Columnists Joe Kraft of The Washington Post says Daley may have a point in contending press prejudice exists. Kraft, a liberal, agrees the press shows "systematic bias toward young people, minority groups and the kind of presidential candidates who appeal to them."

Segregationist George Wallace of Alabama, not a candidate the press likes, has been making hay since Chicago with his warm support for the police action and fresh blows at the press. The cheers evidently are louder than ever.

Wallace's appeal is primarily for law and order, for shooting looters and arsonists and for cutting back on such civil rights measures as precautions enabling Negroes in the South vote.

Wallace makes it plain he commends the police for having injured more than 30 news men as well as more than 300 demonstrators.

The press has "written distorted and contrived things" about law enforcers, he says. It is part of the establishment that he says looks down on the ordinary worker.

Third Probe Into Riots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The furore ignited by street demonstrations and police tactics at the Democratic convention has swirled into Congress and prompted an investigation by a presidential advisory board.

The investigation, third started in two weeks, was announced Wednesday by Dr. Milton Eisenhower, chairman of a violence study commission named by President Johnson after the assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Attorney-General Ramsey Clark and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley started investigations earlier.

Eisenhower said his group also will study July's gun battle between police and black militants in Cleveland and, possibly, the rioting in a Miami Negro neighborhood during the Republican convention.

RECIPIENT of a complete set of the new Boy Scout badges is Governor-General Michener, who is Canada's chief scout. Michael Baycroft, 12, of Ottawa, is shown adjusting the sash of badges he has just presented to the Governor-General at a Government House ceremony Wednesday. (CP Wirephoto.)

$5 MILLION NARCOTIC SEIZURE MADE BY RCMP

MONTREAL (CP) — Customs officials and RCMP Wednesday seized about 22 pounds of heroin at Montreal International Airport following the arrival of an Air Canada flight originating in Vienna, a customs spokesman said today.

The confiscated heroin represented "one of the largest" drug seizures made at the airport and may have been worth as much as $5,000,000 to dealers, the spokesman said.

A man was to appear in court later today in connection with the seizure.

'Bushels of Warheads' On New Soviet Missile

By BOB HORTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet tests of a long-range missile capable of packing "bushels of warheads" may force a sharp reappraisal of the U.S. missile counterpunch.

Expansion of the controversial Sentinal defensive system and the U.S. offensive missile arsenal are being discussed in response to reports that the Soviets test-fired a missile hauling four warheads.

U.S. experts learned of the Soviet test early this week, even though it took place in late August, a week after similar tests at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Senator Henry Jackson (Dem. Wash.), a member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, said the Pentagon—officially mum so far—had not informed him of the test. But military sources confirmed the Soviets apparently had fired a new-type ICBM.

Sources indicated they aren't certain whether the warheads were guided or unguided.

This would make a big difference, indicating whether the warheads could be accurate enough to knock out underground missile silos.

Jackson said a Soviet move into the multiple-warhead field could threaten U.S. missiles forming the bedrock of the American nuclear deterrent.

Labor Worried Over New Ship

By ROGER STONEBANKS

What's happened to the $6 million replacement for the 56-year-old coast guard vessel Estevan?

That's what several delegates asked at the Victoria Labor Council meeting, Wednesday.

Amid continuing gloom in shipyard work, Ian Campbell of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers wondered if the Estevan replacement is "another situation like the abandonment of the new observatory and winter works" announced by the federal government to save money.

"Is this just another campaign promise," he said, noting that the replacement announcement was made June 19 — two days after Prime Minister Trudeau spoke in Victoria and six days before the federal election.

PROMISE GIVEN

The announcement was made at that time by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer who said the replacement for the Estevan would be guaranteed for the west coast. Cost estimates have ranged up to $6 million.

Outside the meeting, boilermaker's union business agent Neil Hindle said the union had 800 members last winter but it has fallen to 550 members now and some of these were unemployed.

Two weeks ago, 70 members of this union plus a smaller number from other unions were hired by Yarrows to repair a ship in the graving dock but these men are being released at the end of the week when work is finished.

"I have never seen Yarrows down so far," he said. "There is not a whisper of work here."

EMPLOYMENT LOW

It was learned that current negotiations between shipyard unions and Yarrows and Burrard Dry Dock, North Vancouver involve 800 men at both yards.

Two years ago, when the last agreement was signed, there were 2,300 employees but since then the amount of work has dropped and Victoria Machinery Depot has closed down.

In other business, the labor council approved continuing the boycott of California table grapes, in support of striking farm workers, and extending this to handing out leaflets at shopping centres this Friday and Saturday:

- Supported a recommendation that electricity service be better planned to avoid the two recent blackouts;
- Opposed abandonment by Canadian Pacific Railway of its passenger train service between Victoria and Courtenay on the E and N Railway;
- Supported the idea of a smelter and secondary industry in the general area of the Roberts Bank superport development.

Inquest Jury Finds Car Driver Careless

Careless driving on the part of a 21-year-old driver resulted in the death of an 83-year-old woman pedestrian a coroner's jury ruled Wednesday.

The six-man jury took less than 15 minutes to bring in a verdict after hearing nearly two hours of evidence in the death of Mrs. Lily Newell, 1505 Morrison.

The woman died three hours after being hit by a car Saturday at the intersection of Oak Bay and Morrison. Driver of the car was Daniel Flynn, 1802 Oak Bay Avenue.

Dr. Kenneth Thornton, a pathologist at Royal Jubilee Hospital said that Mrs. Newell suffered a severe fracture of the left pelvis and a puncture wound under the chin. Cause of death was due to shock and heavy bleeding he said.

Carolyn Trenton, 2340 Oak Bay, said she was travelling east on Oak Bay about three car lengths behind Flynn's car. She said Mrs. Newell was going across the street from north to south and was about half-way to the center line when she saw her.

Mrs. Trenton said the next thing she knew Mrs. Newell was in the air.

When Daniel Flynn was called to testify he asked for the protection of the Canada Evidence Act. However when coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre cited precedents to show that he need not testify Flynn's counsel, Alan Bigelow asked that his client not say anything.

After a 50 minute charge from the coroner the jury ruled that Flynn was driving with undue care and attention at the time of the accident.

70 Persons Charged In Second Drug Raid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Special court facilities had to be set up Wednesday to handle more than 70 persons charged with narcotics offences in Vancouver's biggest crackdown on drug trafficking.

Fifty-eight persons were charged with trafficking and warrants were issued for the arrest of another 24 suspected traffickers.

A minimum of $10,000 bail plus security bonds was set for 14 who appeared in court.

A combined force of 40 RCMP and city police officers hit hippie haunts and downtown hotels in the second major assault on suspected drug traffickers this year.

The operation hinged on undercover work of RCMP constables Terry Hart and Don Sundset who, bearded and long-haired, spent five months circulating in the city's hippie society purchasing drugs for anything from $10 to well over $100.

The officers said they purchased quantities of marijuana, opium, hashish, LSD, the barbiturate phenmatrazine, and a synthetic marijuana called hydrocannabinal.

The first drug crackdown Feb. 19 resulted in 62 persons being charged.

Clubs to Get Special Book On Welfare

Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell has announced that 10,000 copies of "Twenty "Questions" will be mailed out to service clubs and other groups in the province in the hopes of arousing social conscience.

The pamphlet asks the groups what they are doing to help disadvantaged citizens obtain jobs, better food, better housing, better education, more self-help advice and other assistance.

It is an outgrowth of Mr. Campbell's program laughed earlier this year to persuade municipal governments and community organizations to take greater personal interest in the people of their own communities rather than leaving prolem cases to professional workers entirely.

"There is a real role to be played by private individuals if we can interest them in community involvement," he said.

Mr. Campbell said the "first printing" of 10,000 copies of the pamphlets produced by his department cost only some $600 or $700.

OUTDOORS UNLITTERED

Volunteers Begin Beach Cleanup

Unlittered outdoors is the aim of Outdoors Unlittered, a group of Victoria area residents who believe action is necessary to keep beach areas beautiful.

Four group members toured Cadboro Bay Wednesday in their bi-monthly cleanup—clearing the beach of paper, broken glass, plastic bags, cans, and cigarette packages they could find.

"We normally can pick up four large buckets of trash each in less than two hours," said OU president Mrs. Catherine Sherman.

"We've been out all summer on the first and third Wednesdays of each month, alternating between Cordova Bay and Cadboro Bay beaches."

The group believes a two-pronged attack is necessary to fight the litter problem—cleanups and education.

Member Elton Anderson said parents who do not teach children to dispose of litter properly must take the blame for the unsavory condition of many public areas.

He said that as the group gains members they hope to conduct public campaigns to remind people not to litter.

Mrs. Sherman said the group started the beach cleanups in order to gain publicity and to provide a useful service.

"We wrote to each municipality in the Victoria area and asked if we could be of help, and Saanich said they were unable to provide proper service on these two days," she said.

Mrs. Sherman said the group often phones the municipal engineer after a clean-up to suggest more litter cans be placed in a certain area.

Mr. Anderson said people who wish to join the group don't necessarily have to come to the beaches and help clean up.

"We could use moral and financial support for our campaigns," he said.

The group can be contacted at 386-1965 or 477-1034.

$18 MILLION SAVED DUE TO UNIFICATION

WINNIPEG (CP)—Maj.-Gen. William K. Carr, new commander of the Canadian Forces Training Command, said Wednesday armed forces unification is saving the government about $18,000,000 a year.

In a news conference on his arrival here to take over his new post succeeding Maj.Gen. Richard C. Stovel, the general said "there is no question about being better off" because of unification.

As an example, Maj.-Gen. Stovel told the meeting that training command had reduced the number of its schools to 33 from 58 since unification.

'Students Will Lead Real Social Change'

VANCOUVER (CP) — President-elect Martin Loney of the Canadian Union of Students said Wednesday there is a real possibility of a mass student movement to spearhead radical social change in the whole community within two or three years.

Mr. Loney, 24, made the comment in an interview after returning from the annual CUS congress in Guelph, Ont.

He said students throughout Canada are more determined than ever to decide what kind of university and what kind of a society they want.

Mr. Loney, student leader at Simon Fraser University in suburban Burnaby, said the majority of delegates who attended the congress are committed to social change—and to attacking "the corporate and imperialist influences" on society.

He suggested the major achievement of the congress may have been an awareness that 1968 students cannot ignore important events like the Vietnam war.

U.S. Considers Opening Door to Czech Citizens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may open the door to Czechoslovaks who would rather live here than under Soviet occupation, authoritative sources said today.

This was one of several responses to the continuing Soviet presence in Czechoslovakia discussed at a secret session of the National Security Council Wednesday night.

Another possibility discussed was a joint pledge with NATO allies that no reductions would be made fron the present troop levels in Europe.

It was understood that the council, made up of President Johnson and his top military, diplomatic and intelligence advisers, reached no decisions, but prepared recommendations for a cabinet meeting today.

Should the United States issue a statement promising extra-quota refugee status for Czech citizens, it would parallel action taken after the 1956 Hungarian uprising. More than 30,[illegible]00 refugee cases were handled then.

For the time being, this appears to be a symbolic gesture. Few Czechs have asked U.S. consuls for asylum.

A state department spokesman said Wednesday he had no exact figures available.

U.S. consuls in Europe already have been instructed to handle Czech requests under the clause of the Immigration and Naturalization Act which authorizes the government to grant residence status to refugees of communism.

The National Security Council meeting is understood to have discussed the whole range of problems, military and political, created by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Officials were ordered not to discuss the meeting.

The administration is understood to be cool toward congressional suggestions to counter the Soviet occupation by curtailing diplomatic, trade and cultural contacts with Moscow.

In the nuclear age, it is explained, the two superpowers cannot afford to sulk and ignore each other.

U.S. officials on the other hand rejected the Soviet contention that the Yalta Conference of the Big Three—Russia, the U.S. and Britain—created spheres of influence in Europe, in effect permitting the Soviets to handle Eastern Europe as if it were part of the Soviet Union.

Bill Menzies ponders delay in fishing career.

Overland Route Stops Cruiser With A Jolt

People used to come around to gaze with envy on Bill Menzies' dream boat at Cowichan Bay.

But today they come to look at his wreck.

The transformation took place last weekend when his son, 18-year-old Bill Jr., rammed the 28-footer high and dry on the rocks of Burial Island.

The after-midnight crash tore the bows right out of the two-week-old $17,000 boat. At the same time it put a crimp in Mr. Menzies' plan to start a commercial fishing career.

Bill Jr. had taken the boat to Salt Spring Island Sunday to visit his sister and was on the way home to Cowichan Bay when the accident occurred.

MISJUDGED LIGHT

According to his father, Bill misjudged the flashing warning light in the dark. He drove the boat so far on the rocks it was clear of the water altogether.

Using the ship's radio he sent out a "May Day" signal which was picked up by the coastguard.

Young Bill was rescued from the rock about 2 a.m. Monday by John Bentzen of Maple Bay Marina.

In order to get the wreck off Burial Island Mr. Bentzen had to call in Coal Harbor Ltd. with its landing barge.

With the use of a crane the damaged boat was lifted clear of the rock and taken into Maple Bay on the barge.

The boat is a combined fishing and pleasure cruiser designed for use in the inside waters of the Straits of Georgia.

Mr. Menzies Sr. said Wednesday the boat was insured but adjusters had still to examine it and decide if repairs are possible.

Russian Ship Coming Friday For Repairs

A 200-foot Russian icebreaker towing a crane-equipped barge is expected to arrive in Victoria Friday for repairs and supplies.

The Yuri Lisyanskiy spent nearly a day Wednesday in U.S. waters off the coast of Oregon without permission. During the day she was boarded by crewmen of the Coast Guard cutter Modoc.

A Coast Guard spokesman in Seattle said Wednesday it was discovered that part of the vessel's towing gear was broken and it had been necessary to take shelter from rough seas.

Education Group Supports Move to End Strapping

The Island Branch of the Association for Childhood Education has added its support to a move to abolish the strap from Greater Victoria schools.

At a meeting Wednesday night members approved a letter to the school board which says using the strap shows a lack of understanding of child development.

The letter says members appreciate most principals and teachers in the district are worthy but the branch objects to teachers having the right to use the strap at their own discretion on children.

A number of teachers are among members of the ACE branch.

School trustee John Porteous has launched a campaign to eliminate corporal punishment from the school district. The board is scheduled to consider the issue at its September meeting.

FORESTRY EXPERT DIES HERE AT 56

Dr. George Samuel Allen — forester, scientist and educator — died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Wednesday at the age of 56.

For the past two years, he had headed the tree biology section at the Dominion Forestry Laboratory in Victoria. He was working at his office there Tuesday when stricken with a heart attack.

"Dr. Allen had an international reputation for his work in silviculture and seed research," a laboratory spokesman said. "He was also a very solid citizen, and we shall miss him a great deal."

Born in the Isle of Wight and raised in Vancouver, Dr. Allen was assistant forester with the B.C. Forestry Department from 1938 to 1945.

He was dean of forestry at the University of British Columbia from 1953 to 1961.

TRAVELLED U.S.

From 1961 to 1966, he was director of forestry research with the Weyerhauser Company at Centralia, Washington, and his work took him across the United States.

In 1966, Dr. Allen returned to British Columbia to join the Dominion Forestry Laboratory.

He is survived by the widow, Dorothy, at their home at 2990 Phyllis Street; a son, James Michael at the state college of Washington at Pullman, a daughter, Mrs. Evert (Wendy) Olson, North Vancouver; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Allen, Vancouver; a brother, Stanley J., Victoria; and two grandsons.

Funeral services will be held at Simmons and McBride's chapel, Vancouver, Saturday at 3 p.m. and followed by cremation. McCall Brothers of Victoria are in charge of arrangements.

Uvic Bulging Predicted By Registrar

By DON VIPOND

Close to 5,000 students will be crammed onto the University of Victoria campus when lectures get underway Sept. 23.

Enrolment was 4,075 last September and facilities were crowded. The jump of about 20 per cent predicted for the first term this month will have to be accommodated in practically the same space.

"I think we're going to be able to make it this year," registrar Ron Ferry said today, "although it's going to be pretty tight."

Timetables will be juggled and the university will be using more space in huts for classrooms to meet the pressure.

The Sedgewick Building, which will house the president and the English department, will be completed this month and will ease the faculty crowding.

Mr. Ferry said between 4,900 and 5,000 students will probably be registered but a number won't show up because they will have gained admittance to some other university.

It's a natural product of the trend to apply at several universities hoping for admittance to one, he said.

REGISTRATION

Undergraduates will register from Sept. 16 to 19 and graduate students on the 20th. These are students whose applications have previously been processed and approved.

The university is offering over 700 courses this year, an increase of about 100 over last year.

Graduate student enrolment, 95 last year, will be between 200 and 225.

The registrar said he is struck by the mobility of the modern university student. The university will have students from all parts of Canada and many points of the U.S. One in four students were from off Vancouver Island last year and this ratio is expected to continue.

Local young people are also travelling for their education, he said.

"I think they're looking for the experience of new situations, new faces," he said of the trend generally.

Fees at Uvic remain the same this year at about $450. They last went up in 1966.

So far there is no indication the university will follow the lead of UBC and Simon Fraser where students are registering this week and starting classes next week in a move to even the length of first and second terms.

At Uvic this year Christmas exams will start Dec. 9 and the first term will end Dec. 20. The second term ends April 11 with exams through the balance of the month.

POWER CUT AT CAMPUS

Offices were darkened and computers and electric typewriters quiet at the University of Victoria today as the campus went without power.

Electricity was shut off for the day to permit connections to be made in the commons block under construction.

The university maintained a severely curtailed telephone service using its emergency standby power system. Lights will go back on Friday.

Engine Trouble Seen As Reason for Crash

City Pilot Drowned In Swim to Shore?

BRIAN SYLVESTER
. . . varied career

Navy divers were to begin a search today for the body of former Victorian Brian Sylvester, 33, whose float-equipped light plane crashed into Muchalat Lake near Gold River Wednesday.

A commercial pilot and son of William B. Sylvester, president of Victoria Flying Services Ltd., he crashed in deep water about one-quarter mile from shore, RCMP said.

Passenger Hank Boschman of Chilliwack was uninjured and swam ashore.

The plane, a new Cessna 185, was owned by Pacific Euclid Ltd., a Vancouver-based tractor firm for whom Mr. Sylvester was both pilot and sales representative.

A spokesman for the company said early reports are that the aircraft was attempting to take off from the lake, some 15 miles north of Gold River, when mechanical troubles developed.

It was apparently less than 200 feet up when Mr. Sylvester attempted to put it back down on the lake.

He made a tight bank and crashed into water between 200 and 500 feet deep.

Indiciations are that he survived the crash but disappeared while attempting to reach shore.

A native of Victoria and graduate of Victoria High School, Mr. Sylvester is survived by his parents, his wife Joyce and four children.

When he completed high school, he began working for radio station CKDA as a news reader and disc jockey.

While he worked the night shift at the radio station, he was also owner-manger of the Veterans Stage Lines, a bus company that went out of business in 1964.

ON BUSINESS

He moved then to Richmond, worked for awhile as a full-time disc jockey with radio station CKNW in New Westminster before turning his full attention to flying and sales for Pacific Euclid.

He and Mr. Boschman had been in Gold River on business and were leaving when the crash occurred about 12:10 p.m.

His father, a pioneer B.C. flier, started his Victoria business career with a U-Drive car business.

He turned to the aircraft business and took out the first charter licence in B.C. when he started B.C. Airlines Ltd. It continued as the province's largest charter firm until he sold it in 1956.

Three years later he came out of semi-retirement to head a new venture, Victoria Flying Services.

City Names Knick-Knack Committee

The city is on the hunt for a knick-knack for visiting dignitaries.

The souvenir of Victoria has to be unique—something indicative of the city—not the usual cufflinks or plate with the city crest.

Mayor Hugh Stephen was directed by council's Group A committee this morning to set up a special committee to study the knick-knack question.

The matter came up with discussion of a letter from the Canadian Art China Ltd. of Collingwood, Ontario.

The company offered a sample of small china plate with the city crest embossed on it, with the assurance that many municipalities use its product.

The city could hand them out to visiting convention delegates, the company suggested.

Mayor Stephen told the committee he now presents a wooden tray or a book on Vancouver Island to visiting officials. At one time, the city gave them miniature lamp standards "which I thought were rather cute," he said.

He suggested small, hand-carved totem poles produced locally, but a committee member said this would not be fitting because of the large number of Japanese-made totems on the market.

So the committee recommended a group be set up to choose "a unique sort of gift to visitors."

TOUGH STAND CONFIRMED BY LOFFMARK

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark gave more evidence today of a tough approach to sewage disposal plans by municipalities and shrugged off suggestions it is causing a cabinet split.

He said there was no conflict "that I know of" between him and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell over procedures for Saanich's proposed referendum on amalgamating its eight sewer bylaws.

(Mr. Loffmark has announced the law requires his certificate before the referendum bylaw can be put to ratepayers while Mr. Campbell has supported in writing Saanich council's contention the referendum has nothing to do with the current sewage disposal controversy)

"I have nothing to do with pollution control or municipal affairs," Mr. Loffmark told reporters this morning. "My responsibility is only for health matters.

'DO MY DUTY'

"I am going to do my duty (which) as I read the health act is to warn the public when warning is necessary and to take steps when steps are needed to protect public health."

He said there are eight applications from the lower mainland now seeking his certificate approvals for sewerage projects but he has held them up for a thorough study by his department.

"I won't sign those certificates until I'm satsified that the public health aspect is preotected," he said.

He said none of the certificate applications was from Saanich.

Federal Housing Task Force Due In November

Public hearings will be held here Nov. 6 by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer's task force on housing.

The seven-member group will move to Vancouver the following two days for further hearings before continuing a cross-Canada swing, according to a tentative schedule issued Wednesday in Ottawa.

Location and times for the hearing in Victoria have not been set.

The task force opens its public hearings in Ottawa Sept. 16 before embarking on the national tour during which it plans to consult provincial authorities and hear briefs of architects, town planners, municipal and other interested groups.

Main interest of the study is concentrated on finding improvements for the federal government's mortgage policy, planning and building techniques.

DIRTY BIRD SHOOTING BRINGS FINE

A man who shot and killed a pigeon belonging to his next-door neighbor because it messed up his yard was fined $15 by Magistrate William Ostler today.

Frederick Steinwender, 73 Kingham Place, said 25 to 30 pigeons belonging to Harvey Roth, 69 Kingham Place, had a habit of sitting on his television antenna and messing up his sidewalk. He said he used an air rifle to shoot at the antenna because it made a clanging noise and he wanted to scare them away.

The magistrate said that was a "pretty persuasive argument."

Steinwender said he had no intention of killing any birds and did not know that he lived in a no-shooting area.

Crisis Meeting Called

Shipyard union leaders from Yarrows Ltd. were to meet Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson this afternoon to find out whatever happened to the promised replacement for the coast guard ship Estevan.

The confrontation comes at the crisis point of a situation in which Yarrows are laying off 100 workers and the unions have presented the company with demands for a 12½ per cent wage increase.

The Estevan replacement, promised by Transport Minister Hellyer during the June election campaign and announced by Mr. Anderson, is the only sign of a major Canadian shipbuilding contract to be let in the near future.

By the weekend, Yarrows will have completed work on the only two major projects it now has.

These are repairs to the collision-damaged American freighter Rose S and construction of the fisheries department patrol boat Tanu.

John Wallace, Yarrows general manager, said he has been able to get "nothing concrete" from Ottawa that would indicate when the tender might be called.

LONG DELAYS

But even when it does come out, there will be a two month delay until a bid is chosen and then a further four or five month delay before work can begin.

After the weekend, the company will employ only about 200 men in the Victoria yards.

Of the new union wage demands, Mr. Wallace said he was "completely shattered when I saw the demands that came in the face of a situation everybody knows we have been in for several months."

The 24 provincial shipyard unions, representing about 800 workers, made their demands of the two major shipyards Wednesday.

Management officials said then that fringe benefits asked by the unions would bring the total increase to 88 cents an hour for tradesmen. Basic wage rate for tradesmen now is $3.80 an hour.

J. W. Hudson, executive vice-president of Burrard Drydock Ltd. of North Vancouver and Yarrows, said the unions' demands threaten the survival of the West Coast shipbuilding industry.

COMPANIES STUNNED

He said the companies were stunned by the unions' failure to understand this. He said B.C. shipyard wage rates already are more than $1 higher than at Eastern shipyards.

Secretary Bill Stewart of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers' Union disagreed vehemently.

He said in an interview that the shipyard company has a virtual monopoly on this coast and over the last several years has "lots of money in reserve that has been built up by the shipyard workers and we want our share of it." Formerly the federal government spread out construction contracts between B.C., the St. Lawrence and the Maritimes. Recently it stopped doing this in favor of calling tenders for contracts.

"Now they have to bid and they say they can't do it," said Mr. Stewart.

"They want to live on repairs."

MUSEUM "PEACEFUL"

Opinion Differences But No Revolution

Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan today said there is no unrest whatever among curatorial staff at the Provincial Museum.

He said there is a "vigorous difference of opinion" among permanent staff on scientific matters occasionally and there may be unhappiness among some temporary helpers who have completed their tasks.

But Mr. Kiernan attacked newspapers as over-playing these aspects and suggested a report that three unnamed museum workers had aired grievances to a reporter was close to a concoction.

Mr. Kiernan told reporters he held meetings with top-level administrators of the museum this morning to investigate the report.

"I am satisfied that the basis of the report was not from curatorial staff and in my opinion it was very close to rumor-mongering, somewhat below and unlike the normal standards we expect and receive from the Press Gallery."

WRONG IMPLICATION

Mr. Kiernan said he was not denying that a meeting may have taken place with a reporter but he said it did not involve permanent curatorial staff as implied by the report.

"I have been assured this thing did not originate with the curatorial staff and it is not, in my opinion, an internal staff problem because, of course, I cannot make my staff responsible for what may or not have transpired with temporary help."

Mr. Kiernan said the museum frequently hired temporary help (budgeting $60,000 this year for temporary salaries) "and we really have no way of knowing what they do or do not say of their jobs."

Mr. Kiernan said he was satisfied that "there is no unrest" although there may be vigorous differences of opinion among the permanent staff "but in this particular field where you have cultural and scientific matters if there weren't some differences of opinion it would be a pretty dead operation."

Ask The Times

Q. Besides ice hockey, what sports have been invented by Canadians?—B.H.

A. Only one other organized sport, lacrosse, has distinctly Canadian origins. Lacrosse as we know it, is a modified version of what Indians had been playing for centuries before white men came to North America. The Encyclopedia of Sports says of basketball: "There is no mystery about (its) origins. It is an American invention." But its inventor, Dr. James A. Naismith, was a Canadian who developed rules for the game while working for a Massachusetts YMCA.

Shapely Candles Make Faces Glow

By PENNY SAVER

What has shining eyes, a dirty face and a huge appetite? A child on his (or her) birthday of course. Children are so thrilled by birthdays it is hard to believe that anything could make the day more exciting. After all with a yummy layer cake to look forward to, who cares about fancy candles? Could any centrepiece compete with a big plate of ice cream? And when there are games to be played, does a fancy tablecloth really matter? Perhaps not, but the last children's party I attended sticks in my mind. The hostess loves decorating cakes and before she brought in her masterpiece she dimmed the lights. The cake came in alight with novelty candles and carefully shaped to look like a Noah's ark. The gasp of delight that came from the assembled children proved the popularity of her craftsmanship.

This Noah's-ark cake was topped with animal-shaped candles. It didn't take me long to find out where they had been bought so on my next trip downtown I took a look for myself. These animal-shaped candles come in packages of five for 69 cents. The line includes candle cowboys and cowgirls, frogs, turtles and assorted circus animals. Each package contains an assortment of colors as well. The tallest candles, the cowboys, are little more than an inch in height.

Much more delicate were low-lying flower candles. These come in boxes of eight for $2.69. The flowers lie close to the surface of the cake and I can imagine how pretty they must look when lighted. They come in a variety of colors and two shapes.

Novel Candles Won't Blow Out

Blowing out the candles is a favorite part of a party, but what if those candles just won't go out? While I was shopping I saw some candles that are specially made to relight themselves after they have been "blown out." The only way in which they can be extinguished is by pinching the wicks, not really an act of bravery if you know how. These "magic" candles come in a package of 12 for 89 cents. They are available in either pink or blue.

Both birthdays and anniversaries have one thing in common — numbers. Candles made in the shape of numbers are available in pink, white or blue. A toothpick holds them on the cake. They go from 1 to 0 so any combination is possible, and include a question mark for special effects. They cost 35c each.

The number candles I mentioned above can only be used once but there is another sort with a longer life. On these the bright yellow number is supported by a mischievous-looking brown monkey with a pink face. Behind this there is a plain candle which, when lighted, casts a glow around the number. These numbers go from 1 to 0 (without the question mark this time) and stand around three or four inches high. They have a fairly broad base that holds them upright on a cake or even a table. Each costs 69 cents.

If you would like to know where to find these unusual candles, please call 382-3131.

Sets Up Distress Centre

TORONTO (CP) — Birthright, a counselling service to persuade mothers-to-be not to undergo abortions, has been set up by a Toronto mother of seven who says she feels a "compassion for these little fetuses who are just snuffed out."

Louise Summerhill decided to set up a "distress centre" after reading of Abortions Anonymous in England, which helps women get abortions.

"I just thought this was such a negative approach," says Mrs. Summerhill. About 100 women already have volunteered to work at the centre and will be screened and trained before counselling women.

The organization has 25 members including eight clergymen, a clinical psychologist, a social worker, four gynecologists and a psychiatrist.

Mrs. Summerhill, a Roman Catholic, hopes to start the centre by next fall. It will be based on the lines of the centre operated by the Toronto Samaritans for persons contemplating suicide.

The service will be non-denominational and will shun any involvement in controversial aspects of abortion laws.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

To Wear or Not to Wear A Girdle Is the Question

The following is a letter from a reader.

Lowman

"Dear Josephine Lowman:

I enjoy your column very much but I haven't read any column of yours which deals with the following question.

If possible I would like to see the pros and cons about wearing a girdle. My measurements are, bust 36, waist 26, and hips 39 inches. I dislike girdles very much, but I have been told by a friend of mine that I should wear one.

I like the natural look and the natural feeling I have without a girdle. I also have a theory that perhaps these girdles are causing women to have female trouble, and even cancer by squeezing the insides together so tight. — Mrs. P..K"

I have often written about the pros and cons of wearing a girdle, but here goes. If the friend who told this reader she should wear a girdle is really a friend, my reader would probably look more attractive when wearing one.

So far as female trouble and cancer are concerned, I think she, and you, can forget that. I have never heard or read anything which suggests such an idea. Anyway, today girdles are not that formidable.

First, let us approach the question of whether or not to wear a girdle from the viewpoint of looking most attractive. The "natural" look is good only if the figure is "naturally" good. I think that most women can use a bit of persuasion from a girdle, here and there. However, of course, there are exceptions.

Health-wise, there are certain physical conditions where abdominal support is essential. This is for your doctor to decide.

Now let us think of the average middle aged woman who has no special problem. Ideally, a woman should have such strong abdominal muscles that she does not need extra support for her internal organs in order to have a lovely figure.

Unfortunately, this is seldom true. The abdominal muscles became lax because of poor posture, lack of exercise, and pregnancy with no reconditioning exercises afterward.

I think that the average woman looks better with a girdle, and feels better, at least until she strengthens her abdominal muscles with exercises. I also think she makes a mistake to depend on girdles only. Indulge in exercises which will take up the slack in abdominal muscles.

If you would like some more exercises that will reduce the abdomen or strengthen your abdominal muscles, send for Josephine Lowman's free leaflet, "Abdominal Exercises." It may be yours if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

They also attended a reception last evening, followed by a banquet given by the province of British Columbia. Tonight, delegates and their wives will be guests at a salmon barbecue at Sooke, and on Friday, the city of Victoria and the municipalities of Oak Bay and Esquimalt will host a luncheon at the Empress Hotel.

Former Canadian Becomes Booster for British City

OTTAWA (CP) — A former Ottawa woman is an avid booster of the important hat industry in Luton, England, where she was "mayoress" last year.

But then, says Mrs. Frank Lester, the great French entertainer Maurice Chevalier buys all his straw-boaters in Luton. And there's no such thing as a Salvation Army bonnet or hat that isn't manufactured there.

When Frank Lester became mayor of the Bedfordshire city, his wife Shirley automatically received a chain of office too and the title "mayoress".

PARENTS IN OTTAWA

"It's different being a mayor's wife in England," she said on a recent visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Denison Wilson of Ottawa who, oddly enough, live at 10 Downing Street.

"A mayor's wife really does wear a chain of office, and although she has no official status, 99 per cent of British cities, towns and boroughs accept her as the second leading citizen."

As first lady of the city that boasts 100 hat factories, Mrs. Lester decided to push local industry and was presented with no fewer than 50 hats, each designed for her wardrobe.

Since her husband's term of office automatically expired after one year, Mrs. Lester has been elected a city councillor in her own right. Her husband now is an alderman.

Since councillors in England don't work for pay, Mrs. Lester carries on with her regular job as a private secretary to a brewery executive.

Shirley met her husband 11 years ago in London, where she was working on a Canadian government immigration program.

Burlesque Queen in Business Of Selling Gourmet Dog Food

By JUDITH [illegible]RTIN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Gypsy Rose Lee, who left burlesque in 1933 "because I found something better to do, and almost anything is," is selling dog food these days.

Accompanied by a Chinese hairless puppy, Miss Lee presided over a party in the Sheraton Carlton Hotel here Wednesday to introduce a gourmet dog food, in which she owns 2,000 shares of stock.

She supervised the dinners of half a dozen puppies on top of a table covered with a pink linen cloth, and kept up rapid patter from what she calls "the old days of good earthy vulgarity," before there was such a thing as a topless waitress "dangling one breast in the poor customer's soup."

"It's a boy," she suddenly announced of the dog she held. "I have nine dogs, three of them pregnant. They're all Chinese hairless: naked dogs. What kind of dogs would you expect me to have? They're not really hairless; they have hair where people have hair. I breed them. Well, I don't exactly breed them, they breed themselves.

"I was going to take my favorite, Fu Manchu, but he vomited all the way to the airport, and I thought, 'That's enough of that.' We used my Charlie Chan in the commercials. We kept feeding him—four cans—and afterwards he threw up five cans, including the cans.

"We tried to do another one with eight dogs eating, and they all just kept running around the food sniffing each other."

Wednesday's collection of puppies, from the Puppy Palace, were wolfing down the cans of beef burgundy and beef Irish stew the company provided. Miss Lee kept telling public relations men to get some newspaper, but no one was paying much attention.

Miss Lee insists that the dog food is delicious, and she kept trying to get people to smell it and admit that it didn't taste like dog food.

Her home is a 27-room, "early Gloria Swanson" house in Beverly Hills, Calif. In it, in addition to her and the dogs, live David and Lisa, who are peacocks, 30 fantailed pigeons, 30 canaries, "some lovely finches," three tanks of goldfish, tropical fish and a whydah, which has "one long feather which it discards at Christmas time, and then it looks so naked."

(An advertisement of considerable importance to women)

First new tampon in years brings peace of mind to its user.

Johnson & Johnson pioneers a new concept in sanitary protection—CAREFREE* Tampons

(MONTREAL J & J) Of course, tampons have been around for a long time but no real improvements have been made in them for some 20 years.

Now, Johnson & Johnson introduces its new CAREFREE Tampon. It's an entirely new kind of tampon—much smaller than any tampon ever made, yet amazingly, it offers longer lasting protection—up to 3 hours longer.

Another remarkable feature of CAREFREE Tampon is that it is truly disposable. No more rigid cardboard tube: there's just a neat, compact tampon in a cellophane wrapper.

What are other women doing about sanitary protection?

According to research studies conducted in Canada, the use of tampons is growing rapidly. Their use is widely accepted, particularly among the younger, more sophisticated women. In this group, the majority of women use tampons.

Most women think that tampons are indeed a good idea. But they worry about the reliability of present products, particularly when it comes to using them during the entire period. (Some women are so concerned that they use both tampons and napkins) but such precautions are completely unnecessary with new CAREFREE Tampon.

Safe up to 3 hours longer

Now, Johnson & Johnson has developed CAREFREE, the most absorbent, the most reliable tampon ever made. CAREFREE is, in fact, safe for up to 3 hours longer than any other tampon.

This greater absorbency results from a unique quality. While the traditional tampon expands lengthwise, the CAREFREE Tampon expands, logically enough, in width—as the flow requires. This gentle expansion causes the tampon to mould itself to the body contours so it's accident-proof.

Complete assurance

Exhaustive clinical tests and actual use among 3,720 women have proven that CAREFREE Tampons can be worn, with complete assurance, even during days when the flow is heaviest.

And the CAREFREE Tampon is made of pure surgical rayon. This type of rayon was developed by Johnson & Johnson and only Johnson & Johnson uses it. It has a high crimp and its long fibers interlock. This results in higher absorbency. And the tampon holds its shape, too!

New CAREFREE Tampons are truly disposable

The cumbersome applicator that you get with ordinary tampons is a thing of the past. CAREFREE doesn't have an applicator because it doesn't need one. It is compact, smooth and firm enough to be inserted easily without one. And this makes CAREFREE a truly disposable tampon.

CAREFREE is also the smallest tampon there is—so small you can hide one in the palm of your hand. So small you can put a box in your most fashionable bag and still have room for all that you usually carry. (A whole box of CAREFREE Tampons takes up no more room than a small pack of cigarettes.)

Once they've tried CAREFREE Tampons women are quick to recognize their many great advantages. They're the only significant improvement in sanitary protection in years.

We'll send you—free—a package of 10 new CAREFREE Tampons in a plain envelope, addressed to you personally. What Does "501" Mean?

"501" is not a fibre name. It is a Du Pont certification mark that stands for tested value. Many carpets certified "501" actually exceed the requirements.
The FIVE tough Du Pont tests that nylon carpets must pass for "501" certification are:
1. FIBRE QUALITY TEST
To assure resistance to hard wear, spots and stains.
2. FIBRE DENSITY TEST
To give you elegance of lush, deep pile.
3. "FUZZ" PROOF
Pile yarns securely locked in to prevent them pulling up and creating a "fuzzy" appearance.
4. COLOUR RETENTION TEST
Invite the sun into your home. These carpets will resist fading.
5. STABILITY TEST
Let the group dance on it! Your carpet will not ripple or change shape.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Birthmark Causes Rude Questions

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Comfort for the lady of fashion.

Shoes with Comfort Always at King's

1453 DOUGLAS ST.

DEAR ABBY: I have a birthmark on my neck which I can do nothing about. It used to be a strawberry red, but now it's gotten brownish, but it's just as noticeable.

I have used cosmetics to cover it, but powders and creams come off on my clothing, so I finally said, "To heck with that!"

I have been to all kinds of doctors and they all say, "It cannot be removed," and a skin graft would be too extensive, and it might leave scars which would be even worse.

I know you can't help me, Abby, but if you print this, perhaps it will stop a few people from staring at me in wonderment, or coming right out and asking me the incredibly rude question, "Is your neck dirty?" — BIRTHMARK CURSE.

DEAR BIRTHMARK: A good rule to remember is, "If there is no remedy for it, learn to live with it." You can't stop rude people from staring. Neither can you prevent them from asking cruel and thoughtless questions, but you can avoid much embarrassment by coming right out yourself (when people stare) and saying, "No, my neck is not dirty . . . that's a birthmark."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old male who is getting married in September. My mother is going to have a baby in October. She is 44 years old, and is heartbroken about her condition because she's a widow. She couldn't believe it at first, but the doctor said she is definitely pregnant.

Abby, I love my mother and I intend to stick by her regardless. My problem is whether to tell my fiancee and her family about my mother. Is it really any of their business? All they know is that my mother is a middle-aged widow. I would appreciate your advice on this. — IN DOUBT.

DEAR IN: Your mother's condition is nobody's business but hers. But a widow who plans to appear at her son's wedding in her 8th month had better be prepared to answer a few questions. (And so should you.)

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is soon to be married to a very nice young man, and here is the problem: HIS mother is having a "JACK AND JILL" shower for my daughter and her son, and she is going around SELLING TICKETS to anyone who will buy one for $3.50! I am flabbergasted, to say the least.

How do we get out of this ridiculous situation? I know it is not proper for the parents of the bride or groom to host a shower, but this business of selling tickets is dreadful, and we want no part of it. Any suggestions? — EMBARRASSED.

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Tell the mother of the groom (with all the kindness you can muster) that you appreciate her good intentions, but to forget the shower lest people get the impression that she's motivated by the loot.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HEADING UP OUR UNITED CRUSADE": If you want to get a job done, give it to a successful business man. He's sure to have a competent secretary. He'll ask HER to do it.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

Mini-Skirt Invasion Hits Saigon Streets

SAIGON (AP) — Despite the war, the rain and the weight of tradition, the mini-jupe — known most other places as the mini-skirt — has arrived.

Saigon has spawned a generation of teenyboppers who cavort on the rain-splashed city streets in mod attire.

But most Vietnamese males don't seem to approve. Expressing an Oriental distaste for exhibitionism, one writer to a Saigon newspaper said: "These children, these flowers would wilt without their marijuana. They are obscene."

Like many others, he yearns for the continued use of the ao dai, Vietnam's traditional garb that girls strolled in along the once-graceful French boulevards of Saigon and Hanoi.

A long white or flowered silk skirt slit at each side revealed loose white silk trousers and met, at a tiny waist, a bodice with a high collar and long sleeves.

Nowadays the young Vietnamese girls may have thongs tied up her calves, a tiny miniskirt hugged to her thighs with a low-slung leather belt, topped off by a tight sweater.

COOKING CAN BE FUN

BY MARY MOORE

Recipe for Green Relish Is an Old-Time Favorite

Moore

Every day last week requests arrived in the mail for pickle recipes, '67 Mustard Chunk Pickles leading in popularity. I will repeat it here on Friday of this week.

But today I have a sweet green relish given to Shirley by her mother-in-law, Anna Janzen. A jar of it sits on my desk. It has a professional bright green color, crisp texture and is John's favorite relish. It is easy to make for all vegetables go through the grinder which John manned.

ANNA JANZEN'S SWEET GREEN RELISH

(approx. 22 8-oz. jars)

Thoroughly wash and grind through medium knife of food grinder 6 quarts of cucumbers; 3 sweet red peppers, seeded; 8 large peeled white cooking onions; 1 large bunch celery, leaves removed.

Measure. Shirley had 24 cups. Add and stir in ¼ cup pickling salt and let stand 24 hours. Drain. You will have 16 cups drained vegetables.

Cook together for 20 minutes the vegetable mixture, 4 cups cider vinegar, 8 cups granulated sugar.

Then mix together well ¼ cup flour, 4 teaspoons dry mustard, 1 teaspoon celery seed, 1 teaspoon green food coloring, then mix to a smooth paste with ½ cup cider vinegar (second amount).

Stir carefully into hot vegetable mixture until blended and ever so slightly thickened, then cook five minutes longer, stirring constantly. Pour into 22 eight-oz. sterilized jars, immediately pour over hot paraffin, put on lids, wash and cool and lable.

NOTE: Your children will love the above Sweet Green Relish in their sandwiches. Obviously it is excellent for hot dogs and hamburgers.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Take a look at the East hand only. You are playing in a team game with International Match Point scoring which is the form of duplicate that comes closest to requiring rubber bridge strategy.

♥J 10 8 4
♦K 10 7 5
♣K Q 6 3

Neither vulnerable

South	West	North	East
4♠	Pass	Pass	(See article.)

Opening lead—See article

You would have opened with one heart but, unfortunately, South has started proceedings by bidding four spades and you must decide what to do.

You can pass; you can bid five hearts; you can double or you can bid four no-trump. The double would be for business but your partner might decide to take it out with a singleton spade and some high cards. In that case you would get to hearts. The four no-trump bid would ask him to bid a minor suit. If he selected diamonds you would be delighted, if he bid clubs you would go to hearts.

You should decide against the four no-trump call. Your hand just isn't strong enough for this bid. You also will probably decide against the pass. Of course, if you look at all the cards you will see that a pass is best. Your partner has as close to a blank hand as he can hold and you will be in trouble if you take any positive action.

At the table, the first East player decided to double. He wasn't at all confident of his ability to make five hearts and he hoped to set the four spade contract. Needless to say he didn't succeed in cashing anything except his two red aces. In fact, if he hadn't been careful he might have lost one of them.

The second East decided to bid five hearts. North doubled when it got back to him and East could only makes even tricks.

Five spades doubled at four amounted to 690 points; down four at five hearts doubled was 700. A 10-point difference is not scoreed in IMPs so the teams came out even.

Rules Planned To Warn Parents About Aspirins

OTTAWA (CP) — New federal drug regulations are being introduced to require manufacturers to warn parents of the danger to children of overdoses of acetylsalicylic acid, commonly known as A.S.A. or aspirin.

The food and drug directorate of the national health department has mailed notices of the change to all drug manufacturers. A spokesman said the change likely is to become law later this year.

Drug manufacturers are being given until Sept. 20 to comment on the proposal, which results from a study of acetylsalicylic acid poisoning among children.

A spokesman said such poisoning causes a quarter of the deaths of children in Canada from all forms of poisoning.

Acetylsalicylic acid normally is packaged in tablets of five grains each for adults and 1¼ grains each for children.

The proposed regulations will require manufacturers to label each package with special warnings when a package contains a total of more than 30 grains, 24 of the 1¼-grain tablets of the children's size. The warning must be to the effect that there is enough drug in the package to poison a child and that the drug should always be stored in a safe place out of the reach of children.

WAR MUSEUM GETS VALUED DOCUMENT

LONDON (CP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said Wednesday he has handed over to the state his most cherished possession—the document marking the surrender of Nazi Germany in the Second World War.

Montgomery said the document, signed at Lunenburg Heath, Germany, on May 4, 1945, goes to the Imperial War Museum.

His decision was prompted by a burglary at his home in Alton last November.

Montgomery caused protests in Parliament after the war when he refused to give up the document.

Jurors Find Him Fit for Jury

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two sworn jurors "tried" a prospective juror Wednesday after he claimed he might be prejudiced if empanelled on a B.C. Supreme Court jury.

The procedure arose during selection of a jury for a case in which 10 men are accused of confining a man and assaulting him, both indecently and with intent to cause bodily harm.

Thomas Downie, the prospective 10th juror, told Mr. Justice Thomas Dohm that he was manager of the Vancouver Credit Bureau and felt his knowledge of the bureau's files might prejudice him in any case he heard in Vancouver.

The judge refused to excuse him on these grounds. Hugh McGivern, counsel for one of the accused, immediately challenged Downie "for cause" and the rarely-used court machinery dealing with this situation went into action.

Under a section of the Criminal Code of Canada, Mr. Justice Dohm ordered the two previously sworn jurymen to act as a "jury" to rule on Downie's status.

Downie himself was then called as a witness before them, repeated his reasons, under questioning by Mr. McGivern.

The "jury" retired and after a brief deliberation returned to announce their verdict. They held that Downie must serve as a juryman if called.

Downie was instructed to return to the waiting line but was immediately challenged by McGivern for general reasons and was not required.

The crown announced earlier it is not proceeding "at this time" with Kidnapping charges.

The 10 accused are David Black, 24, Victor John Gregory, 25, Herbert Albert Spivey, 21, Charles Dumont, 27, William Ivor Binns, 20, Laverne Schmidt, 25, Gary Clayton Wilbur, 22 William Arthur Cross, 25, Roger William Pearson, 17, and Aubrey Leighton Baker, 24.

Wilbur is from Red Deer, Alta., and Baker from Edmonton. All the others are from the Vancouver area.

The 10 pleaded not guilty to charges of: kidnapping with intent to confine James Cannan, 20, against his will; kidnapping with intent to hold him to service; confining him against his will; assault with intent to wound, maim, disfigure or cause bodily harm; indecent assault; and assault causing bodily harm.

Prosecutor T. G. Bowen-Colthurst told Mr. Justice Dohm: "The crown at this time will be proceeding with the last four counts on the indictment."

He gave no reasons why the crown would not be proceeding with the first two charges.

Mr. Bowen-Colthurst said the crown will call evidence in an attempt to show that Canna last Feb. 22 was forced into a car after running from a cafe, was struck on the head while being driven to a house in Vancouver and was later "subjected to a series of indignities" by the various accused.

The trial continues.

Long Distance 'Owl Rates' Announced

Previously-announced reductions in long distance telephone rates go into effect September 15.

They are effective between midnight and 6 a.m.

The new rate will see a three-minute call to Vancouver reduced by 20 cents to 55 cents. A three-minute call to almost anywhere in Canada will cost not more than one dollar.

B.C. Telephone Co. said today the midnight to 6 a.m. local time rate applies to customer-dialed station to station calls.

But where dialing directly has not yet been incorporated, operators will place a station to station call under the same rates.

Station to station calls within B.C. will now cost a maximum 70 cents for three minutes during the six-hour period. Points on the Alaska Highway, Yukon and Northwest Territories, or in Atlin are are not included in the schedule.

Cost of dialing Victoria to Halifax will come down from $1.95 to $1; Victoria to Kamloops from $1.40 to 70 cents.

Person to person rates will remain the same, as will rates for station to station calls made between 6 p.m. and midnight or from 6 a.m. to midnight on Sunday.

Day rates will apply from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. rather than starting at 4:30 a.m.

5 Children Remain In Hospital

BURNS LAKE (CP) — Five children remained in hospital at this northern British Columbia community today, undergoing treatment for chemical burns after swallowing popcorn sprinkled with household lye.

One of them, Barbara Cowley, 2, was in serious condition with burns to her throat and mouth. The others were in satisfactory condition.

Five were released Wednesday following treatment for the caustic chemical that can cause severe throat, internal and mouth burns if swallowed.

The poisonings happened Monday when two children found a tin of lye at their Indian reserve home and took it to children playing outside. Some of it was sprinkled on popcorn.

Twenty-five children were taken to hospital and 10 were detained for treatment.

Sewer Issue Gets Support

Two organizations Wednesday expressed support of the Sept. 28 Saanich sewerage consolidation referendum.

The Victoria Labor Council and the Saanich Municipal Employees' Association, at separate meetings, both urged a "yes" vote on the proposal, which will create a standardized sewer system with equal rates for all residents.

F-111A Back in Air

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The United States Air Force chief of staff said Wednesday the FIIIA fighter-bomber, grounded after triple tragedy, is ready to resume combat missions in Vietnam.

Priority Asked For Recreation

NORTH COWICHAN — North Cowichan council Wednesday asked the regional district to give priority to its $800,000 recreation bylaw — but no date was set for the vote.

After a special committee session within a regular council meeting it was decided to instruct municipal representatives on the Cowichan Regional District Board to try and ensure the recreation bylaw is voted on before a proposed $30,000 ambulance building bylaw.

Mayor Donald Morton said the regional district directors should be told that in future any proposed money bylaws affecting North Cowichan should be approved by the council first.

The recreation bylaw seeks to provide a covered swimming pool and community centre building at Pioneer Park.

Voting will be confined to the south end of North Cowichan, the city of Duncan and the unorganized areas of Cobble Hill, Cowichan Bay and Koksilah-Eagle Heights.

Weather Vane Catches Rope; Two Killed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A rope lowering a man from a helicopter snagged on the weather vane of a church steeple and the copter crashed Wednesday, killing the man on the rope and the pilot.

The weather vane, spinning in wind from the copters' rotor blades, caught a rope leading from a harness around Michael McKenna, 31, of nearby Glendale.

For a moment, with Walter M. Atherton, 50, at the controls, the helicopter thrashed in the air, then plunged toward earth.

Atherton, president of Van Nuys Helicopters Inc., was thrown from the cockpit and killed. McKenna was dragged in his harness against a parked car, lifted back into the air and then crushed under the crashing chopper.

McKenna was being lowered to paint the steeple of Forest Lawn Memorial-Park, Hollywood Hills, with a waterproofing compound.

Two workmen nearby suffered minor injury from flying debris as the helicopter broke up.

Overtime Protested By Union

A Victoria union protested Wednesday night that a local company has obtained what it calls an unnecessary overtime permit.

Joe Fowler, vice-president of Local 1-118 of the International Woodworkers of America, said the Board of Industrial Relations has granted a "blanket permit" for overtime to Victoria Plywood Limited for its booming ground operations.

He said the permit is from Aug. 1 to Nov. 2 and allows 15 hours overtime a week but with daily hours not to exceed 10. (The IWA contract is based on an eight-hour day and 40-hour week.)

"With the winter works program being discontinued and plenty of capable workmen unemployed, then surely in this day and age a blanket permit for overtime under the circumstances is highly irregular," he said.

"What has happened to Mr. Bennett's original plan to reduce overtime?"

He said the overtime is not necessary, that the IWA opposes overtime and "if this is going to be the trend, other unions may be in line for problems of this nature."

Book Sales Get Outlet Amid Food

Selling books with your gorceries is the way 13 Canadian chain stores are combining to take advantage of stimulated interest in education.

The food chains are buying unbound Columbia Encyclopedia sections to sell for 99 cents each in their combined 430 supermarket outlets in B.C. There are 19 parts to the series, first of which will be given away, while the remaining 18 will appear week by week. A binder also is available.

The set, from Columbia University Press, New York, retails ordinarily for $49.50. It is suitable for high school or junior college use.

Store chains in the marketing plan are Canada Safeway, Woodward's, Super-Valu, Shop Easy, Overwaitea, High-Low Foods, Lucky Dollar, B.C. Co-Op, Food Fair, Stong's Market, Muldoon's, IGA Stores and Loblaws.

Productivity Idea to End Grain Strike

B.C. Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said Tuesday striking Lakehead grain handlers should accept a wage offer from their employers sweetened by his own proposal of a productivity incentive.

He suggested his idea would be "one solution" to the strike which has caused a back up of grain shipments to export markets resulting in a 16-per-cent price decline for Peace River oats and barley crops.

Mr. Shelford, in a press release, called on all provincial agricultural ministers to come up with ideas for ending the strike.

His own contribution:

"The unions to accept the companies' offer of 55 cents over a 2½-year period and for the companies to offer a substantial productivity or volume bonus for grain moved over and above average volume per man employed.

"I am convinced the efficiency of the labor force could be improved by this method.

"The companies will gain by a more vigorous labor force and lower costs per unit. Labor would gain by more stable employment.

"Only by methods such as this will we remain competitive on the world market."

'Complimenting' Plants

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

Some plants are beautiful enough just by themselves to justify their cultivation in a garden, but most have their value increased by association with other plants. From early summer, low silvery mounds of the shrubby Cineraria maritima "Silverdust" have been growing happily as a border for perennials. These plants are three years old now from seed, and have been reconditioned each spring by hard cutting back. This has resulted in solid mounds about a foot high.

During summer, taller plants bloomed behind them. These were Bee-balm, Monarda "Cambridge Scarlet" and M. "Croftway Pink," both around 30 inches in height, but bushy enough in form that they did not appear to tower over the 12-inch silver cinerarias.

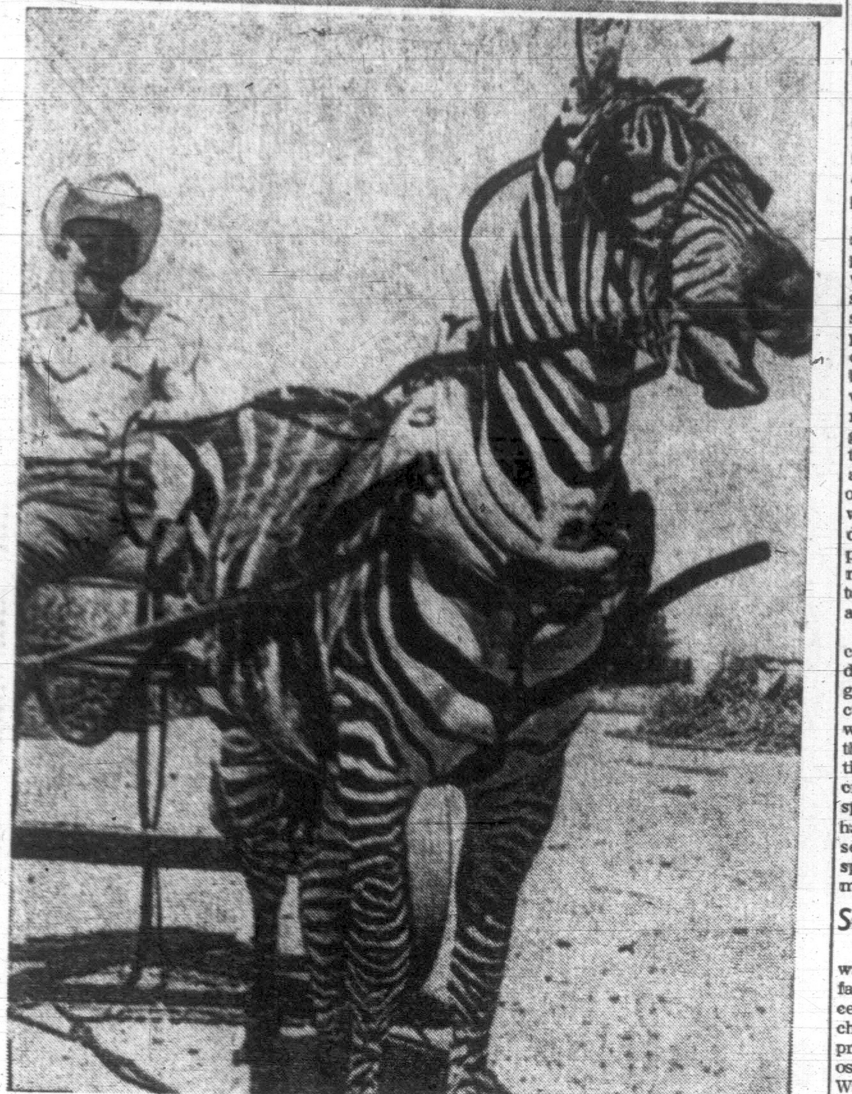
Now with a second spate of scarlet and pink from the monardas, comes a new color to the picture, contributed by the 18-inch dwarf Goldenrod hybrid named Leraft.

Its dainty feathery gold plumes are perfect with both the silver and the scarlet, and does not clash with the pink monarda.

We could have allowed the cineraria to produce its own gold flowers all summer but somehow we just don't find its round-button daisy heads at all pleasing, nor do the plants remain so bushy if flowers are allowed to develop.

With the twofold purpose of increasing the density of the foliage, and keeping free of unwanted daisy heads, we have nipped back the stems at frequent intervals.

Now the gold plumes of goldenrod at 18 inches are much more effective in this quite charming picture.



THIS IS A HORSE of a different color. One of two zebras harness broken at Richmond, B.C., by Bill Shannon's father awaits a trial run.

Brutus T. Bear Arrives To Chug-A-Lug Welcome

By PERRY YOUNG

DA NANG, Vietnam (UPI) — Beer-swilling Brutus T. Bear is the biggest, hairiest female ever assigned to bolster GI morale.

But that's why she is here, and so far the GIs who drink with the 325-pound bear are delighted. And so is Brutus, who can chug down a can of beer faster than any GI.

Brutus arrived this week from Ft. Carson, Colo., with her two favorite soldiers, Specs. Ronald E. Uberson of Shullsburg, Wis., and Billy Williams of Key West, Fla. They stayed with her in Ft. Carson after their unit, the 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry (Mechanized), left for Vietnam two months ago.

Uberson explained that Brutus was the battalion mascot and received her masculine name "because the sergeant major didn't know the difference." The initial "T" stands for "The," he said.

Brutus had wandered into Canyon City, Colo., as a cub, and the city zoo gave her to the battalion, which now is located near Quang Tri.

Brutus once had the rank of Spec. 5 at Ft. Carson, Uberson said, "but she got busted when she bit a generals finger. There was a sign up there saying 'Don't stick your fingers in the cage' and he did."

"We thought Brutus ought to get a medal," Uberson added.

Williams said Brutus is three years old, eats three cans of dog food a day "and all the coke and beer we give her."

Unlike her escorts, Brutus did not get sick once on the 20-day voyage from Oakland, Calif., to this port aboard a commercial ship leased to the U.S. Government.

Once during a storm, Brutus broke loose and got into the ship's library. "She just wanted to get out of the rain," Uberson said.

As the ship approached Da Nang harbor, Brutus climbed up on the rail "like a little kid," he said. And the bear was the first one off the ship when it docked.

She waddled down the gangplank with her chain dragging behind her and made friends with the first group of sailors and GIs she met. One opened up a beer for her and Brutus grabbed it and chug-a-lugged.

Standing on the dock among huge stacks of war materials, a beer can in her paw and surrounded by GIs, Brutus T. Bear appeared to be right at home in Vietnam.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Patty Niehaus, age 12, of Indianapolis, Indiana, for her question:

How can roots grow down through the hard ground?

Healthy plant cells are filled with a jellified liquid called protoplasm. Each cell is a unit that carries on a variety of vital chemical activities. It is surrounded by a cell wall that keeps it in bounds, but this wall is not water tight. By a patient process called diffusion, the wall allows each cell to exchange fluids with its neighbors. The diffusion of liquids holds the key to the mysterious pushing power in a plant's roots. The doors it unlocks between cells are special plant or animal tissues called semipermeable membranes.

Membranes, of course, are skin-type tissues. A nonpermeable membrane is a watertight tissue such as the skin that covers your body. A semipermeable membrane is partly water tight. Water molecules can permeate through it by diffusion, one by one. But water is a cohesive liquid, its molecules stick and cling together. When one diffuses through the wall, it brings another linked behind it, another and another. However, the water passes only in one direction. The wall of a living plant cell is a semipermeable membrane and it allows water to diffuse only from a weaker to a stronger solution.

The living protoplasm inside a cell is a strong, rich solution of dissolved chemicals. Ordinary ground water contains chemicals but the solution is much weaker. Down in the ground, the roots come in contact with tiny pockets of moisture in the crumbly soil. The root tips sprout millions of tiny, tiny hairs so that a larger surface of semipermeable membrane is spread around to absorb the moisture.

Strong Pressure

The weak solution of ground water diffuses through the surfaces of the rootlets into the cells. There it dilutes their chemical-rich protoplasm. This process is called osmosis. And osmosis builds up pressure. Water diffusing into the cells fills them and stretches their skins to the bursting point. When all the cells have as much as they can hold they hold the root stiff and firm. Now suppose the root is growing by adding new cells. The new cells also fill up firm and strong. And there are millions of strong neighboring cells to help them. If they need more room, they can use all this strength to push their way through the hard ground. In the roots of a tree, the pushing pressure of osmosis may be ten to 50 times more than the pressure of the atmosphere. Scaled down to cell size and reduced to a snail pace, the pressure of osmosis in plant roots may equal the power of a steam engine.

Experiments show that osmosis pressure in plant roots is strongest at dawn. It dwindles to nothing as the day wears on. So some other force must be working to keep vital water supplies streaming through a plant. It is transpiration, the evaporation of water vapor through the leaves. As water molecules leave, replacements are sucked in from neighboring cells to replace them. Osmosis is a shoving process up from the roots. Respiration is a pulling process down from the leaves. Both forces work together to keep the plant cells stiff, full of moisture and giving it pushing power.

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Randy Jenks, age 10, of San Diego, California, for his question:

Where exactly is the Volga River?

The entire length of the Volga River flows through the part of Russia that is in Europe. From its source to its mouth, it winds along 2,290 miles. No other river in Europe can compare with its size and some of its tributaries are longer than all but the longest European rivers. The Volga begins about 200 miles southeast of the major city of Leningrad, in the Valdai Hills. After its long trip through fertile farmlands, it finally empties itself into the Caspian Sea. Its mouth is a muddy delta about 70 miles wide. Here the main river divides into more than 200 smaller channels and the trickling streams constantly change their paths through the shifting delta mud.

The course of the Volga has been changed and tamed with many dams and channels. One system of man-made waterways connects the great river with the Baltic Sea, another connects it northward to the Arctic. Another connects it to the Don River that flows on through Moscow. Boats use the busy Volga and its waterways to transport goods for more than 20,000 miles. And its muddy delta is a famous fishing area where the Russians get much of their world-famous caviar.

Grits Hinting Six-Way Fight

It promises to be a crowded bandwagon that rolls into the Oct. 19 meeting to nominate a Liberal candidate for the federal byelection in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

So far two candidates have declared their intention to seek the nomination and oppose national New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas for the seat left vacant by the death of long-time MP Colin Cameron.

Frank Crane, 44, a private investigator from Wellington Wednesday stepped into the ring with Mladen Zorkin, the Nanaimo realtor who was Liberal candidate in the June 25 election.

Mr. Zorkin lost to Mr. Cameron by about 3,750 votes.

Expected to declare themselves candidates next week are Magistrate Eric Winch of Parksville and Goerge Whittaker, a Duncan lawyer.

Mag. Winch is the son of pioneer CCF MLA, the late Ernest Winch and a brother to Harold Winch, NDP MP for Vancouver-East.

THREE LAWYERS

Riding sources today named three other lawyers likely to go after the nomination.

They are Ronald F. MacIsaac of Nanaimo; Graham Darling of Gabriola Island, who practises in Vancouver; and Ron Grant of Ottawa.

Mr. Douglas is expected to be opposed at the Sept. 7 NDP meeting in Chemainus.

Neither the Progressive Conservatives nor the Social Credit parties have indicated whether they will contest the byelection. They ran third and fourth in June.

Mr. Crane, who has managed local campaigns for four federal and two provincial candidates, said today he thinks the Liberals stand a strong chance against Mr. Douglas.

Liberals have not held the seat since 1940, but Mr. Crane said he believed recent NDP strength in the riding was based on the personal appeal of Mr. Cameron.

SPECULATION

He said "fringe voters" who would normally have voted for Mr. Cameron would likely swing to either the Liberals or the Conservatives and not be influenced by Mr. Douglas' national stature.

If the Conservatives do not enter the race, these voters will go Liberal, he said.

Mr. Zorkin was less optimistic, saying the NDP had been able to build a strong organization through the years, something the Liberals lacked.

He said he doubted Prime Minister Trudeau would be sought to boost the Liberal campaign in the riding. He said the most important issues so far as most of the voters were concerned would be "what is in the best interests of Vancouver Island."

Date for the byelection has not yet been announced by Ottawa.

Mr. Zorkin suggested that it might be delayed until the NDP protest of the Liberal victory in Comox-Alberni is cleared through the courts.

A judicial recount in Comox-Alberni awarded the riding to Liberal newcomer Richard Durante by a nine vote margin over New Democrat Ross Barnett.

The NDP have protested that some armed service votes cast at CFB Comox should not have been counted in the Island riding and are seeking to have the election voided, forcing a byelection there too.

Two Injured In House Fire At Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI—Two people are in hospital following a Wednesday morning fire that gutted their home in Port Alberni.

George Embree, 60, an employee of MacMillan Bloedel suffered first, second and third degree burns to most of his body. He was admitted to West Coast General Hospital and immediately transferred to St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria.

His wife Zoe is in West Coast Hospital with burns to her arm, face and hands.

The Embrees were sleeping when the fire of unknown origin broke out. Firemen were at the scene within minutes of receiving the call but the house was completely engulfed by flames.

"There was fire out of every door and window," a fireman said. "There simply nothing to salvage."

GOLD RIVER LEFT WITHOUT DOCTOR

GOLD RIVER — This town of 2,500 persons is without a doctor despite having advertised around the world for a physician.

Residents are angry at the situation and some say they are considering moving away.

Norman Rivers was the last resident doctor but he moved away last June. Since then the Tahsis Company and the municipality have tried to attract a doctor unsuccessfully to this town, 60 miles west of Campbell River.

Before Dr. Rivers left he said "Too may times I have felt like a glorified first-aid man. I could administer some fancy patchwork and then ship them off to Campbell River."

He said there was a good practice for someone but absolutely no facilities and added that any doctor could not do his job properly without equipment.

In the meantime first-aid men and several nurses tend the sick and accident cases.

Mayor Bruce Chisholm says the only way he can see for a clinic to be built is either through local taxation or through the regional district.

Tahsis Company will provide a doctor with a subsidy to offset office rental, nursing help, equipment and office supplies.

"It isn't a luxury to have a doctor in a community this size," said nurse Mrs. Loan Erickson, "and people have a right to be anxious."

Historic School To Close

SUSIE McCONNELL BIRD

TOFINO — A historic Roman Catholic Indian residential school on the west coast of Vancouver Island will close its doors within the next few years.

Christie residential school, built in 1899, and situated on Meares Island near Tofino, is expected to close down in 1970 and send its pupils to Tofino public schools.

The school needs to be replaced and rather than build a new one it was felt Indian children should be sent to public schools—in accordance with a federal government integration policy.

Proposed plans call for the construction of a hostel to accommodate the children whose parents live on isolated Indian reserves up and down the coast.

The site is about two miles from Tofino and is one of the most beautiful spots in the area.

OPENED 1900

Christie Residential School was built in 1899 under Archbishop A. Christie. It was opened in 1900.

The Benedictine Sisters and Brothers were its first teachers.

When the Benedictine fathers were recalled for mission work in Oregon in 1938, they were replaced by the Oblates of Mary Immaculate who took over all Roman Catholic missions on the west coast.

Rev. Father T. L. Mackey is principal of the school at present and the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary are the teachers.

About 150 children attend the residential school. In the past few years, however, a small number of Indian children have been attending public schools.

Building Values Down From 1967

NORTH COWICHAN — New building in the municipality is trailing slightly behind last year's record figure.

Statistics issued Wednesday show a seven-month total of building permits this year of $1,773,200 compared to $1,817,641 in the corresponding period last year.

The July total was $428,780 compared to $549,831 in July 1967.

Too Many Boys Sent to Brannen Juvenile Court Judge States

JUDGE WARDILL
. . . overcrowded

NANAIMO — A misunderstood request by the attorney general's department is causing overcrowding at Brannen Lake boy's school near here.

Juvenile Court Judge Stan Wardill said Wednesday too many youths are being committed to the centre instead of being tried in adult courts.

The "misinterpreted" request from the department was that crown attorneys consult the department before recommending a juvenile be raised to adult court by a magistrate, result is, fewer cases are being up-graded.

Magistrate Wardill said he believes the request refers only to capital offences, such as murder and rape, and other cases could be sent to adult court without recourse to the AG's office.

Crown attorneys normally ask permission of the court to have a youth tried in the higher court.

The magistrate's remarks followed the appearance here of two youths charged with several offences which would normally be tried in juvenile court, placing them in Brannan Lake if convicted.

However, the youths had already been raised to adult court for previous offences and served time in an adult institution.

Said Magistrate Wardill: 'Any boy who's been in an adult institution should not be returned to a juvenile institution under any circumstances.''

Any youth nearing his or her 18th birthday should be tried in adult court end should not be sent to Brannan Lake, he said.

"Judges seem to feel the request is a carte blanche not to send them to adult courts," he said. "They are interpreting this that (the attorney general's department) doesn't want any transfers made."

At least 60 youths a month are being sent to Brannan Lake, forcing that many out of the school to make room whether they are ready for release or not, Magistrate Wardill said.

Juveniles should be treated in juvenile institutions, but not if they have already served in adult institutions, he said.

Island Landscapes Attractive to Artist

By ED GOULD

Edmonton's loss may well be Vancouver Island's gain when artist Len Gibbs moves here to live this fall.

Mr. Gibbs, 39, has spent the last few weeks in search of a home somewhere in the Victoria area or on the Saanich Peninsula.

An advertising executive in Edmonton and Calgary for the last 17 years, he decided this spring to "break the work habit" and take up painting full time.

Although he has had many public showings of his Prairie theme oils and watercolors—including a recent exhibition in Ottawa—his first major B.C. exposure will be at Alex Fraser Galleries in Vancouver in November.

LEN GIBBS
. . . seeks home

He explained in an interview his decision to move to Vancouver Island:

"Most of my paintings are bought by people living in B.C. and I felt that I might as well live where my market is and where it's a lot warmer in the winter."

Mr. Gibbs' style is almost super-realistic, in the tradition of Maritimer Alex Colville and American Andrew Wyeth.

(Both exhibit realism to the point where the hair on the frog, the bump on the log or the hole in the sea is almost photographically perfect.)

Although Colville and Wyeth are favorites—"Colville is a symbolist and Wyeth is a real American artist, not an Americanized European"—he considers the granddaddy realist of them all to be Spaniard Salvador Dali.

"Dali is utterly realistic. Even his soft watches are done in absolutely perfect detail."

Until a recent revival in the style, such realism was looked upon with disdain.

"About 15 years ago I took a painting of my current style down to the Edmonton Art Club and they practically threw me out on my ear.

"No one wanted detail and the statement was: "Why not use a camera?"

He is currently working on a commission by two Alberta gas companies to depict the early oil industry in Alberta and arranging for the sale of his home in Jasper Place, Edmonton. His paintings sell exclusively through an agent.

Mr. Gibbs said he has been painting since high school in Halifax and, although he received no formal art training, took art by correspondence and studied while in the navy, "sitting on a torpedo tube."

LAYOUT ARTIST

A short stint as layout artist at the Edmonton Bulletin followed, until the 80-year-old publishing firm went out of business.

One of his recent works shows a deserted farm against a typical Prairie background. Even a tumbleweed stuck in a barbed wire fence looks authentic.

"Notice there's only two wires, not three," he said. "This was Depression time when wire was scarce and expensive. If I was to paint in three, the oldtimers would soon let me know I was wrong."

Mr. Gibbs said he gained his barbed wire experience the hard way, from "a lifetime of torn pants. You get enough of those barbs on your backside and you don't forget it."

Married with two children, the Gibbs are looking forward to their move to B.C. "with anticipation and a hope for dry skies."

'Let Railway Repay Us By Building New College'

NORTH COWICHAN — If the E & N railroad is allowed to withdraw the dayliner passenger train it should compensate by financing the building of a regional college on central Vancouver Island.

This was the suggestion of Ald. George Whittaker of North Cowichan Wednesday.

He said at a council meeting: "There's no doubt that the company has some obligation to Vancouver Island but I don't know if it runs to the extent of forcing it to maintain an uneconomic operation."

Ald. Whittaker said he understands the dayliner service between Courtenay and Victoria loses $50,000 a year.

He argued: "If the E & N is able to make a good case to have the service discontinued we can suggest they buy out their obligation to the northern part of the island by footing the bill for construction of a regional college."

Mr. Whittaker said "I'm concerned about forcing any company to maintain an uneconomic venture.

"If we are going to maintain reasonable freight rates companies have to be allowed to discontinue operations which are running heavy deficits."

Council took no action on Ald. Whittaker's suggestion, nor did it support Mayor Donald Morton who wants to back the campaign to have the service retained.

Mayor Morton said he spoke as one of the few users of the dayliner and stated the service could be revived if the run was reversed and backed by a publicity campaign.

Ald. John Cannon said he too was concerned about the number of accidents in which the dayliner was involved.

He supported the mayor's contention that the E & N has done little to make the service a paying proposition.

THE AGONY OF BIAFRA

The Nigerian civil war has been raging since July, 1967. But it is known as the Biafran struggle because it is Biafra which seceded and Biafra which is now starving to death. The story of this "little war in Africa", which has already cost more lives than the entire Vietnam conflict, is told in Weekend Magazine.

Challenge Looms for Gov't On National Poverty Issue

Bitter Debate Faces Grits Over Reforms

By PETER NEWMAN
Special to The Times

Newman

OTTAWA — For years, enlightened parliamentarians have been criticizing the House of Commons as an institution run on 19th-century rules, inadequate to the task of reacting quickly to the urgencies of a 20th century society during a time of national and international ferment.

Scant days after he took office, Pierre Trudeau set his experts to the task of revising these rules. The reform of Parliament is to be his highest priority for the parliamentary session which opens here next week.

The proposed rules changes, which have been discussed between Liberal House Leader Donald MacDonald and Conservative House Leader Ged Baldwin are so drastic that they have already created a controversy—and promise to become the subject of the first bitter confrontation between the Trudeau government and the opposition.

Speed Business

Although neither side has so far been willing to reveal officially what the argument is about, apparently the proposed rules changes—if carried through—would revolutionize the parliamentary system. They would expedite government business to a degree which could make Parliament a model of efficiency. In the process, they could also deprive the opposition—and even backbenchers on the government side—of effectiveness in applying the checks and balances which are a valued tradition in the parliamentary system.

Once in effect, the new rules would transform our parliamentary system into something closer to a cabinet or even prime ministerial form of government.

The government's secret proposals consist of four main elements:

● The imposition of a limit of two days on debates during the second-reading stage of all bills unless the House orders otherwise. Second reading is the stage of legislation when the principle of any new law is debated and there has been up to now no limit on this important stage in parliamentary proceedings.

Under the outlined new arrangements, the opposition would have to request extra days for really major bills such as the current Onmibus Bill to amend the Criminal Code. Also, it's not clear how much time would be saved because opposition members, frustrated by the limits imposed on second reading, might prolong third-reading debates. There would be, as well, a tendency to use the full two days for second reading even on the minor bills that don't warrant that much debate.

● The number of days spent debating departmental estimates is to be cut arbitrarily to 15 per session, with all opposition parties allowed to make only six motions of non-confidence.

Some Progress Indicated

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Progress is being made in negotiations between the Liberals and opposition parties in considering proposed changes in the rules of Parliament, it was learned today.

The House leaders—Liberal, Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Party—met Wednesday and considered the government's package rule changes plan.

Creditiste House leader was also invited, but did not attend.

The meeting has met some of the objections of the Conservatives and NDP. The fact that representatives are now meeting together has overcome the protest by Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg NDP member, who said details of the government proposal were not being made known to the opposition and that the opposition was not being consulted.

That complaint has been met by government House leader Donald MacDonald with the inter-party meetings.

Conservative House leader Jed Baldwin this week surprised Parliament Hill by shedding his normal calm and condemning the Liberals' proposed rule changes as a deliberate attempt to establish "a puppet parliament" and was also indignant that the government was dealing separately with the opposition House leaders.

His blast has at least achieved the result of having joint meetings.

CLIFFORD

Anti-Missile System Gets Green Light

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defence Secretary Clark Clifford, declaring the United States must negotiate with the Soviet Union from a position of strength, today ordered work on the Sentinel anti-missile system pressed forward.

Clifford exempted the Sentinel from Congress-ordered spending cuts.

His action came several days after it was learned that defence department officials were discussing possibility of deferring start of the Sentinel for some months, in part, because China is nearly a year late in testing its first long-range ballistic missile.

Speaking to the National Press Club, Clifford also defended pushing ahead with tests of advanced Minuteman and Poseidon missiles incorporating multiple warheads.

He noted the concern expressed by some critics that development of the anti-missile system—which is currently designed to deal mostly with the Chinese threat—and development of the multiple warheads would cause the Soviet Union to react with a big stepup in its own weapons and would harm the prospect of U.S.-Soviet arms-control talks.

Clifford said he does not share these fears. He said the United States is pushing the new weapons developments "on the basis that a position of substantial strength is essential and is the best position from which we can negotiate agreements that may make the threat of nuclear war increasingly remote."

The $5 billion Sentinel system, while aimed at China, may grow into a $45 billion project against Soviet missiles, in the view of some critics.

Clifford voiced the hope that "at an appropriate time" arms control talks can take place between the United States and the Soviet Union.

It was evident that Clifford feels this is not an appropriate time because of the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia and an apparent return by the Soviet Union to hard-line policies in Central Europe.

Clifford said the events in Czechoslovakia "have clearly demonstrated that a significant American military presence in Western Europe is needed."

Thus, he came down hard against further reduction in U.S. forces in Europe, as had been strongly urged by some in Congress before the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Clifford called on North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries to "review these events from the standpoint of the effect upon our common security."

This appeared to be a call for them to meet their troop commitments to the alliance.

The cost of maintaining some 300,000 U.S. troops in Western Europe, Clifford said, is dwarfed "when one compares it with the enormous cost of American lives and treasure expended in a general war or to the consequences if Americans were to be isolated in a hostile world."

Soviets Delay Flights

PRAGUE (AP) — Soviet commanders today delayed scheduled resumption of domestic flights in Czechoslovakia amid new signs that the public is unyielding in its stand against the occupation.

The state-run Czechoslovak airline CSA had been promised by local Soviet authorities that flights between Prague and the Slovak capital of Bratislava could be resumed shortly after dawn today, but by mid-morning no plane had left.

Airline officials explained the Soviets had suddenly rescinded their permit. They added it was hoped now the first plane would leave sometime later this week.

Bratislava as well as 13 district towns in western Slovakia were reported today to be occupied still by Soviet troops who also gave no indication of moving out of Prague.

Prace, the newspaper of the 5,300,000-strong Trade Union Federation, also said the Soviet local commander in Bratislava has retained his headquarters in the castle, a symbol of Slovak pride.

In a dispatch from Moravia, the newspaper reported that residents of the Ostrava industrial region have prepared a byelection with the announced aim of voting Drahomir Kolder, a former member of the Communist party presidium who is accused of collaboration with the Soviets, out of his National Assembly seat.

The vote will be held sometime next month.

The editorial offices of four out of seven Prague dailies were still under Soviet guard this morning after the Prace editors had been able to return to their building Wednesday.

Soviet occupation also continued to force suspension of most sports activities.

B.C. FERRY RUNS AGROUND

POWELL RIVER (CP) — The Queen of Powell River, a British Columbia government ferry, ran aground today on a sandbar near the ferry slip at Saltery Bay.

Damage to the small ferry was believed slight. There were no injuries.

The ferry was on a 10-mile run between Earls Cove and Saltery Bay when the grounding occurred. Saltery Bay is about 10 miles southeast of Powell River.

INDUSTRIAL TRIBUNAL PROPOSED FOR ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP) — An industrial tribunal, supreme in almost all matters of labor relations and labor-management affairs, has been recommended to the Ontario government by royal commissioner Ivan C. Rand, former justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, who studied labor disputes in the province for two years.

Mr. Rand makes 56 recommendations, all influenced by formation of the proposed tribunal. However, they could be implemented without the tribunal if it is rejected by the Ontario government.

Economic Council Highlights

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of the Economic Council of Canada's fifth annual review issued today:

Poverty affects millions of Canadians, has become a national disgrace and must be wiped out by comprehensive measures.

Family allowances and other welfare legislation should be reviewed and studies made of a guaranteed minimum annual income.

Basis now established for resumed growth in economic output of about five per cent a year.

Persistent price increases remain a serious concern.

Canadian agriculture is falling behind competitors in the technology of crop and livestock yields.

Gap between farm and nonfarm incomes will increase unless more productivity is achieved in farming techniques.

Greatly expanded research is needed in universities and industry, with emphasis on developing practical results.

Research in social sciences is totalling inadequate.

Regional development programs such as the Agricultural and Rural Development Act fall far short of their aims.

SURGEONS at Houston, Tex., Methodist Hospital performed their 12th heart transplant operation today and the patient, James Elbert Singleton, 47, (above) was reported in satisfactory condition. The heart donor was Paul C. Mason, 17, of Long Beach, Calif.

'Disgrace', Says Economic Report

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada says millions of Canadians live in poverty, "a disgrace" that must be wiped out by a great national offensive.

In language that looks unmistakeably like a challenge to the Trudeau government, the council's fifth annual review published today deplores "entrapment and hopelessness" reaching into every corner of the country.

By its most conservative definition, one in five non-farm families lacks a decent, minimum standard of living. The council's standard for low-income Canadians: More than 70 per cent of income goes to buy the simplest necessities of food, shelter and clothing.

If Canadian society "aspires to be a just society," it must make the elimination of serious poverty a major national goal, says the council, a body of experts established by Parliament to advise government on the economy.

Canada suffered from more poverty than it could tolerate, more than its economy could afford, and far more than existing measures could cope with.

Ruling out sentimental gestures, the council calls for "compassionate realism" in attacking the problem.

Special Senate Inquiry Urged

Starting immediately, existing anti-poverty policies must be co-ordinated and exploited to their limit. It urges pilot research projects into urban poverty and the launching of a special inquiry by the Senate.

In the long-term, the council suggests a complete evaluation and reappraisal of all government and private policies bearing on poverty. Nothing must escape questioning.

The council asks: What is the purpose, in 1968 circumstances, of family allowances?

A negative income tax-paid by government to people of limited income—and minimum income guarantees should be examined and a minimum standard of living defined.

The 65,000-word review is shorter than most of its predecessors but pungent. In other forays, the independent body of economists and experts from major economic fields draws these conclusions:

—National growth-promoting policies are not consciously designed to help slow-growth regions most.

—The structure and value of regional development programs, such as the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act and the Agricultural and Rural Development Act, deserve questioning.

—Still more productivity gains in agriculture will be necessary to prevent a widening of the income gap suffered by farmers.

—Canada is rapidly losing ground to its competitors in the technology of high crop and livestock yields.

—There is a danger that policy-makers preoccupied with research or "invention," will forget the follow-through process of "innovation" that puts discoveries to work.

—Canada needs much more industrial and university research and a coherent strategy to blend all of society's scientific, technological and innovative capabilities."

All Governments Must Co-operate

The council says the co operation of all governments is vital in an anti-poverty crusade. It uses the term "war on poverty" without apology, suggesting that some planning and evaluation techniques it will need can be borrowed from the military.

Poverty, says the review, is disguised and passes largely unnoticed, "it does not, for example, invariably go about in rags." It is inarticulate; the poor often lack the education and organization to make themselves heard.

Poverty is said to be widespread—as much as half of it existing outside the Atlantic provinces and eastern Quebec, the areas of highest incidence.

Poverty is hard to define. It is not just low income; simple statistics "cannot capture the sour atmosphere of poor health and bad housing—the accumulated defeat, alienation and despair which often so tragically are inherited by the next and succeeding generations."

The review nevertheless offers a statistical guide.

If low-income families are defined as those using 70 per cent or more of their incomes for food, clothing and shelter, then in 1965 one of every five nonfarm families fell into this class. They had little money left over for such things as drugs, medical care, education, recreation, savings and so on.

On this basis, low-income families would include single persons earning less than $1,500, families of two earning less than $2,500, families of three, four and five or more earning less than $3,000, $3,500 and $4,000 respectively.

In 1961 the total number of low-income families by this definition was about 4,200,000. The

Off-Duty Officers In Panther Attack

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay confirmed today that off-duty policemen were involved in an attack Wednesday by 200 white men on about a dozen Black Panthers and white sympathizers in the Brooklyn criminal court building.

Lindsay said he had been assured by Police Commissioner Howard Leary that "immediate and vigorous action" will be taken against any police officer who violated laws or police regulations.

The mayor described the courthouse incident as "shocking."

"There can be no safety, no law, no order and no justice," Lindsay said at a city hall news conference, "unless we are absolutely sure that this kind of ugly incident does not happen again in this city."

The clash took place Wednesday in a sixth-floor corridor outside a packed courtroom where three Black Panthers had a hearing on charges of beating three policemen Aug. 20. Three persons including a white girl were injured.

Witnesses said the group of white men, who had been unable to get into the courtroom, slowly converged on the smaller group and then suddenly rushed them.

Blackjacks were seen swinging down through the air during the melee which was broken up by uniformed officers assigned to the building. No arrests were made.

David Brothers, leader of the Brooklyn Panthers, and Thomas McCreary, a member of the militant group, charged that their attackers were members of the Law Enforcement Group of New York, a militant group of police officers.

WALLACE BACKERS

Several of the attackers wore the presidential campaign button of George C. Wallace, former Alabama governor.

Mayor Lindsay ordered Police Commissioner Howard R. Leary to have a complete report on the incident.

In the hearing, Judge George Rader turned down a request for reduction of bail for the defendants and ordered the assault charges referred to the grand jury.

The three defendants are George Correa, 22, held in $20,000 bail; Daryl Bines, 17, $10,000 and John Martinez, 19, $2,500.

Marriage Ran Gauntlet Of Strike, Czech Crisis

MONTREAL (CP) — This summer's mail strike and the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia turned the romance of a young Montreal management consultant and a former Expo hostess into a comedy of errors which finally wound up back in Montreal where it all started.

David Binmore and Ingrid Seidlerova met at an Expo party and when she flew back home after finishing her job as hostess at the Czech pavilion, the two continued to write to each other.

David proposed in one of his letters and Ingrid sent back an affirmative reply which he later confirmed by telephone.

They were married June 15 in a little Czech town called Karlstejn Castle.

After a brief honeymoon, the Binmores spent days trying to arrange travel papers for Ingrid.

These were stalled by shaded areas on her chest x-ray—either the result of faulty film or the first indications of tuberculosis—and David was forced to return to Montreal alone.

His return coincided with the beginning of the Canadian postal strike. He tried to phone several times, but each time his wife was away from home.

RUSSIANS MOVE IN

The came the news of the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia.

After almost two months of silence, David received a telegram saying his wife was somewhere in Sweden.

Last Monday, David flew to Stockholm and went to the Czech tourist office where Ingrid had said she knew an official.

"I was sitting there minding my own business when my wife walked in through the back door of the office," David said.

It was later discovered Ingrid could have entered Canada in July, but the communications failure prevented them from knowing this.

David brought his wife back to Canada on an extended visitor's permit.

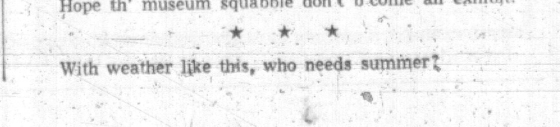
In the meantime, there is the matter of securing the travel papers from the Czech government.

But with the aid of Czech representatives here, the Binmores hope the problem will be nothing more than a formality.

No Signs of Life

WATSON LAKE, Y.T. (CP)—There appear to be no signs of life around the wreckage of a float-equipped Beaver aircraft which crashed in rugged mountain terrain, 130 miles north of here. Four men were on board.

A spokesman for Watson Lake Air Services Ltd., owners of the aircraft, said today early reports from the crash site indicate no survivors.



Th' economic report seems aimed at movin' both ends without gittin' a kink in th' middle.

CHICAGO (AP) — Most grain and soybeans futures deliveries moved within relatively narrow price ranges on the Board of Trade. Trade was mixed and moved at a rather good pace.

Early sales of wheat futures were generally attributed to a Canadian government estimate that the spring wheat crop would be some 57,000,000 bushels higher this year than in 1967. The trade here viewed this as a potentially strong competition for foreign grain markets.

Later, when a report from Manitoba indicated that rain and standing water in fields caused some drop damage that could reduce that province's estimate, there followed some buying that strengthened wheat prices near the close.

Corn futures came under some early hedging pressure but recovered under aggressive local and export buying.

New crop soybeans and soybean meal closed on a firm tone but the September deliveries of the two commodities lost ground.

Wage Increases Average 8.2%

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage settlements in Canadian industry during the second quarter of this year provided an average increase of 8.2 per cent a year in basic rates, a labor department survey reported Wednesday.

This compared with average increases of 7.4 per cent a year in settlements negotiated during the first quarter and 9.2 per cent in the second quarter of 1967.

The quarterly survey was based on 71 contracts covering 86,000 workers outside the construction industry.

During the 12 months ended in June, the average hourly base rate covered by labor contracts rose by 15.6 cents or 7.2 per cent. This average results from a study of 527 contracts involving 1,075,500 industrial workers.

The survey report cautioned that averages are based on the hourly rate for unskilled or semi-skilled groups and do not necessarily represent the average wage increases of all workers in industry.

During the second quarter 43 wage settlements in the manufacturing industry showed average increase of 7.5 per cent for each year involved. In 28 settlements outside the manufacturing sector the average was 9.6 per cent.

Swiss Bank In Purchase Of U.S. Gold

ZURICH (Reuters) — The Swiss national bank says it bought $29,700,000 U.S. worth of golld from another central bank last week but declined to say which one.

In its regular weekly statement the bank said it sold dollars and Swiss francs to another central bank in exchange for the gold, bringing total Swiss gold reserves to $2,600,000,000 worth.

The last time Switzerland bought gold from a foreign central bank, it was learned afterwards that the bullion came from the Banque de France, which bought dollars to support the French franc on foreign exchange markets.

Winnipeg Opens Futures Market For Live Cattle

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's first futures market for live finished beef cattle was opened by the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Agriculture Minister Harry Enns of Manitoba, wearing a white Stetson, rang a gong to start trading.

"If this brings stability of prices to the cattle industry it will be well worth while," said Mr. Enns.

Exchange President J. E. McWilliam indicated the future may see trading in "other commodities" than what we are studying at the moment." He didn't name them, but the exchange is known to have an eye on potato futures.

Bill Menzies ponders delay in fishing career.

Overland Route Stops Cruiser With A Jolt

People used to come around to gaze with envy on Bill Menzies' dream boat at Cowichan Bay.

But today they come to look at his wreck.

The transformation took place last weekend when his son, 18-year-old Bill Jr., rammed the 28-footer high and dry on the rocks of Burial Island.

The after-midnight crash tore the bows right out of the two-week-old $17,000 boat. At the same time it put a crimp in Mr. Menzies' plan to start a commercial fishing career.

Bill Jr. had taken the boat to Salt Spring Island Sunday to visit his sister and was on the way home to Cowichan Bay when the accident occurred.

MISJUDGED LIGHT

According to his father, Bill misjudged the flashing warning light in the dark. He drove the boat so far on the rocks it was clear of the water altogether.

Using the ship's radio he sent out a "May Day" signal which was picked up by the coastguard.

Young Bill was rescued from the rock about 2 a.m. Monday by John Bentzen of Maple Bay Marina.

In order to get the wreck off Burial Island Mr. Bentzen had to call in Coal Harbor Ltd. with its landing barge.

With the use of a crane the damaged boat was lifted clear of the rock and taken into Maple Bay on the barge.

The boat is a combined fishing and pleasure cruiser designed for use in the inside waters of the Straits of Georgia.

Mr. Menzies Sr. said Wednesday the boat was insured but adjusters had still to examine it and decide if repairs are possible.

FORESTRY EXPERT DIES HERE AT 56

Dr. George Samuel Allen — forester, scientist and educator — died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Wednesday at the age of 56.

For the past two years, he had headed the tree biology section at the Dominion Forestry Laboratory in Victoria. He was working at his office there Tuesday when stricken with a heart attack.

"Dr. Allen had an international reputation for his work in silviculture and seed research," a laboratory spokesman said. "He was also a very solid citizen, and we shall miss him a great deal."

Born in the Isle of Wight and raised in Vancouver, Dr. Allen was assistant forester with the B.C. Forestry Department from 1938 to 1945.

He was dean of forestry at the University of British Columbia from 1953 to 1961.

TRAVELLED U.S.

From 1961 to 1966, he was director of forestry research with the Weyerhauser Company at Centralia, Washington, and his work took him across the United States.

In 1966, Dr. Allen returned to British Columbia to join the Dominion Forestry Laboratory.

He is survived by the widow, Dorothy, at their home at 2990 Phyllis Street; a son, James Michael at the state college of Washington at Pullman, a daughter, Mrs. Evert (Wendy) Olson, North Vancouver; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Allen, Vancouver; a brother, Stanley J., Victoria; and two grandsons.

Funeral services will be held at Simmons and McBride's chapel, Vancouver, Saturday at 3 p.m. and followed by cremation. McCall Brothers of Victoria are in charge of arrangements.

Uvic Bulging Predicted By Registrar

By DON VIPOND

Close to 5,000 students will be crammed onto the University of Victoria campus when lectures get underway Sept. 23.

Enrolment was 4,075 last September and facilities were crowded. The jump of about 20 per cent predicted for the first term this month will have to be accommodated in practically the same space.

"I think we're going to be able to make it this year," registrar Ron Ferry said today, "although it's going to be pretty tight."

Timetables will be juggled and the university will be using more space in huts for classrooms to meet the pressure.

The Sedgewick Building, which will house the president and the English department, will be completed this month and will ease the faculty crowding.

Mr. Ferry said between 4,900 and 5,000 students will probably be registered but a number won't show up because they will have gained admittance to some other university.

It's a natural product of the trend to apply at several universities hoping for admittance to one, he said.

REGISTRATION

Undergraduates will register from Sept. 16 to 19 and graduate students on the 20th. These are students whose applications have previously been processed and approved.

The university is offering over 700 courses this year, an increase of about 100 over last year.

Graduate student enrolment, 95 last year, will be between 200 and 225.

The registrar said he is struck by the mobility of the modern university student. The university will have students from all parts of Canada and many points of the U.S. One in four students were from off Vancouver Island last year and this ratio is expected to continue.

Local young people are also travelling for their education, he said.

"I think they're looking for the experience of new situations, new faces," he said of the trend generally.

Fees at Uvic remain the same this year at about $450. They last went up in 1966.

So far there is no indication the university will follow the lead of UBC and Simon Fraser where students are registering this week and starting classes next week in a move to even the length of first and second terms.

At Uvic this year Christmas exams will start Dec. 9 and the first term will end Dec. 20. The second term ends April 11 with exams through the balance of the month.

POWER CUT AT CAMPUS

Offices were darkened and computers and electric typewriters quiet at the University of Victoria today as the campus went without power.

Electricity was shut off for the day to permit connections to be made in the commons block under construction.

The university maintained a severely curtailed telephone service using its emergency standby power system. Lights will go back on Friday.

Russian Ship Coming Friday For Repairs

A 200-foot Russian Icebreaker towing a crane-equipped barge is expected to arrive in Victoria Friday for repairs and supplies.

The Yuri Lisyanskiy spent nearly a day Wednesday in U.S. waters off the coast of Oregon without permission. During the day she was boarded by crewmen of the Coast Guard cutter Modoc.

A Coast Guard spokesman in Seattle said Wednesday it was discovered that part of the vessel's towing gear was broken and it had been necessary to take shelter from rough seas.

Education Group Supports Move to End Strapping

The Island Branch of the Association for Childhood Education has added its support to a move to abolish the strap from Greater Victoria schools.

At a meeting Wednesday night members approved a letter to the school board which says using the strap shows a lack of understanding of child development.

The letter says members appreciate most principals and teachers in the district are worthy but the branch objects to teachers having the right to use the strap at their own discretion on children.

A number of teachers are among members of the ACE branch.

School trustee John Porteous has launched a campaign to eliminate corporal punishment from the school district. The board is scheduled to consider the issue at its September meeting.

Engine Trouble Seen As Reason for Crash

TOUGH STAND CONFIRMED BY LOFFMARK

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark gave more evidence today of a tough approachh to sewage disposal plans by municipalities and shrugged off suggestions it is causing a cabinet split.

He said there was no conflict "that I know of" between him and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell over procedures for Saanich's proposed referendum on amalgamating its eight sewer bylaws.

(Mr. Loffmark has announced the law requires his certificate before the referendum bylaw can be put to ratepayers while Mr. Campbell has supported in writing Saanich council's contention the referendum has nothing to do with the current sewage disposal controversy).

"I have nothing to do with pollution control or municipal affairs," Mr. Loffmark told reporters this morning. "My responsibility is only for health matters.

'DO MY DUTY'

"I am going to do my duty (which) as I read the health act is to warn the public when warning is necessary and to take steps when steps are needed to protect public health."

He said there are eight applications from the lower mainland now seeking his certificate approvals for sewerage projects but he has held them up for a thorough study by his department.

"I won't sign those certificates until I'm satsified that the public health aspect is preotected," he said.

He said none of the certificate applications was from Saanich.

Federal Housing Task Force Due In November

Public hearings will be held here Nov. 6 by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer's task force on housing.

The seven-member group will move to Vancouver the following two days for further hearings before continuing a cross-Canada swing, according to a tentative schedule issued Wednesday in Ottawa.

Location and times for the hearing in Victoria have not been set.

The task force opens its public hearings in Ottawa Sept. 16 before embarking on the national tour during which it plans to consult provincial authorities and hear briefs of architects, town planners, municipal and other interested groups.

Main interest of the study is concentrated on finding improvements for the federal government's mortgage policy, planning and building techniques.

Junior Foresters

Boys aged 10-13 are invited to join the Saanich District 113 Junior Forest Wardens at a registration meeting Friday at 7 p.m. at the Marigold Scout Hall.

DIRTY BIRD SHOOTING BRINGS FINE

A man who shot and killed a pigeon belonging to his next-door neighbor because it messed up his yard was fined $15 by Magistrate William Ostler today.

Frederick Steinwender, 73 Kingham Place, said 25 to 30 pigeons belonging to Harvey Roth, 69 Kingham Place, had a habit of sitting on his television antenna and messing up his sidewalk. He said he used an air rifle to shoot at the antenna because it made a clanging noise and he wanted to scare them away.

The magistrate said that was a "pretty persuasive argument."

Steinwender said he had no intention of killing any birds and did not know that he lived in a no-shooting area.

Crisis Meeting Called

Shipyard union leaders from Yarrows Ltd. were to meet Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson this afternoon to find out whatever happened to the promised replacement for the coast guard ship Estevan.

The confrontation comes at the crisis point of a situation in which Yarrows are laying off 100 workers and the unions have presented the company with demands for a 12½ per cent wage increase.

The Estevan replacement, promised by Transport Minister Hellyer during the June election campaign and announced by Mr. Anderson, is the only sign of a major Canadian shipbuilding contract to be let in the near future.

By the weekend, Yarrows will have completed work on the only two major projects it now has.

These are repairs to the collision-damaged American freighter Rose S and construction of the fisheries department patrol boat Tanu.

John Wallace, Yarrows general manager, said he has been able to get "nothing concrete" from Ottawa that would indicate when the tender might be called.

LONG DELAYS

But even when it does come out, there will be a two month delay until a bid is chosen and then a further four or five month delay before work can begin.

After the weekend, the company will employ only about 200 men in the Victoria yards.

Of the new union wage demands, Mr. Wallace said he was "completely shattered when I saw the demands that came in the face of a situation everybody knows we have been in for several months."

The 24 provincial shipyard unions, representing about 800 workers, made their demands of the two major shipyards Wednesday.

Management officials said then that fringe benefits asked by the unions would bring the total increase to 88 cents an hour for tradesmen. Basic wage rate for tradesmen now is $3.80 an hour.

J. W. Hudson, executive vice-president of Burrard Drydock Ltd. of North Vancouver and Yarrows, said the unions' demands threaten the survival of the West Coast shipbuilding industry.

COMPANIES STUNNED

He said the companies were stunned by the unions' failure to understand this. He said B.C. shipyard wage rates already are more than $1 higher than at Eastern shipyards.

Secretary Bill Stewart of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers' Union disagreed vehemently.

He said in an interview that the shipyard company have a virtual monopoly on this coast and over the last several years have "lots of money in reserve that has been built up by the shipyard workers and we want our share of it." Formerly the federal government spread out construction contracts between B.C., the St. Lawrence and the Maritimes. Recently it stopped doing this in favor of calling tenders for contracts.

"Now they have to bid and they say they can't do it," said Mr. Stewart.

"They want to live on repairs."

C'MON GANG, GROW UP, get out there and win, says Buck, imported English Pointer belonging to Mr. and Mrs. William Brennan of 3225 Albion, as he checks over his family of nine puppies. Buck himself will be among about 250 dogs competing daily over the next four days in shows at the Esquimalt Sports Centre organized by the Vancouver Island Dog Fanciers' Association and the Shoreline Kennel Club. Mr. Brennan is president of the Shoreline Club. (Times Photo.)

City Pilot Drowned In Swim to Shore?

BRIAN SYLVESTER
. . . varied career

Navy divers were to begin a search today for the body of former Victorian Brian Sylvester, 33, whose float-equipped light plane crashed into Muchalat Lake near Gold River Wednesday.

A commercial pilot and son of William B. Sylvester, president of Victoria Flying Services Ltd., he crashed in deep water about one-quarter mile from shore, RCMP said.

Passenger Hank Boschman of Chilliwack was uninjured and swam ashore.

The plane, a new Cessna 185, was owned by Pacific Euclid Ltd., a Vancouver-based tractor firm for whom Mr. Sylvester was both pilot and sales representative.

A spokesman for the company said early reports are that the aircraft was attemtping to take off from the lake, some 15 miles north of Gold River, when mechanical troubles developed.

It was apparently less than 200 feet up when Mr. Sylvester attempted to put it back down on the lake.

He made a tight bank and crashed into water between 200 and 500 feet deep.

Indiciations are that he survived the crash but disappeared while attempting to reach shore.

A native of Victoria and graduate of Victoria High School, Mr. Sylvester is survived by his parents, his wife Joyce and four children.

When he completed high school, he began working for radio station CKDA as a news reader and disc jockey.

While he worked the night shift at the radio station, he was also owner-manger of the Veterans Stage Lines, a bus company that went out of business in 1964.

ON BUSINESS

He moved then to Richmond, worked for awhile as a full-time disc jockey with radio station CKNW in New Westminster before turning his full attention to flying and sales for Pacific Euclid.

H and Mr. Boschman had been in Gold River on business and were leaving when the crash occurred about 12:10 p.m.

His father, a pioneer B.C. flier, started his Victoria business career with a U-Drive car business.

He turned to the aircraft business and took out the first charter licence in B.C. when he started B.C. Airlines Ltd. It continued as the province's largest charter firm until he sold it in 1956.

Three years later he came out of semi-retirement to head a new venture, Victoria Flying Services.

City Names Knick-Knack Committee

The city is on the hunt for a knick-knack for visiting dignitaries.

The souvenir of Victoria has to be unique—something indicative of the city—not the usual cufflinks or plate with the city crest.

Mayor Hugh Stephen was directed by council's Group A committee this morning to set up a special committee to study the knick-knack question.

The matter came up with discussion of a letter from the Canadian Art China Ltd. of Collingwood, Ontario.

The company offered a sample of small china plate with the city crest embossed on it, with the assurance that many municipalities use its product.

The city could hand them out to visiting convention delegates, the company suggested.

Mayor Stephen told the committee he now presents a wooden tray or a book on Vancouver Island to visiting officials. At one time, the city gave them miniature lamp standards "which I thought were rather cute," he said.

He suggested small, hand-carved totem poles produced locally, but a committee member said this would not be fitting because of the large number of Japanese-made totems on the market.

So the committee recommended a group be set up to choose "a unique sort of gift to visitors."

MUSEUM "PEACEFUL"

Opinion Differences But No Revolution

Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan today said there is no unrest whatever among curatorial staff at the Provincial Museum.

He said there is a "vigorous difference of opinion" among permanent staff on scientific matters occasionally and there may be unhappiness among some temporary helpers who have completed their tasks.

But Mr. Kiernan attacked newspapers as over-playing these aspects and suggested a report that three unnamed museum workers had aired grievances to a reporter was close to a concoction.

Mr. Kiernan told reporters he held meetings with top-level administrators of the museum this morning to investigate the report.

"I am satisfied that the basis of the report was not from curatorial staff and in my opinion it was very close to rumor-mongering, somewhat below and unlike the normal standards we expect and receive from the Press Gallery."

WRONG IMPLICATION

Mr. Kiernan said he was not denying that a meeting may have taken place with a reporter but he said it did not involve permanent curatorial staff as implied by the report.

"I have been assured this thing did not originate with the curatorial staff and it is not, in my opinion, an internal staff problem because, of course, I cannot make my staff responsible for what may or not have transpired with temporary help."

Mr. Kiernan said the museum frequently hired temporary help (budgeting $60,000 this year for temporary salaries) "and we really have no way of knowing what they do or do not say of their jobs."

Mr. Kiernan said he was satisfied that "there is no unrest" although there may be vigorous differences of opinion among the permanent staff "but in this particular field where you have cultural and scientific matters if there weren't some differences of opinion it would be a pretty dead operation."

Ask The Times

Q. Besides ice hockey, what sports have been invented by Canadians?—B.H.

A. Only one other organized sport, lacrosse, has distinctly Canadian origins. Lacrosse as we know it, is a modified version of what Indians had been playing for centuries before white men came to North America. The Encyclopedia of Sports says of basketball: "There is no mystery about (its) origins. It is an American invention." But its inventor, Dr. James A. Naismith, was a Canadian who developed rules for the game while working for a Massachusetts YMCA.

Rules Planned To Warn Parents About Aspirins

OTTAWA (CP) — New federal drug regulations are being introduced to require manufacturers to warn parents of the danger to children of overdoses of acetylsalicylic acid, commonly known as A.S.A. or aspirin.

The food and drug directorate of the national health department has mailed notices of the change to all drug manufacturers. A spokesman said the change likely is to become law later this year.

Drug manufacturers are being given until Sept. 20 to comment on the proposal, which results from a study of acetylsalicylic acid poisoning among children.

A spokesman said such poisoning causes a quarter of the deaths of children in Canada from all forms of poisoning.

Acetylsalicylic acid normally is packaged in tablets of five grains each for adults and 1¼ grains each for children.

The proposed regulations will require manufacturers to label each package with special warnings when a package contains a total of more than 30 grains, 24 of the 1¼-grain tablets of the children's size. The warning must be to the effect that there is enough drug in the package to poison a child and that the drug should always be stored in a safe place out of the reach of children.

WAR MUSEUM GETS VALUED DOCUMENT

LONDON (CP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said Wednesday he has handed over to the state his most cherished possession—the document marking the surrender of Nazi Germany in the Second World War.

Montgomery said the document, signed at Lunenburg Heath, Germany, on May 4, 1945, goes to the Imperial War Museum.

His decision was prompted by a burglary at his home in Alton last November.

Montgomery caused protests in Parliament after the war when he refused to give up the document.

Jurors Find Him Fit for Jury

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two sworn jurors "tried" a prospective juror Wednesday after he claimed he might be prejudiced if empanelled on a B.C. Supreme Court jury.

The procedure arose during selection of a jury for a case in which 10 men are accused of confining a man and assaulting him, both indecently and with intent to cause bodily harm.

Thomas Downie, the prospective 10th juror, told Mr. Justice Thomas Dohm that he was manager of the Vancouver Credit Bureau and felt his knowledge of the bureau's files might prejudice him in any case he heard in Vancouver.

The judge refused to excuse him on these grounds. Hugh McGivern, counsel for one of the accused, immediately challenged Downie "for cause" and the rarely-used court machinery dealing with this situation went into action.

Under a section of the Criminal Code of Canada, Mr. Justice Dohm ordered the two previously sworn jurymen to act as a "jury" to rule on Downie's status.

Downie himself was then called as a witness before them, repeated his reasons, under questioning by Mr. McGivern.

The "jury" retired and after a brief deliberation returned to announce their verdict. They held that Downie must serve as a juryman if called.

Downie was instructed to return to the waiting line but was immediately challenged by McGivern for general reasons and was not required.

The crown announced earlier it is not proceeding "at this time" with Kidnapping charges.

The 10 accused are David Black, 24, Victor John Gregory, 25, Herbert Albert Spivey, 21, Charles Dumont, 27, William Ivor Binns, 20, Laverne Schmidt, 25, Gary Clayton Wilbur, 22 William Arthur Cross, 25, Roger William Pearson, 17, and Aubrey Leighton Baker, 24.

Wilbur is from Red Deer, Alta., and Baker from Edmonton. All the others are from the Vancouver area.

The 10 pleaded not guilty to charges of: kidnapping with intent to confine James Cannan, 20, against his will; kidnapping with intent to hold him to service; confining him against his will; assault with intent to wound, maim, disfigure or cause bodily harm; indecent assault; and assault causing bodily harm.

Prosecutor T. G. Bowen-Colthurst told Mr. Justice Dohm: "The crown at this time will be proceeding with the last four counts on the indictment."

He gave no reasons why the crown would not be proceeding with the first two charges.

Mr. Bowen-Colthurst said the crown will call evidence in an attempt to show that Canna last Feb. 22 was forced into a car after running from a cafe, was struck on the head while being driven to a house in Vancouver and was later "subjected to a series of indignities" by the various accused.

The trial continues.

Long Distance 'Owl Rates' Announced

Previously-announced reductions in long distance telephone rates go into effect September 15.

They are effective between midnight and 6 a.m.

The new rate will see a three-minute call to Vancouver reduced by 20 cents to 55 cents. A three-minute call to almost anywhere in Canada will cost not more than one dollar.

B.C. Telephone Co. said today the midnight to 6 a.m. local time rate applies to customer-dialed station to station calls.

But where dialing directly has not yet been incorporated, operators will place a station to station call under the same rates.

Station to station calls within B.C. will now cost a maximum 70 cents for three minutes during the six-hour period. Points on the Alaska Highway, Yukon and Northwest Territories, or in Atlin are are not included in the schedule.

Cost of dialing Victoria to Halifax will come down from $1.95 to $1; Victoria to Kamloops from $1.40 to 70 cents.

Person to person rates will remain the same, as will rates for station to station calls made between 6 p.m. and midnight or from 6 a.m. to midnight on Sunday.

Day rates will apply from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. rather than starting at 4:30 a.m.

5 Children Remain In Hospital

BURNS LAKE (CP) — Five children remained in hospital at this northern British Columbia community today, undergoing treatment for chemical burns after swallowing popcorn sprinkled with household lye.

One of them, Barbara Cowley, 2, was in serious condition with burns to her throat and mouth. The others were in satisfactory condition.

Five were released Wednesday following treatment for the caustic chemical that can cause severe throat, internal and mouth burns if swallowed.

The poisonings happened Monday when two children found a tin of lye at their Indian reserve home and took it to children playing outside. Some of it was sprinkled on popcorn.

Twenty-five children were taken to hospital and 10 were detained for treatment.

Sewer Issue Gets Support

Two organizations Wednesday expressed support of the Sept. 28 Saanich sewerage consolidation referendum.

The Victoria Labor Council and the Saanich Municipal Employees' Association, at separate meetings, both urged a "yes" vote on the proposal, which will create a standardized sewer system with equal rates for all residents.

F-111A Back in Air

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The United States Air Force chief of staff said Wednesday the FIIIA fighter-bomber, grounded after triple tragedy, is ready to resume combat missions in Vietnam.

Priority Asked For Recreation

NORTH COWICHAN — North Cowichan council Wednesday asked the regional district to give priority to its $800,000 recreation bylaw — but no date was set for the vote.

After a special committee session within a regular council meeting it was decided to instruct municipal representatives on the Cowichan Regional District Board to try and ensure the recreation bylaw is voted on before a proposed $30,000 ambulance building bylaw.

Mayor Donald Morton said the regional district directors should be told that in future any proposed money bylaws affecting North Cowichan should be approved by the council first.

The recreation bylaw seeks to provide a covered swimming pool and community centre building at Pioneer Park.

Voting will be confined to the south end of North Cowichan, the city of Duncan and the unorganized areas of Cobble Hill, Cowichan Bay and Koksilah-Eagle Heights.

Swiss Bank In Purchase Of U.S. Gold

ZURICH (Reuters) — The Swiss national bank says it bought $29,700,000 U.S. worth of golld from another central bank last week but declined to say which one.

In its regular weekly statement the bank said it sold dollars and Swiss francs to another central bank in exchange for the gold, bringing total Swiss gold reserves to $2,600,000,000 worth.

The last time Switzerland bought gold from a foreign central bank, it was learned afterwards that the bullion came from the Banque de France, which bought dollars to support the French franc on foreign exchange markets.

Winnipeg Opens Futures Market For Live Cattle

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's first futures market for live finished beef cattle was opened by the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Agriculture Minister Harry Enns of Manitoba, wearing a white Stetson, rang a gong to start trading.

"If this brings stability of prices to the cattle industry it will be well worth while," said Mr. Enns.

Exchange President J. E. McWilliam indicated the future may see trading in "other commodities than what we are studying at the moment." He didn't name them, but the exchange is known to have an eye on potato futures.

One-Way Drive On Odometers

OSHAWA (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced today that all 1969 models will have one-way-drive odometers, making it impossible to reduce mileage readings by rotating the odometer cable in reverse.

Another development to be introduced in January, 1969, will be a "telltale" feature "that will provide visual evidence of tampering," the company announced.

CHICAGO (AP) — Most grain and soybeans futures deliveries moved within relatively narrow price ranges on the Board of Trade. Trade was mixed and moved at a rather good pace.

Early sales of wheat futures were generally attributed to a Canadian government estimate that the spring wheat crop would be some 57,000,000 bushels higher this year than in 1967. The trade here viewed this as a potentially strong competition for foreign grain markets.

Later, when a report from Manitoba indicated that rain and standing water in fields caused some drop damage that could reduce that province's estimate, there followed some buying that strengthened wheat prices near the close.

Corn futures came under some early hedging pressure but recovered under aggressive local and export buying.

New crop soybeans and soybean meal closed on a firm tone but the September deliveries of the two commodities lost ground.

New Stock Exchange

Jamaican trading on Canadian stock exchanges may soon decline: the minister of finance says a stock exchange of its own will soon be established in Kingston.

The Jamaican government is drafting securities legislation that will permit the trading of shares on home ground, rather than on Canadian, London and U.S. markets.

Wage Increases Average 8.2%

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage settlements in Canadian industry during the second quarter of this year provided an average increase of 8.2 per cent a year in basic rates, a labor department survey reported Wednesday.

This compared with average increases of 7.4 per cent a year in settlements negotiated during the first quarter and 9.2 per cent in the second quarter of 1967.

The quarterly survey was based on 71 contracts covering 86,000 workers outside the construction industry.

During the 12 months ended in June, the average hourly base rate covered by labor contracts rose by 15.6 cents or 7.2 per cent. This average results from a study of 527 contracts involving 1,075,500 industrial workers.

The survey report cautioned that averages are based on the hourly rate for unskilled or semi-skilled groups and do not necessarily represent the average wage increases of all workers in industry.

During the second quarter 43 wage settlements in the manufacturing industry showed average increase of 7.5 per cent for each year involved. In 28 settlements outside the manufacturing sector the average was 9.6 per cent.
